Work Does Not Kill
Most Worthy White Rat
Cossacks Among the Incas
China Is So Far

—By Arthur Brisbane—

YESTERDAY John D. Rockefeller celebrated the 78th anniversary of "his first job." He started work at 15, and has been working ever since, according to the American plan. Young gentlemen will observe that he has not "killed himself working."

At Grove City, Pa., dwelt a white rat, name unknown, entitled to your respect. This rat, still alive, was put into a rattlesnakes' cage in the zoology department of Grove City College to feed the rattlesnakes.

Immediately, the rat attacked and destroyed a group of seven small rattlesnakes. Then, as the big rattlesnakes advanced, the rat, biting and squealing, flew at them and the poisonous snakes retreated. The rat was removed to save the snakes. It will probably die of snake bite, but what a glorious death!

Alexander jumping down inside the wall of a besieged city ahead of his men and fighting for life, alone, did no more than that white rat.

Paraguay proposes to import from Russia ten thousand Cossacks to help fight Bolivia, for control of the Chaco region. Aborigines, in that part of the world, descendants of the Incas, will wonder if they see the Cossacks at work.

And students of the human race will write another chapter on the mixing of human breeds, which, on the whole, has been highly beneficial.

A relief commission gives you figures concerning the Yellow river flood. Fifty thousand Chinese were drowned. One million are starving. Conditions were made worse by brigands and soldiers breaking dikes in their fighting.

A plague of heat, rats and locusts has added to the evil, and parents eagerly try to give away children, hoping that someone will feed them.

All of that the western world takes calmly and coldly. China is too far away.

German children are to be trained in the art of war. One professor tells children it is important, in their book on war, to observe carefully the chapter on poison gases. Professor Banse, military science expert in the Brunswick Technological School, says everybody, children included, "must understand that there is nothing criminal about war."

If Germany should start war too soon, and France should send her great air fleet to bombard German cities, with explosives and poison gas, Professor Banse and the children would discover that war is dangerous, if it isn't criminal.

Dr. Hugo Eckener, a German, who keeps an old dirigible flying back and forth between Germany and Brazil, and will bring the same dirigible from Brazil up to Chicago, plans an airship line from the United States to Europe. He asks permission to use, temporarily, the government's empty dirigible shed at Lakehurst, N. J.

Americans, whose airships are built, go up into the air, and then fall down, because the navy won't let a man stay in command after he has learned his business, will be interested to see a German doing what the United States ought to do, and could do.

Can you imagine the indignation of our good British friends. They told Uncle Sam: "Please don't build any 10,000-ton fast cruisers. We don't want them; we want nothing heavier than 7000 tons." Uncle Sam announces that he will go ahead

Hertz Quit Publix in Row With Zukor

New York, Sept. 28 (US)—Ralph A. Kohn, treasurer of the Paramount Publix Corp., testified before Federal Bankruptcy Referee Henry K. Davis that John Hertz, Chicago financier was hired in a desperate effort to save Paramount. The agreement, he said, was drawn up as of Jan. 1, 1932, and authorized Mr. Hertz to act as chairman of the finance committee at a salary of $2750 a week for a two-year period.

ACT TO OUST CAMBRIDGE LAWYER

Woman and 10 Men Under Fire in Disbarment Action

Disbarment proceedings are in preparation against 11 more Greater Boston lawyers, one of them a woman, for a variety of alleged derelictions, it was learned today by the Boston Evening American from an official source.

The charges, it is understood, include jury fixing, forgery, charging excessive fees, solicitation and other offenses.

A lawyer in Cambridge, who was once suspended by the Bar Association for violation of ethics, will be up this time for disbarment on a charge of forgery.

Not in the memory of veteran Boston attorneys has a woman member of the bar in this section ever had disbarment proceedings instituted against her.

The woman lawyer's case is one of five, it is understood, soon to be filed in Supreme Court by Commissioner Dunbar F. Carpenter, appointed by that court to investigate fraudulent practices among attorneys.

SECOND TRIALS FOR TWO

On Oct. 17, it has been learned, a Boston man once exonerated in disbarment proceedings and considered one of the best trial lawyers in this part of the country, will come up again for disbarment in Supreme Court. This attorney, who will be charged with jury fixing, has been practicing many years.

Two other Boston lawyers will follow him in the court some time in November, according to the information. They are middle-aged men, veterans in the profession.

EXCESSIVE FEES CHARGED

A Blue Hill ave. lawyer, charged with imposing excessive fees in cases, is another slated to defend himself in disbarment proceedings, and there is one other case pending in Supreme Court, that of a lawyer charged with soliciting.

The disbarment case against Atty. Wilfred B. Keenan, Boston lawyer charged with jury fixing and tried last May, is still under advisement by the Supreme Court, while Atty. Lowell A. Mayberry is now on trial on a like charge in the same court.

HIJACKERS FLEE POLICE TRAP SHOTS

Escape Medford Ambush, Where Loot Was Hid, in a Wild Ride

An armed police ambush, laid for suspected hijackers near a newly-discovered $6000 cache of loot in Mystic ave., Medford, failed today when a fast car, driven by one of the wanted gangsters, escaped through a hail of police bullets.

Medford and Boston officers, who opened fire on the fugitive machine after it had careened through their midst, believe the man at the wheel was wounded by the fusillade which riddled the rear of his big sedan.

POLICE IN AMBUSH

The trap was set in a garage near Mystic ave. and Harvard st. Police, just previously, had found there more than $6000 worth of stolen cigarettes, identified as part of a truckload hi-jacked recently from a D. S. Woodward delivery van in Charlestown.

A squad of five police, headed by Sergt. Ferdinand Breed of the Charlestown station and Sergt. J. Stuart Lenox of Medford, hid themselves, guns in hand, near the cache.

Within an hour, a maroon colored sedan, driven by a man answering the description of one of the suspects in the hi-jacking, pulled up at the building where the loot was stored.

When the police leaped out to surround the automobile, the driver stepped onthe gas, scattered the men on foot, and roared away down Mystic ave., with bullets crashing through rear windows and against the metalwork of his machine.

Dean, Jr., Fined $50 as Tipsy Autoist

James W. Dean, Jr., of Cohasset, Harvard graduate and son of the Boston Stock Exchange president, was fined $50 today in Quincy court by Judge Kenneth Johnson for driving while under the influence of liquor.

He withdrew a plea of not guilty which he made Sept. 14 and was permitted to plead nolo contendere. Dean's car collided with another in Cohasset Sept. 2 and one of those riding with him was injured.

MOTOR MAIL TRUCK ROBBERY OCCURRED HERE

Working with the precision of a finely-attuned clock, three bandits—without uttering a word or displaying a firearm—seized registered mail from an electric truck in South Station today, missed a fortune in cash, and vanished in an automobile driven by an accomplice. Twenty guards were within hail and didn't know about the most audacious of Boston's robberies. The robbers fled to Atlantic ave., exited opposite the Essex Hotel, leaped into the car and, pursued by a taxi driver, fled south in Atlantic ave. to Kneeland st. They turned into Kneeland and raced to Albany st. There the taxicab was outdistanced and the trail was lost. (Boston American photo.)

GOODWIN TO SEE ELY NEXT WEEK

Frank A. Goodwin, chairman of Boston finance commission, will appear before Gov. Ely next week, probably Tuesday, to demand a showdown on the governor's charges of labor racketeering and threat to oust him, he said today.

Goodwin said that he would go to the State House as a result of Ely's offer to hear him before acting.

Gov. Ely, when informed of Goodwin's intention to call on him, said that he would welcome the Fin. Com. head—but not on Tuesday.

"Please remind him that there is a World Series game in New York on Tuesday, if you see him," requested the Governor. "But I'll be here on Wednesday, glad to hear what he has to say."

Goodwin admits he is connected with the Commonwealth Service Assn., an organization of Beacon Hill employes; an automobile protective association, the Equal Tax League and the Brockton Brotherhood of Shoe and Allied Craftsmen.

But, he declared, he had never received any profit from them.

"Why, all those things have cost me money and abuse," he exclaimed.

He said he had entered the Brockton shoe dispute as counsel for the Brotherhood only after workers went to him with stories of being "sold out" to employers.

Political observers were inclined to believe Goodwin was in many organizations, not for profit, but for a political following in his perennial campaigns, one at odds with his own party machine.

New York Awaits McKee's Word Today

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—Straphanger Joseph V. McKee rode into town in the subway today with a statement in his pocket that was expected to make the cauldron of New York politics boil over—a statement whether he would run for mayor.

The best guess of most observers seemed to be that the answer would be "yes."

Answering Samuel Seabury's charge of breaking a pledge to keep out of politics, McKee said:

"I made no such pledge."

Idle Yale Engineer Kills Self to Aid His Family

That his family might collect on his insurance, to save them from want, Reuben Pranin, 44, Yale graduate and unemployed engineer, committed suicide today near his home on Highland ave., Medford.

He left a note telling his wife where to find his body. On the body was another note, explaining he had taken poison.

Pranin, native of Turkey and graduate from Yale in 1912, was laid off two years ago by the Boston & Maine Railroad and has not been able to get another job.

Foreclosure on his home, an attractive single house with a large garden, was expected daily. He had not sought welfare aid. According to his wife, he had large insurance.

His wife found the first note when she went to his room:

"My body will be found on the cliffs, north of the house."

Followed by her son, John, 11, Mrs. Pranin ran to the cliffs and when she found her husband, who was barely alive her screams brought James H. Tansey and William E. Tobin, both of Highland ave., to the scene.

Pranin died within the few minutes before Dr. Daniel G. Driscoll of Highland ave. arrived. Search revealed an empty glass and the second note:

"I have taken poison."

His wife said she had no doubt he sacrificed himself to permit her and the boy to live on the insurance.

'Beano' Is Skill and Isn't, Say Courts

It's all in the point of view.

To Judge Joseph Zottoli in Municipal court "Beano" is a game of chance, and he so ruled today.

On the other hand a jury in Superior court at Lawrence found that the pastime, at least as played at Salisbury Beach, is a contest of skill.

Eleanor Boardman to Marry Director

Hollywood, Sept. 28 (INS)—Friends of Eleanor Boardman, film actress, were interested today in a report that she is to marry Harry D'Arrast, a director, when her divorce from King Vidor, also a director, becomes final next spring.

D'Arrest is on his annual visit to his mother, near Paris. Miss Boardman is visiting in England.

Woman, 102, to Celebrate

Tomorrow will be the 102d birthday anniversary of Mrs. Abigail Persis Worthley, oldest resident of Somerville, who will celebrate with a party at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Sarah A. Rowell of 11 Leonard st., with whom she lives.

Her two daughters, one son, her grandchildren and great grandchildren, and friends from many New England towns will attend.

Mrs. Worthley is still active and in the last two months has made seven quilts and four rugs.

She was born in Goffstown, N. H., Sept. 20, 1931, daughter of Henry J. and Rebecca Plumer. Her husband died 57 years ago. She is a member of the First Baptist Church of Manchester, N. H. Besides Mrs. Rowell her children are Sumner P. Worthley and Mrs. Mary R. Dolloff, both of Arlington.

THUGS LOOT MAIL WITH 20 GUARDS NEARBY

Bandits Escape With 5000 Cents; Police Scorn Witness

Three mail robbers had $100,000 in payroll cash at their fingertips in the South Station today. They snatched for it—and escaped with $50 in pennies, weighing 35 pounds.

In a robbery replete with musical comedy situations—a daring criminal stroke, no less—they grabbed three sacks from an electric transfer truck containing more than $100,000 in currency in 11 registered mail pouches.

They got the wrong sacks. Besides the pennies, in the pouches they mistakenly selected, they got $2500 in bonds (which they will have difficulty in cashing should they dare to try) and 37 assorted pieces of mail valued at $97.

MASTER CRIME FIZZLES

The robbers, apparently in the belief they had $1000,000 in the pouches—a belief shared for hours by postoffice inspectors and the police—fled in a car driven by a confederate, abandoned it in the South end after transfer to another car and disappeared.

By now they have probably discovered the "bungle" and, perchance, glumly gathered in some underworld hideout, may be counting out the pennies . . . "One for you . . . one for you . . . one for you . . . and one for me."

It was a bold stroke for an easy-money fortune, quite evidently by prearranged plan previously timed, but the whole affair was crammed with incidents of a sort that one might expect to find in a stage travesty on one of the bold coups of the late Gerald Chapman, the mail's "super-bandit," hanged in Connecticut some years ago.

IN MIDST OF GUARDS

To begin with the robbers, displaying not so much as a cap pistol and working in pantomime like so many mutes, snatched the sacks from under the very noses of 20 armed clerks and guards in the postoffice and baggage room at the railroad terminal.

A stout guard was too flabbergasted to do anything. The jitney truck driver didnt know anything had happened.

DARING ROBBERS FLEE WHILE POLICE SCOFF AT WITNESS

Chance Saves Fortune in Bank Cash; Daring Trio Pull Coup So Quickly as To Stun Postal Officials

ed up two policemen and escorted them to South Station where they were informed no robbery had taken place and went away muttering and mumbling about dizzy cabmen.

SPEED WITH PENNIES

Then it was discovered there really had been a robbery and officials estimated that between $60,000 and $1000,000 was taken. One official said he understood there was $75,000 in one pouch.

And then there was the scene of profane and rapid-fire transfer of the sacks in East Newton st., South end, witnessed by a woman who saw thee robbers—still with the sacks unopened, still believing they had $100,000—cursing one another to "Hurry up and get the hell out of here," with their $50 in pennies!

HIDDEN BY PILLAR

The robbers were each between 25 and 35, swarthy, and at least one wore gloves. When Wesley Pool of Hingham, stout and veteran mail guard, drove a truck of registered pouches from the new postoffice to South Station at about 5 o'clock this morning, they trailed him.

When the mail was unloaded at the baggage room on the Atlantic ave. side of the terminal, three of the robbers climbed into the room and hid behind a pillar. John Donovan, watchman, said he thought they were workers because they were shabbily dressed.

Pool, with the aid of John Higgins, mail clerk, stacked the 11 pouches on the little electric truck of the type most commuters using the station have, at one time or another, experienced a yen to drive.

NOT A SHOT FIRED

Higgins started with the load to the station postal station where it was to be sorted for train consignment. Pool walked 75 feet behind. It was still dark and the baggage room was unlighted. As the truck approached the doorway leading to Track 1 platform, the robbers stepped out and began helping themselves to the pouches.

Higgins heard a pouch drop, looked around and saw three scurrying figures. Pool ran after them but didn't draw his gun.

In the eight sacks left behind by the robbers on the conveyer were six of currency consigned to Newport, New Bedford and North Easton, and two of cash consigned to Plymouth.

TAXI MAN IN PURSUIT

One sack stolen was in shipment to Cape Cod. It contained the 37 assorted pieces of mail valued at $97. Another contained the pennies in shipment to the Mechanics National Bank of Taunton from the Federal Reserve Bank. The third, bound for Newport, contained three negotiable bonds valued at $2000 being sent by Kidder, Peabody & Co., to the Newport Savings Bank, and one other bond of $500 value.

The escape of the bandits was witnessed by Jacob Lastoff, taxi-driver, and Leonard Hebert, night clerk at the Hotel Essex. Lastoff pursued through Kneeland st. and lost the get-away car in Albany st. Then he picked up Patrolmen Daniel Byrnes and Alfred Gorman in a cruising car, took them back to the station and learned, they reported:

"There hasn't been a robbery here."

THEN THEY WAKE UP

Th police departed muttering and 15 minutes later postoffice authorities frantically phoned for reserves.

Mrs. Nellie Nice, of 96 East Newton st., awakened by a screech of brakes and loud curses, witnessed the transfer of the loot and the abandonment of the get-away car. She told police where they could find it. It proved to be an eight-cylindar sedan stolen here two weeks ago, with number plates stolen from a Swansea man in Plymouth.

Not until afternoon did postoffice men complete a check with banks and learn that, after all, $100,000 hadn't been stolen.

Authorities said they suspected amateurs and had three suspects definitely in mind, Roxbury and South End men. They went looking for them, hoping somewhere to pick up a trail of pennies.

LOVE BLOOMS AT 75 AND 62

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Chapman of Oliver st., Malden, 72 and 65 years old respectively, were today beginning their honeymoon following a wedding in which their grandchildren took part.

They were married at Chapman's former home, 44 Stone st., Cliftondale by the Rev. H. Newton Clay, pastor of the Wakefield Methodist Church, formerly of Malden.

A. H. Phillips, son-in-law of the bride, who was Mrs. Jessie Butler, was best man. The flower girls were her grandchildren, Dorothy E. Phillips and Helen E. Hume, both of Malden, and the ring bearer was a grandson of the bridegroom, Charles Durgin of Everett. The couple will live at the Oliver st. address.

BODY IN MAINE MAY BE CRATER

Rockland, Me., Sept. 28 (INS)—Belief that the body of an unidentified, well-dressed man who was beaten to death and tossed into the harbor at Owl's Head, near here, early Sunday morning, may be that of Joseph Crater, missing New York City jurist, was expressed today by City Marshal A. P. Richardson.

"There is a striking resemblance in the face of the man with photographs of Crater," Richardson said.

The man was about 50, had a large head with a prominent nose and large ears and a small neck. False teeth were missing. The hair was streaked with gray. He weighed about 175 pounds and was a few inches short of six feet tall.

NEWTON SCARE ENDS IN SHOT

The good citizens of Newton no doubt will be glad to hear, now that it is too cold to swim anyway, that the big alligator scare at Crystal Lake and environs, is at an end.

Leighton Reimer, a life guard at the Crystal Lake Bath House, is the hero of the occasion. He shot the last of the three "monsters" that have been "terrorizing" bathers and pedestrians and what not.

He didn't even telephone D. Harry Adalian, of 230 Lake st., Newton, to notify him the last of his escaped pets had been killed, until long afterward. He had black thoughts to think at this fag end of the bathing season and he could not be bothered about people who brought alligators from Miami as pets and then allowed them to escape.

MRS. QUIGLEY HAS ONLY PITY FOR MRS. COBB

Blames Husband in a Love Triangle With Tragedy Widow

Blonde Emily Roberts Cobb, Duxbury widow, absolved two years ago of the shotgun death of her wealthy young husband in Mansfield and now allegedly involved as the "other woman" in a marital break between Flora D. and James T. Quigley of Bridgewater and Brockton, has "just the pity and sympathy" of Mrs. Quigley, the latter told the Boston Evening American today.

"My husband was as much to blame as Mrs. Cobb for the affair that went on between them," Mrs. Quigley, proprietor of the successful Birchwood Inn, in the Boston-Providence highway, asserted.

"I met Mrs. Cobb in a Brockton hospital at the time of Justine Cobb's death.

"When I opened my inn in Bridgewater, Mrs. Cobb became a regular patron. It was there she met my husband.

NOT NAMING HER

"I had nothing to do with the police raid on Mrs. Cobb's Duxbury home, where she and my husband were arrested on charges of improper conduct. I am not even naming Mrs. Cobb in my proceedings for divorce.

"I am just charging my husband with excessive and habitual drinking. I had heard that he and Mrs. Cobb were too friendly, but, since he and I were living apart, I had no first hand knowledge of their relations.

"As I understand it, the police raid on Mrs. Cobb's home came as a result of a complaint made by a motor vehicle inspector from Plymouth. He went to see Mrs. Cobb about her driving license and auto registration and, according to what he told police, he found my husband there.

HIDING, SHE SAYS

"If it's all true, I still feel my husband at least as much to blame as Mrs. Cobb. She has not been herself since the tragedy in which her husband shot himself. She has just my pity and my sympathy."

James T. Quigley, the husband, is owner of a Brockton drug store. According to his wife, he is making his home at present with his mother in Brockton.

"He's hiding behind his mother's apron strings," Mrs. Quigley said. "I even had to serve my divorce papers in Plymouth court since it was impossible to reach Mr. Quigley in Brockton."

Duxbury police said today that the raid charges, brought against Quigley and Mrs. Cobb, will be prosecuted in Plymouth court.

ROOSEVELT AT HYDE PARK FOR REST

Planning to Attend Walker-Robinson Wedding

Hyde Park, N. Y., Sept. 28 (INS)—Here in his home for the third time this summer, President Roosevelt rested today, handled routine business and carefully avoided formal appointments.

The executive came here to attend the wedding of Miss Alida Robinson and Kenneth Walker on Saturday. Miss Robinson is the daughter of Theodore Robinson, a cousin of the President.

The President's aides kept him informed of developments in Washington by telephone, and he was told the giant banking and credit program he inaugurated before leaving the capital was taking shape.

ANTICIPATE STATEMENT

There was a possibility that Mr. Roosevelt would have an important announcement in connection with his finance program while he is up here, but there was no inkling of what it would be, specifically.

Late today or tomorrow the President may give some time to the drafting of the speech he will make next Wednesday night in New York before the National Catholic charities. Friends of the Executive expect him to give an answer to the increasing demand for direct inflation in this talk and there are several other matters which he is reported ready to tell the public about.

It was emphasized here today that no change in the present policy of expanding credit and action to loosen deposits in closed banks is contemplated. The new program, not yet completed, is confidently expected by the President to provide indirect inflation of a sound nature.

CONSIDERS PLANTING

The President's first thought when he arrived at his home here was for his next year's planting. He has about 400 acres of land on the Hyde Park estate, and expects to talk over the matter of planting with a State agricultural expert.

Except for an occasional friendly visitor, Mr. Roosevelt does not expect to have any callers during his stay here. He is anxious to avoid any contact with the mayoralty contest in New York city, and felt that any official visitors he might have up here would work to the disadvantage of such a policy.

Mystery Fires Burn Vt. Hotel, Stables

Fairlee, Vt., Sept. 28 (AP)—The Wynona Riding School stables were in ruins today as a result of a fire last night, the second of mysterious origin in Fairlee within a week. The loss was estimated at $8000.

Last Friday, at about the same hour and similar circumstances, the summer residence of Mrs. E. N. Cookman of Fitchburg, Mass., was burned with a loss of approximately $15,000.

In Bakersfield, the Bakersfield Hotel and an adjoining garage were destroyed by fire early today with loss of $8,500. A shortage of water hampered volunteer firemen in halting the flames. The fire was the fourth of serious proportions in Bakersfield in recent years, all of mysterious origin.

Bandit Chaser Once Victim In Holdup

JACOB LASTOFF

Jacob Lastoff of Pembroke st., South End, taxi driver, who vainly pursued the South Station mail bandits today in his cab, was himself a victim of highwaymen in April, two years ago.

At that time Lastoff and Arthur Lawler of Queensberry st., Back Bay, were trucking a load of silk and other goods from Brooklyn, N. Y., to Chelsea, when an armed man jumped on the truck in Shrewsbury and ordered them to turn into a dirt road.

Lastoff and Lawler were placed in an automobile which had followed, with two men, and were driven to West Roxbury, where they were released after Lastoff was robbed of $108 and Lawler of $8 and two rings.

Brockton Pickets Mass on Douglas Co.

Brockton, Sept. 28—The W. L. Douglas factory was virtually the only one of the 19 local shoe shops operating today, and pickets of the Brotherhood of Shoe Workers and Allied Craftsmen were concentrating on it.

A few other factories were open but doing business on a very small scale, so that the strikers did not give them any attention. Leaders of the strikers, who number approximately 5000, out of the 7000 shoeworkers in this city, predicted success as they awaited a report on a conference held at Washington by the National Labor Board.

Chain Gang Burns Asks for Clemency

Atlanta, Sept. 28 (AP)—Robert Elliott Burns, escaped Georgia convict, formerly of Springfield, Mass., whose custody was denied this state last fall by the Governor of New Jersey, has appealed to Governor Eugene Talmadge for clemency.

Burns wrote a book, purporting to be an account of his experiences on the chain gang, but prison officials said it was "highly imaginary." The book later was the basis for a motion picture, which was shown throughout the country.

NRA-BUY BAND CUP PRESENTED TO SCHOOL

St. Francis Xavier Pupils Are Given Big Parade Trophy

On the faces of the lads and lassies in St. Francis Xavier School in Roslindale there were beaming smiles today as they sat in the school auditorium in Cummins highway.

The boys and girls beamed because their school was being presented with the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser cup awarded the school band and contingent for for proficeincy in the NRA-Buy American parade held two weeks ago.

In this impressive parade, arranged by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser as Boston's demonstration of its NRA and Buy American support, the school band was selected as one of the snappiest and smartest in its class and the special cup was the reward.

BUY AMERICAN, TOO

Formal presentation was made in the school auditorium thronged with the students and several hundred parents, the assembly totaling more than 1200.

James F. McEnaney, representing the NRA committee of these newspapers, presented the cup to the children, and in an address told the youngsters to insist on American-made products when spending even as small amount as a penny, and advised them to buy in stores displaying the Blue Eagle.

In this way, he said, their daddies and big brothers and sisters—in fact the entire family, would be aided, because buying American-made products would result in more jobs for American workers.

OFFICIALS SPEAK

Master John O'Neil, 12, pupil in the eighth grade, accepted the cup for his mates and agreed for them, in a short address, to follow out the Boston Evening American and Boston Sunday Advertiser representative's advice.

Young John was followed by the Rev. Fr. Ambrose Walker, a curate at Sacred Heart Church, pastorate of the late Fr. Cummins for many years and to which the school is attached.

Other addresses were made by Patrick J. Connelly, president of the Dorchester Board of Trade and director of organizations for the Boston NRA committee; Fred C. Hailer, president of the Roslindale Board of Trade and head of the Roslindale NRA committee; Frank Broderick, member of the local Board of Trade, and George H. Farham, organizer of the winning school band.

GRIDIRON GAME TOO EXACTING ON HIS TIME

So President's Son Reports as a Freshman Stroke

Yale boys, a-thrill with ambitious notions of tossing Harvard Freshman Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., for a row of football-field yardlines this autumn, are doomed to disappointment, they learned today.

The President's son, for all of having won his letter as first string tackle on Groton prep school's gridiron squad, is out for crew, not football, as a Crimson yearling.

Instead of trotting forth on Soldiers' Field today to take his chances for pigskin honors in rough and tumble competition with 170 other freshman candidates, young Roosevelt will report at Newell boat club on the Charles and will take a place already assigned him as regular stroke oar in B crew's shell.

Roosevelt told friends that his choice of rowing in preference to football was made without regard to letter-winning probabilities.

"I'm fond of crew work," he said, "and I feel that it will fit in best with my college schedule. Football takes a lot of time and a lot of energy, and its demands are particularly severe in autumn just when a beginner in Harvard, like myself, is busiest with academic duties."

Thanks to his rowing experience at Groton and thanks to a physique which cheered the heart of Freshman Crew Coach Bert Haines, Roosevelt was at once given a berth as No. 1 or in shell B.

'Gunner' Trapped -:- On Girl's Tip

MRS. KATHERYN KELLEY

GEORGE R. KELLY

"Machine Gun" Kelly taunted federal authorities too often. Wanted throughout the nation for many murders he was also a fugitive from the Urschel kidnap trial. His freedom was stopped when he was caught in a Memphis, Tenn., bungalow. With him was his wife, Mrs. Katheryn Kelly. The notorious desperado has denied the murders but has admitted joining with 10 others, including Harvey Bailey, in kidnaping the wealthy oil man and holding him for $200,000 in Oklahoma. URSCHEL JURY URGED TO JAIL KIDNAPERS

Prosecutor Says U. S. Power Is Challenged by Gun Gangsters

Oklahoma City, Sept. 28—Declaring the Charles F. Urschel kidnaping case is one of "particular importance" to the government, Asst. U. S. Atty. Gen. Joseph B. Keenan today asked the jury to convict all of the 10 defendants now on trial charged with the $200,000 abduction of the oil millionaire.

Keenan, President Roosevelt's representatie to aid the prosecution of Harvey Bailey, Albert Bates and eight other defendants, declared peaceful American citizens must be protected against the kidnaper and racketeer. He asked the jury:

"Shall we have a government of law and order or shall we abdicate in favor of the reign of the machine gun gangsters"

"These defendants," Keenan declared, turning to Bates and Bailey, and the other defendants, "have jointly challenged the power of the government to protect its citizens."

"Not alone are the kellys, the Bates, the Baileys, the Kronicks, the Shannons, the Kozbergs and the Blumenfields at the bar of justice today," cried Keenan, "but this government—the government of the United States—as well, stands at the same bar of justice on trial for its life."

"If the government cannot cope with the kidnaper and racketeer," he asserted, we had better frankly admit the failure of our present form of government."

"Machine Gun" Kelly Admits Urschel Kidnap

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 28 (US)—George "Machine Gun" Kelly, notorious outlaw, has admitted taking part in the $200,000 ransom kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, millionaire Oklahoma oil man, it is announced by W. A. Rorer, Federal Department of Justice agent.

Cracking under a severe grilling, Kelly was quoted by Rorer as saying:

"You got me right on the Urschel case, but I didn't have anything at all to do with the Kansas City Union Station killings nor the Chicago mail robbery."

Aluminum Code Lowers NRA Wages

Washington, Sept. 28 (INS)—The aluminum industry, dominated by the Mellon interests, opened the hearing on its proposed NRA code today.

Already paying one of the lowest wage scales, the industry recently gained its Blue Eagle when it agreed to a presidential request to pay a minimum of 30 cents an hour for a 40-hour week.

Today it brought in a proposed wage scale of a 25-cent-an-hour minimum.

Shop Owner Held in Strike Shooting

Louis Lerner, Washington st. dress manufacturer, who lives in Harvard st., Dorchester, waived examination in Municipal Court today before Judge Carr, when arraigned charged with assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Lerner was arrested yesterday following the shooting of Meyer Karinsky, a labor delegate following an argument in Lerner's factory over the garment workers' strike.

Bay State Girl Held in Auto Death Crash

Branford, Conn., Sept. 28 (INS)—Collision of automobiles that killed Mrs. Ira Hurd, 55, of Clinton, and injured eight other persons was under investigation today with both drivers arrested.

Mrs. Hurd was in a car driven by James L. Martin with Mrs. Martin, Mrs. Robert York and two children. The other machine, driven by Miss Louise Stansfield, 26, of Westfield, Mass., drawing supervisor in East Haven schools, contained Miss Shirley Gubersky, 23, and Miss Elsie Palmer, 41, New Haven teachers.

Speeder Captured on Way to Try Loop

Nipped in admitted plans to "make" the Charlestown speeders' loop, Daniel J. McGonigle, 18, of Hayes Block, Charlestown, faced Central court today on charges of larceny of an auto in Arlington st., Back Bay.

McGonigle, who made the mistake of turning into Bowdoin st., Beacon Hill, against the one-way sign, was captured by Patrolman Albert J. Murphy of the Milk st. station.

Fire Escape Repair Rushed in Malden

Discovery of defective bolts on the fire escape at Malden High School forced the school department to make emergency repairs with a double crew of men. Supt. Farnsworth G. BISHOP OFF TO ALBANY ON CAHILL TIP

Ex-Cowboy Suspect Is Trailed in Three Other Places

Search for Harry P. Cahill, accused as the strangler-slayer of 10-year-old Peggy McCarthy of Somerville, led to four points in three states today, but with none of the clues appearing to be a strong one.

One clue in Hartford, Ct., petered out early, while results of the other three vague leads were unreported.

Dist. Atty. Bishop furnished one clue by departing mysteriously for Albany early today, apparently following up a tip that a man resembling the wanted 45-year-old ex-cowboy, had boarded a bus in Swanton, Vt., for Albany.

Another tip, this one given Somerville police, was that a man answering Cahill's description, and acting furtively and suspiciously, purchased a bottle of milk from a milkman at 2 a. m. today at Cedar and Summer sts., Somerville.

Somerville police also received a telephone call from William Mora, a guard in the East Cambridge House of Correction, stating that while driving yesterday near Randolph he saw a man beside the road who resembled Cahill.

The Hartford clue ran up against a blank search of hotels and lodging houses in that city failed to unearth Cahill.

MAYBERRY SOBS IN DENIAL OF JURY 'FIX'

Mystery Witnesses Fail to Appear; Charges Friday

With two "mystery" witnesses still missing and another the victim of a sudden death, testimony in the disbarment proceedings against Atty. Lowell A. Mayberry was closed today.

Before the close, however, the scion of an old New England legal family, emotionally denied the charges of "jury fixing" and at one place hurled "the lie" at his accusers.

Immediately at the close of Atty. Mayberry's testimony, Judge Henry T. Lummus announced closing arguments of opposing attorneys would open Friday at 2 p. m.

Atty. Mayberry, frequently referred to by even rival attorneys as one of the most skillful before the bar, was nearly three hours on the witness stand in a fight for his legal life.

Loveland Is Still 'Hanging On'

Boston's one-day autumn heat wave went into the discard today, with the mercury down to a comfortable 65 degrees again and with no further threat against comfort in the immediate offing.

Today's weather prognostications were expected to be the last made in the temporary quarters in Young's Hotel but the shift into new quarters on the 19th floor of the federal building was postponed today until tomorrow, due to a misunderstanding in arrangements.

However, Forecaster Loveland did pretty well by Boston through predicting only cloudy weather tonight and Friday, with not much change in temperature.

BANKERS AGREE TO LOAN N. Y. $25,000,000

New York, Sept. 28 (UP)—After 20 days of exhaustive conferences, city officials and representatives of New York city's bankers have agreed on a comprehensive plan for meeting the city's financial needs, including unemployment relief.

Gov. Lehman, who made the formal announcement of the outcome of the negotiations, said the plan would be submitted for approval today to the board of estimate and the bankers, after which the details will be divulged. The endorsement of both groups was considered assured.

Although the Governor said new legislation will probably be required before the plan can become fully effective, it was understood the bankers would immediately make available the $25,000,000 needed by the city for this Saturday's payroll.

If new legislation is found to be necessary, the Governor said, he will call another special session, "but only after the proposed legislation in definite form has been agreed upon by the legislative leaders of both parties."

The announcement that special legislation may be needed at once led to reports that the plan included provisions for a further reduction of mandatory salaries and for some form of new taxation not authorized under the blanket emergency taxing power granted the city by the Legislature last summer. Either of these provisions would require action by the State Legislature.

Lindberghs Eager for 2nd Trip

Moscow, Sept. 28 (AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his wife are so impressed by the experiments in aviation work in Soviet Russia that they hope to return here in a couple of years to see their outcome.

The colonel told of this desire at a banquet given in honor of himself and his wife last night. Two United States senators—W. G. McAdoo of California and R. R. Reynolds of North Carolina—were present at the banquet.

"This country is peculiarly fitted for aviation development because it is a land of great distances," Lindbergh said, "and I am impressed with your accomplishments.

"Your technical achievements cannot be doubted after seeing your new construction and experimental laboratories. In fact, we are both anxious to return in two years to see the result of your present experiments translated into actualities."

Mrs. Lindbergh pleased her audience by saying:

"I am deeply honored to sit at the same table with Soviet women aviators who are participating in the development of this science on equality with men."

Responding to a toast, Sen. McAdoo stressed that he was here in a purely private capacity. It is his first visit to Russia in 35 years.

"I am amazed at the phenomenal achievements I have witnessed," he said.

FRANCE URGED TO MAKE DEBT PAYMENT

By GEORGE W. HINMAN, JR.

Paris, Sept. 28—France should enter into debt negotiations with the United States on the same footing as Britain, by making good the "deferred" December 15 payment and matching London's "Symbolic payment" on the June 15 installment.

This program is advanced in a front-page editorial of the new Evening Mail, Notre Tempts, published by intimates of Premier Daladier. The editorial states:

"The difference between our position and England's has undoubtedly injured our country in American opinion. Assuredly Parliament and the country had reason to refuse the December and June payments.

"The policy of the American administration, despite the conversations with M. Laval and the Lausanne accord, undoubtedly obliged us to make a startling move so as to break with the past and bring the United States face to face with the problem of debts revision. This move was made and it is probably because it was made that England was able, very adroitly, in June to adopt the solution of a 10 per cent symbolic payment.

"Now the hour for negotiation has come. Would it not be to France's advantage to agree to place herself on the same footing, as England and to envisage, pending conclusion of an accord, payments of 10 per cent?

"In accepting such reduced payments and in engaging in conversations with the debtors, President Roosevelt would create the 'New Fact' which the French Parliament demanded before effecting the December 15 back payment.

"Thus there would be neither evasion nor disavowal; nor would there be exorbitant financial sacrifice.

HOVEY COMPANY SETS CENTURY OF PROGRESS

It has been said that "without vision the people perish."

And here in Boston, in 1833, a man had a vision of service to the community.

That man was Charles Fox Hovey. He founded the C. F. Hovey Co., the first Boston department store.

And 1933 marks for this store, one hundred years of service to the buying public!

A century of achievement!

If the spirit of Charles Fox Hovey could visit Boston today, and look upon the store of this period, how amazed he would be.

Here he would find an enthusistic organization, carrying on for C. F. Hovey Co. And if he watched transactions for a day, he would notice the same principles of integrity, fair prices and service he inaugurated a hundred years ago.

Charles Fox Hovey was a business man, known to have high principles and progressive ideas. In 1833, he was an importer and wholesale dealer in dry goods. His partners were Washington Williams and James H. Bryden. The business was flourishing, but Mr. Hovey felt retailing was an important branch that was being neglected.

TRADE AT WHARF

Trading was done at the wharf, where the importers sold to wholesalers. Trade then went further up Kilby and Water sts., gradually moving into Hanover st.

Mr. Hovey decided he would establish a more direct route from importers to consumers.

He took into partnership, Richard C. Greenleaf and John Chandler, who carried on a retail dry goods business on Washington st. The first Hovey store was opened on Winter st., but a few years later, business had increased so that the present site of Hovey's was secured.

The name of Hovey came to mean a high standard of excellence in the community.

To Mr. Hovey belongs the honor of being the first to introduce the one-price system in retailing.

STANDARD PRICES

He adopted the slogan, which the Hovey organization has carried proudly.

This is "standard goods at a standard price."

In 1848, Washington Williams retired, and the firm name was changed to C. F. Hovey and Co. The next year, 1849, John Chandler retired. Other changes followed in rapid succession. There was the death of James H. Bryden in 1850.

The following year, Henry Woods, Samuel Johnson, Jr., and William Endicott, Jr., were admitted. These three men represented three fine New England families.

Boston history records the names of Henry Woods and Samuel Johnson as men interested in the welfare of the city along progressive lines.

In 1854 Mr. Hovey conceived the idea of profit-sharing and worked out a plan which would benefit his workers.

The store files contain today a copy of the letter which he wrote the store treasurer, recommending a sum of money be taken from the employes, according to terms of store funds and divided among service.

STORE ON NOTED SITE

It is interesting to note that the estate upon which the Hovey store stands was in existence long years ago. Its first owner was Sir William Pepperell, who was a royalist, and during the Revolution his property was confiscated.

Real estate was at rock-bottom prices when the company took possession of the Gardner estate. A price of $3.50 a square foot was quoted for the land on Summer st.

Mr. Hovey introduced the monthly payment system for all accounts. This plan was soon adopted by other stores.

In 1859 the entire company and its workers were saddened by the death of Charles Fox Hovey.

MANDELL JOINS FIRM

In 1839 a partnership was formed by admitting to the firm Thomas Mack and Augustus DePuyster. Upon these men devolved the gigantic task of piloting the Hovey company through the Civil War.

In 1870 Edward C. Johnson and the late Samuel P. Mandell were admitted. Mr. Mandell had been in the Hovey business since 1818.

Later came the death of George L. Lovett, Samuel Johnson, Henry Woods and Wolcott H. Johnson. William Endicott retired.

But despite the changes in the firm, the early principles were maintained.

Seldom do we hear of such lifelong association as was marked in the lives of the Messrs. Mandell, Endicott, the two Johnsons, Greenleaf and Woods. They were together 39 years. In the long span of 73 years, there were only 17 partners, an annual record.

It was in 1914, that C. F. Hovey & Co. became the C. F. Hovey Co. In 1919, Samuel Johnson was made president, and Louis Rivers was named vice-president and general manager. On the retirement of Mr. Johnson, Mr. Rivers was named president, and Joseph T. Gilman, vice-president.

From a handful of employes in 1833, the year of 1933 sees hundreds of workers enrolled under the C. F. Hovey Co. banner, a happy army, proud of the company they serve.

Down Hovey's Memory Lane

Lienhard, With Hovey's 60 Years, Still Likes Job

"I feel as if I were having a birthday of my own."

So declared George C. Lienhard, who has almost finished his 60th year with the C. F. Hovey Co., in commenting on the hundredth anniversary of the establishment of this Boston department store, first to be opened in Boston.

G. C. Lienhard

"No one is any more proud of being a worker for this company than I am," said this veteran employe, "and each of the workers in the store today joins with me in warm congratulations to the Hovey Co.

'May it have one hundred more years of success!"

Mr. Lienhard paints a fascinating picture of Boston when he entered the Hovey company employ at the age of 14.

"Hovey's was just a slice of a store when I came to work here as a boy," he said. "There was just one floor and we sold nothing but yard goods. The clerks were mostly men. There were a few women employed, but women in large numbers had not begun to work outside the home."

The Hovey company, officials said, may well be pleased with the pleasant report of its fair dealings with employes, given by a man who is in a position to know, this veteran of 60 years' labor. Mr. Lienhard says that no company that he knows of gives its workers a "squarer deal" as does this firm.

He says that President Ehrlich himself always stops to speak with him as he goes through the shipping room, as "man to man" not as "president of the firm to the shipping clerk," and that means a great deal to any worker.

Lienhard drove a Hovey delivery team for 32 years. When his eyes began to fail, he was transferred to the shipping department, where he works today.

$100,000 THEFT CASE QUASHED

Worcester, Sept. 28—Somewhat mysteriously, the case against William Penfield, 43, of Warren st., Allston, identified eight days ago as Worcester's $100,000 diamond bandit, was dropped in district court today at the unexplained request of William P. Finneran, chief of detectives.

Penfield, however, was rearrested in court on a Boston warrant charging that he defaulted in a minor case.

On Sept. 20, Penfield was arrested in Washington st., Boston, when he was picked out of a sidewalk throng by Arthur S. Bower of Brooklyn, N. Y., the diamond salesman held up and robbed in Union station on Sept. 13.

ePnfield went into court today with Attys. Leo Isgur of Boston and John H. Sullivan of Taunton and said he was prepared to prove an alibi. It was not needed, however.

AMERICANS SAFE IN CUBA STRIKE

Havana, Sept. 28 (INS)—Thirty Americans and Britons, including five women, today reported that order prevailed and conditions were safe at the Hershey sugar mills, where 1200 employes are on strike.

American warships kept in close touch with the situation, although the Cuban army announced itself ready to protect American and British citizens at the mills.

Other parts of Cuba and the city of Havana were quiet.

Hopes were expressed that a political compromise between the government and opposition elements could be reached with resumption of conferences between President Grau San Martin and opposition leaders.

Music Broadcast to Usher in Shepard Anniversary

Friday Shepard's begin its 68th annual celebration of being in business in Boston, and the first anniversary sale to be held in their newly modernized Tremont st. store.

Following weeks of preparation, Shepard's is in position, according to the management, to offer values in this sale at far below current replacement costs.

In a gala salute to the anniversary, an elaborate one-hour variety program of vocal and instrumental music will be broadcast over Station WNAC between 9 and 10 o'clock tonight.

Jesse Crawford, "Poet of the Organ," will contribute a special selection as guest artist. Marches and concert selections by the renowned Shepard Concert Band, under the leadership of Walter Smith, will be heard. An instrumental novelty in the form of an organ-piano duet will be contributed by Francis J. Cronin and Earl Weidner. They will play Lee Sims' "Improvisation," based on a theme by Carleton Colby.

Vocalists for the revue are to be John Martin, Mabel Pearson, Walter Kidder, George Hinkle and the Yankee Singers. Joan Martin's soprano solo will be "I Give My Heart," from "The DuBarry"; Mabel Pearson's contralto voice will be heard in a contrasting selection, "Nocturne."

FILM 'WITNESS' IN BALM CASE

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—The second reel was to be shown today in the $4,000,000 heart-balm suit of Mrs. Helen Vogel Stern, against Mrs. Ruth Erlanger Nathan for alleged alienation of affections of Allison L. S. Stern, millionaire sportsman.

First reel was unrolled before a socialite audience when Max D. Steuer, counsel for Mrs. Stern, got permission to have court shades drawn and in the gloom flashed upon a projection sheet homemade movies depicting the happy home life of Mrs. Stern and her husband, before Mrs. Nathan allegedly shattered it.

The movies showed the Sterns at their Deal, N. J., estate romping with their children, playing with a terrier and in general behaving like a happily-wedded pair.

All that, Mrs. Stern charges and Mrs. Nathan denies, ended when Mrs. Nathan "brazenly offered" Stern "her affections" and when, among other things, she induced him to drink too heavily, gad about and climaxed it by pulling his shirt out of his trousers at a New Jersey road house while a crowd of acquaintances tittered—all according to Mrs. Stern.

Mrs. Nathan's attorneys will seek to prove she did none of the things charged against her, while alleging Mrs. Stern pursued her husband and after finally marrying him was jealous of other women.

MEXICO WARNED OF NEW GALE

Mexico, D. F., Sept. 28 (AP)—The national observatory announced today that a tropical storm, like that which battered Pico Sunday, was forming in the Caribbean and moving toward the Antilles.

Heavy rains in the state of Guerrero, dispatches said today, destroyed crops, flooded several towns and caused an interruption of overland communications.

The Bank of Mexico announced $196,000 has been raised for relief. The American Red Cross gave $25,000.

Mrs. Lindstrom in War on Squirrels

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP)—Mrs. Fred Lindstrom, wife of the Pittsburgh baseball player, complained to the police that large herds of squirrels were infesting the neighborhood and that they had grown so bold that now and then one would take a nip at the heels of a passerby.

Policemen fired a few shots, but Mrs. Lindstrom said she didn't think that any of the squirrels were hit.

New Water Service Planned for Melrose

Additional water service to Melrose and the Melrose Highlands section is proposed by Mayor Robert A. Perkins, who will ask the city to appropriate $75,000 for a secondary service from the reservoir mains on Ravine rd. to Warwick rd. and Vinton st. It is proposed to lay a 16-inch high pressure main.

LINOLEUM ROOM AT GILCHRIST'S

To help shoppers visualize their linoleum as it will look on their own floors at home, Gilchrist's has created a new and improved linoleum department on the fifth floor.

The entire floor has been laid out in linoleum squares, the most successful colors and patterns of the current year. On the sides extend the panels showing the different color borders.

The buyer can see how each border will match the particular design and combination of colors selected and can also experiment with borders and linoleum floors before making final decision.

BUDGET PUZZLE TICKETS FREE

Balance the Budget, latest of puzzles, is creating a lot of interest daily in the Boston Evening American. This puzzle is simple to solve, taking only a few moments.

To the first ten to solve the puzzle correctly, a pair of tickets will be given to Loew's State Theatre. Turn to page 21 for the Balance the Budget Puzzle.

Beginning tomorrow the feature attraction at Loew's State Theatre will be "Stage Mother" with Alice Brady, Maureen O'Sullivan, Franchot Tone, Phillips Holmes, Ted Healy and others. The story revolves around Miss Brady, whose role is that of domineering "stage mother" who forces her child to success on the stage through difficulties that create powerful human interest. Other films will include an Our Gang Comedy, "The Kid from Borneo," and Hearst Metrotone newsreel.

Irish Leader Faces Military Tribunal

Dublin, Irish Free State, Sept. 28 (AP)—Commander E. J. Cronin, secretary of the new United Ireland party, voluntarily appeared today before a military tribunal to answer charges in connection with a Dublin cattle sale.

He was charged with being a member of an organization advocating encouragement for the nonpayment of rates. Three others, including the chairman of the Tipperary council, Patrick Belton went before the tribunal on like charges.

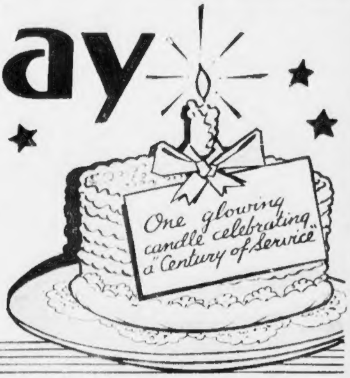
100th Birthday Sale



One glowing candle celebrating a "Century of Service"

Excerpts from Congratulatory Messages to Hovey's

From Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, the White House:

"I am happy to extend to the C. F. Hovey Company our warm congratulations on its One Hundredth Anniversary."

(Signed) MRS. FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

From the Governor of Massachusetts:

"Permit me to congratulate you on your company's 100th anniversary. In these times it is the duty of everyone of us to encourage business so that we may promote the upturn and sustain the President.

"One hundred years of business is a rare achievement. Few comparatively can boast of such a record."

(Signed) JOSEPH B. ELY.

From the Mayor of Boston:

"It is an exceeding pleasure for me, as Mayor of Boston, to extend congratulations in behalf of the citizenship to the C. F. Hovey Company upon the occasion of its one hundredth anniversary.

"The C. F. Hovey Company is deserving of the commendation and support of the public for its early participation in the NRA movement, as advocated by President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

(Signed) JAMES M. CURLEY.

From the Governor of Vermont:

"I congratulate you upon the One Hundredth Anniversary of the C. F. Hovey Company. A Century of Service to New England deserves special honors."

(Signed) STANLEY C. WILSON.

From the Governor of Maine:

"I desire as chief executive of Maine to congratulate the C. F. Hovey Company upon completion of one hundred years of service to the people of New England.

"No merchandise concern in New England stands higher in the estimation of Maine citizens than the C. F. Hovey Company. One hundred years of service tests its worth better than any words of mine."

(Signed) LOUIS J. BRANN.

From Secretary of Interior Ickes, Washington, D. C.:

"The number of concerns which can point to a century of uninterrupted business is relatively small. Those who have survived the constant changes of the past hundred years are certain to have been built upon solid foundations."

(Signed) HAROLD I. ICKES.

President, Chamber of Commerce of the United States:

"It is a particular pleasure to know that you have passed the century mark. The continued existence of any firm for the long period of a century indicates many things. Such a firm must have been run on sound business principles and with fair dealings to its customers, else it would not have spanned the century."

(Signed) HENRY I. HARRIMAN.

From the President, Boston Chamber of Commerce:

"C. F. Hovey Company is one of the landmarks of Boston business. Its 100 year record of successful operation and service to the people cannot fail to be a source of great satisfaction and pride."

(Signed) ELIOT WADSWORTH.

FOLEY AND MANSFIELD STILL LEAD IN CITY-WIDE VOTE

Ballots in American and Advertiser Test Come From Every Ward As Race Is Narrowed Down

Exactly 7143 registered Democratic voters had marked their postcard ballots today in the interesting Straw Ballot Election Test for Mayor of Boston conducted by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser among the registered Democrats of Boston.

That is, this was the number of postcard ballots sorted and counted while each delivery of mail brought new returns.

The returns were beginning to take on an all-over-the-city flavor.

The outward wards of Dorchester were registering their sentiment for the first time.

Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain voters now see their ballots annexed to the totals. The first scattering returns from Hyde Park and Jamaica Plain were being supplemented also by the citizens of South Boston.

FOLEY GAINS 94

The day's total of votes sorted and counted was 1140.

District-Attorney William J. Foley and Former State Treasurer Frederick W. Mansfield continued to race neck-and-neck, the former increasing his slim lead by the slight 94 votes in the day's sorting.

The postcard ballots are being mailed to registered Democrats, of whom there are 161,000 in the city of Boston.

"Who is the strongest Democratic candidate for Mayor?" That is the interesting and important question which the voters are deciding for themselves.

The voters are encouraged to vote their preference for mayor with complete independence. They may mark their crosses opposite the names of their favored candidates, or they may write in the name of any candidate or favored son, Democrat or Republican, whether his name appears on the printed ballot. There is a blank space on the ballot for that purpose. The returns show that the voters are making use of their right in this matter.

GLYNN QUIT [illegible] THIRD

The number of candidates has perceptibly dwindled. Dr. Raymond P. Shattuck formally retired from the mayoralty contest, as did Joseph A. Tomasello and John J. Connors. They have now been followed into retirement by Chairman Theodore A. Glynn of the street commission, Mrs. Mary E. Gallagher and Paul A. Collins, the engineer, son of the late General Patrick A. Collins.

Mr. Glynn stood in third place in this Election Test at the time of his retirement. Any ballots received for him in the future will be counted and published as they will be for every other citizen of Boston who finds preference in the judgement of any voter.

This Election Test grows warmer with the receipt of new ballots from the outlying sections of the city. Any day may bring its surprises.

Watch for the results of your ballots. They will be published daily in the Boston Evening American and Sundays in the the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Jail Pal Left Him $1,000,000 Estate

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 28 (INS)

A friendship with a fellow prisoner at Leavenworth resulted in a $1,000,000 estate for Charles Ward here yesterday.

As he became president of the Brown & Bigelow advertising firm, Ward revealed it was friendship formed with H. H. Bigelow, St. Paul millionaire, while both were "doing time," that resulted in his present affluence.

Ward said: "Nine years ago H. H. asked me what job I wanted when I came out, and I told him, 'I want your job.'

"He laughed and said, 'You can have it if you can earn it. I'm going to remold you when we get out of here.'

"Well, he did," Ward finished.

Bigelow was drowned two weeks ago on a fishing trip.

Collins Lauds American's Mayoralty Straw Ballot

Generous praise for the Straw Ballot Test Election for Mayor of Boston, now being conducted by the Boston Evening American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser, among the registered Democrats of the city was contained in a letter from Paul A. Collins.

Collins is the son of the late Gen. Patrick A. Collins, who was Mayor of Boston, American Consul to London and for a generation one of the most admired and beloved figures in the public life of this city.

Gen. Collins was chairman of the Democratic City Committee of Boston, was chairman of the Democratic State Committee of Massachusetts and presided over a Democratic National Convention. Paul A. Collins has retired from the mayoralty campaign in the hope that harmony may be installed in the Democratic party here. His letter follows:

"Editor
Boston American:

"This would seem an opportune time to express my sincere thanks for the courtesies extended to me while a candidate for the office of Mayor by your newspaper.

"I am particularly interested in the Straw Vote Ballot appearing in the daily columns of the Boston American; because, although at this time it might prove undesirable to draw definite conclusions, nevertheless the accuracy of its indication increases day by day.

"That the daily publication of its results is being carefully followed, is well evidenced by the number of Democrats who have commentd upon it most favorably. Its progress is most interesting both from the standpoint of my keen interest in the welfare of the Democratic Party and the day by day standing of its candidates.

"As an engineer, I have long since been familiar with the principal of "sampling the product." In other words scientists have determined that this is an accurate way of predicting final results. Furthermore, this theory is well substantiated by practice as was proven during the nationwide Straw Vote Ballot conducted by the Hearst papers during the last Presidential campaign. A comparison of the actual vote cast with the prediction was almost 100 per cent acurate.

"Another thing—the Straw Vote Ballot is certainly making Boston 'Democratically-minded' and will be a decided influence in bringing about the election of a Democrat in this City of Democrats."

'PATRIOTISM' OF NEW KLAN SMELLS LIKE TREASON

Pelley's Silver Shirts Are Preaching a Strange Doctrine in Vain Efforts to Sweep in Tenners

"The Russian people are hoodwinking themselves in their socialistic experiment in precisely the same way that the Continental Fathers hoodwinked themselves in their democratic experiment."—Excerpt from "L." confidential manual for members of the Silver Shirts.

There you have the key to the attitude of William Dudley Pelley's Silver Shirts, the latest version of Klanism, toward the United States of America. They consider this nation a mistake and a failure. And they expect to sell that idea at $10 a member! No wonder the War Chest of the Christian Militia of the Silver Shirts is virtually empty.

Here are a few more samples of what they think of the struggle of the Thirteen Colonies for liberty, the Declaration of Independence, the bill of rights and the rest of the Constitution and the government it set up:

"The Colonials wanted to get rid of George III exactly as the Russians wanted to get rid of Nicholas II. When both kings had been discarded, the immediate alternative was to set up the same kind of government—only under a score, or a hundred, little kings crowned and dethroned every two or four years by their subjects.

JUST LIKE RUSSIA

"The governmental principle never altered in the slightest, which is why the American democracy finds itself in the hands of the moneybund today with all free institutions threatened, the same as the Russian people find themselves in the hands of Stalin's chekka with all personal liberty curtailed in the name of freedom, fraternity and equality."

If that is an accurate picture of our history and government and political philosophy, the New Englanders have been sadly misled by their school books and their newspapers and they have been woefully blind as they watched the deliberations of Legislature and of Congress.

But you can't find many New Englanders—or Americans anywhere—who are convinced that they have been blind and misled in this manner. Neither can Mr. Pelley. And even fewer are those who will pay him $10 to set them on the "right" road.

TWO "BIG MISTAKES"

Just what this "right" road is may be gathered from a few more quotations from the confidential manual that was unearthed by an investigator for the Boston Evening American:

"Neither the Colonials nor the Russians realized that the Kingly Personage, or the royal line, was potentially above all classes in the state, particularly the wealthy, predatory, mischievous or subversive. As such the Kingly Personage stood between these voracious groups and his subjects at large. The king had to do so, and consider the welfare of his domains as a whole, or he did not long remain in the kingship.

"But the Colonials threw away George III and the Russians threw away Nicholas II. Both eliminated the protecting buffer that intervened between them and unrestrained greed.

"Neither caught the true essence of Public Sovereignty, that government should be the facile servant for all the people within the commonwealth acting as a unit, and actually "serve' them, not play the autocrat over them and tell them arbitrarily what they should do."

OLD GEORGE ALL CUT UP

One might quote page after page of this kind of "patriotism," but it is easy to see why the $10 bills are not pouring into the Asheville headquarters of the Silver Shirts.

Mix this brand of "Americanism" with the anti-Semitism and the psychic-spiritual hokum that the Silver Shirts are preaching and you have a mixture thoroughly unpalatable to your average honest American citizen. Just one more Silver Shirt opinion of the American government:

"Because the Americans split George III up into two or three hundred little Georges III of their own nomination, and named this chopped-up kingship the Congress, Americans fancied they had set up a democracy. It was no more a democracy than Russian Communism is the rule of the proletariat."

Winthrop Ordered to Revise Books

A revision of bookkeeping systems in the town of Winthrop was suggested by the State Auditor yesterday after examination of town books disclosed laxity in keeping of the accounts.

The state audit revealed the town has been paying salaries of two officials without authority, that payment for lots in the town cemetery are very slow, that cemetery board does not know how much is owed, that cancelled securities are not filed in the treasurer's department and therefore the auditors had difficulty determining the town debt.

B. & M. Air Line Plans Extension

Extension of the airplane passenger service of Boston-Maine Airways, Inc., to include a daily round trip between Boston, Concord, N. H.; White River Jct., Vt., and Montpelier, Vt., is being actively considered, and may become effective by Oct. 15, is was announced today.

BOOKS---A Number of Things

By Charles Hanson Towne

It is illuminating to see the original manuscript of a great author's work; more especially a great poet's work. One may ponder over the changes necessarily made, and peer into the processes of the writer's mind.

Recently the London Times printed a facsimile of part of Keats' "Ode to a Nightingale," the original of which Lord Crewe gave to the Fitzwilliam Museum, Cambridge. This is unquestionably one of the greatest treasures of its kind in existence, as, apart from the general interest, it contains about 20 important corrections and some variations from the final text. The heading, strangely enough, is "Ode to the Nightingale," and it is almost a shock to discover that the word "magic," which seems so inevitable in the penultimate line of the seventh stanza, was the result of revision. What Keats first wrote was "charm'ed the wide casements," and in the following line "perilous" was the immediate substitute for "keel-less," and "faery" is spelt "fairy."

One sees, therefore, that while a poet like Keats was undoubtedly inspired, he was never content to leave his lines as originally written in the heat of composition. Over and over these his hot brain pored, and he was not satisfied until he had achieved the exact word to make clear his meaning. Never content, he labored to perfect what he had madly and gloriously written.

There are people who believe that one so highly endowed as Keats must have composed his poems looking heavenward; that a sudden light came out of the skies to aid him, and that his poems have been handed down to us just as he first wrote them. True, he must have felt a force far beyond his own mortal energy. He must have been assisted by some divine voice, and the muses must have been lavish in their gifts to him; but always with the sure knowledge that what they bestowed would be refined, polished, glorified by the medium himself when the first blinding revelation had departed.

Leigh Hunt gave a certain Miss Bird the original manuscript of "Hyperion," now in the British Museum. Note the actual process of Keats' mind in the changes introduced by him into the text of the poem. The third line, for instance, originally stood: "Far from the quiet moon, and evening." Many a good poet would have rested here, but how marvellously the passage is illuminated by the flash of new inspiration that led Keats to alter "evening" into "eve's one star"!

Again, he had originally, a critic points out, that the giant Titaness could with a touch of her finger have "eased Ixion's pain." There is nothing pictorial in this; but how vividly the scene is brought before the mind's eye by the alteration into "stayed Ixion's wheel"!

In general, the manuscript as it left Keats' hands and reappears in Woodhouse's transcript corresponds very nearly with the poem in its published form. There are, however, a few variations, generally the result of felicitous corrections. Lines 8 and 9 had stood in the original draft:

"Not so much life as what an eagle's wing
Would spread upon a field of green-ear'd corn."

This in the manuscript becomes:

"Not so much life as on a summer's day
Robs not at all the dandelion's fleece."

A vast improvement; yet before "Hyperion" was published the second line had given place to the far finer

"Robs not one light seed from the feathered grass."

The magnificent line, "When eatherquakes jar their battlements and towers," stands in the manuscript and in Woodhouse's transcript

"When some earthquake hath shook their city towers."

In the Keats-Shelley Memorial at Rome, for which we have to thank Robert Underwood Johnson, there are now photostatic copies of most of the Keats manuscripts. Some were obtained only recently, since Amy Lowell's death, from her priceless collection. In the Morgan Library in New York is the original manuscript of "Endymion," and a thrill comes, touching the page on which was yritten:

Its loveliness increases; it will never Pass into nothingness."

GLORIA SWANSON IN BIG ROLE

"The Divine Sarah" Chosen for Star's Next Vehicle; Colleen Moore in "Success"

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

(Copyright, 1933, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Los Angeles, Sept. 28.—What an opportunity "The Divine Sarah" will give Gloria Swanson to live down some of those unwelcome comedies. Gloria, when all is said and done, is much better in serious roles than she is in light, fluffy comedy.

Joseph Schnitzer, who has the destiny of Swanson's independent RKO-Pathe productions in his hands, must have foreseen the possibilities in the turbulent love-life, the tragic experiences, and the glorious success of the great Sarah Bernhardt.

We have had so few screen biographies of great women. The men have had a monopoly in motion pictures. The autobiography of Bernhardt, her life, and other works written on her will be used to get a good script.

Louella O. Parsons

The "Success" story, belonging to Radio, is not unlike Lasky's powerful "The Power and the Glory" idea. That's why Colleen Moore, who was a shining light in "The Power and the Glory," has been taken out of the light, rather inconsequential story originally set for her to be starred in "Success." The idea briefly is that of a poor advertising man (William Gargan) who is helped into the money by his wife (Colleen Moore) and later sidetracked from home and family by another woman (Wynne Gibson). Colleen returns to Hollywood next week.

Margaret Coming Back

Margaret Sullavan, who ran away from movies because she simply couldn't stand the monotony of having scenes shot over and over again, is returning to Hollywood. The bait held out to her by Junior Laemmle is that remarkable play "Little Man, What Now?" by Fallada. It was published in Germany first and since that time has become a best seller in the United States. Miss Sullavan has been appearing in "Jezebel," the stage romance intended for Tallulah Bankhead before her illness.

Powell Gets Role

After all the hurry and worry of getting Warren William back to Warner Bros. he is out of the cast of "King of Fashion." Hal Wallis, production boss, decided only today to put William Powell in the William role. It seems the script is not ready and the Warren William picture must be made immediately. William goes into "Bedside," the story of a doctor with charming bedside manners who vamps all his feminine patients. Won't the M. D.s go to see this picture to get pointers?

The secret is out. I mean the secret of Lila Lee's sudden interest in music. Lila didn't say a word but, when she had a piano moved into her house, everyone wondered why she had gone so violently musical and had all of a sudden forsaken the night spots and the restaurants. Here's the reason: a handsome, six-foot singer, with a personality that has them all talking—I mean Nelson Eddy. I don't want to be a meanie but this is too interesting a romance to be dark and besides no one asked me to keep it quiet.

No reason in the world why Reginald Denny shouldn't get a break. He is too good an actor to have to be kept waiting for telephone calls for a job. Again I am going to do a little scolding and say why not give the actors that have been tried and proven a place in our movies instead of paging Broadway and heaven knows where to get new faces. Al Rogell has put Denny into "Fog" at Columbia. Mary Brian, Donald Cook, Maude Eburn and Robert McWade are the excellent company in which Mr. Denny will find himself.

Third for Muni

You can safely depend upon Mervyn Leroy losing no time in finishing "Hi Nelly," starring Paul Muni. The starting date is October 15 and that means Mervyn won't return to New York much before December. He marries Doris Warner, daughter of Harry Warner, as soon as "Hi Nelly" is edited and ready for the screen. This will be Mervyn's third Muni picture. Muni also gets a break in "Anthony Adverse," popular novel by Harvey Allen.

Snapshots of Hollywood:

LOLA LANE and AL HALL have set January for the tentative date of their wedding. Good wishes for their happiness come from all sides. LYLE TALBOT consoling himself with a new girl. Believe it or not, the boy at the door at Sardi's is named BILLY WILKERSON; no relative of the W. K. BILLY either. EDDIE HILLMAN talking on and on and on to MARIAN NIXON in Paris—forgetting telephone tolls. MARY PICKFORD chaperoning her niece, GWYNNE, to the football game in San Francisco. WILLIAM POWELL, RICHARD BARTHELMESS and the KENNETH MACKENNAS (KAY FRANCIS) taking the baths at Arrowhead Springs. WALTER CONNELLY bidding his wife, MEDA HARRIGAN, a sad farewell; she goes to New York to the stage; he remains here under a new Columbia contract. SKEETS GALLAGHER delighting "DUKE" by agreeing to play the White Rabbitt. ALLISON SKIPWORTH exhausted from the huge mask she wears as the duchess in Alice in Wonderland. CONSTANCE TALMADGE NETCHER is living at the hospital to be near her mother who is critically ill. NORMA TALMADGE is on her way home. That's all today.

They're Pals

Hollywood has heard many rumors in the last year or so that Charles Chaplin and Miss Paulette Goddard are married, but both remain silent. They are frequently seen together at all the smart gatherings of the film colony. Here you see them at the tennis championships held in Los Angeles. (International News Photo.)

OCTOBER WILL BRING GALA SHOW PARADE

Prospects for Season Beam Brightly

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZE

The month that caused the poet to phrase it "brown October ale," will have something punchier than poesy's touch in the legitimate show parade along the old home town's Rialto. The stage season will take on some glamour of pre-depression days, and next Monday will see the footlights flaring anew in three spots.

* * *

"Romeo and Juliet"

In mid-October Eva Le Gallienne leads into town her Civic Repertory Company. Two plays will be presented. In "Romeo and Juliet," which will be presented at the Colonial for the first half of the week beginning October 16, Miss Le Gallienne will again be seen as Juliet, Josephine Hutchinson will again play Alice in "Alice in Wonderland" and the original cast will be seen in the other characters made famous by Carroll. "Alice" will be given during the second half of the week beginning Thursday night, October 19.

The company for the season will be a large one, including aside from Miss Le Gallienne, Josephine Hutchinson, Leona Roberts, Walter Beck, Donald Cameron, Sayre Crawley, Harold Moulton, Richard Waring, Nelson Welch, Landon Herrick, David Turk, Lester Scharff, Howard da Silva and others.

Otis Skinner Stars

Bert McKenzie is planning a Hollywood premiere for the opening of "Dinner at Eight" on the Majestic screen, Oct. 9.

That same night Otis Skinner will be seen at the Colonial in a revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with Queenie Smith as Topsy.

Another notable event will be the opening of Pola Negri in "A Trip to Pressburg" as the second American Theatre Society offering at the Plymouth, Oct. 16. Richard Whorf will be in the cast.

No house has been announced for Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds," scheduled to open here Oct. 9.

Console Will Again Rule

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

The eyes of the show world will be on Boston for the next few weeks. For a good many seasons organs, many of them de luxe and installed at vast expense, have lain idle in theatres. A few houses have kept the consoles active. But not many. Sound came to the screen, and "canned" music gradually usurped the place of the living musician.

But the cycle swings like the pendulum. Old fashioned showmanship returns; simply because the public, fed up on overmuch dialogue that cramped camera action in the movies, yearned for the fleshpots of Egypt.

So RKO Keith's, beginning Saturday, is bringing back its wonderful organ into full play. It will do so in magnificent manner; Jesse Crawford, celebrated, as you know, and Mrs. Crawford will be here indefinitely. They will make the organ a real amusement item—there is no doubt of that.

This writer has already received letters from friends in other cities, asking for judgment on the venture. My prediction is, that the console is coming back in a gala way.

Venture Here Is Ended

It is curtain on the Arthur J. Beckhard venture at the Tremont. From the producers New York office comes the announcement that the closing of "Spring in Autumn" at that house also marks the wind-up of an enterprise which Beckhard originally expected would keep him housed at the Tremont well into the winter season.

Of the four productions thus far, the success was the revival of "Camille," with Jane Cowl. That ran for five weeks.

Beckhard sends word that "Spring in Autumn" with Blanche Yurka will be his first Broadway production.

Franco Tafuro is Star of Opera

By MOSES SMITH

The operatic twins, "Cavalleria Rusticana and Pagliacci," attracted another capacity audience to the Boston Opera House last night. The Chicago Opera Co. forces, on familiar ground, presented praiseworthy performances, distinguished, in the case of several principals, by excellent singing.

The most unusual singing of the evening was contributed by Franco Tafuro, who sank his teeth into the meaty role of Turiddu with the utmost gusto. Not concerned with subtleties he played the role in almost explosive fashion. Vocally he was the best Turiddu recalled in years.

Lola Monti-Gorsey

Giuseppina Paterno was a brilliant-voiced Santuzza, so brilliant, in fact, that her tones were occasionally harsh. She and the other principals met the demands of the action at least half way. Even the chorus entered in a measure into the spirit of things, with the result that the drama was not incredible. The chorus, it should be said, sang the prayer with impressive sonority under the urgent goading of Alberto Baccolini, who leaned on every note, as if his life depended on it.

There was similar intensity in the performance of "Pagliacci." Ettore Nava began the proceedings with a vigorous prologue. Edward Ransome brought down the house, of course, with the sobbing clown aria; but the unexpected success of the evening was the Nedda of Santa Biondo, whose characterization was most convincing and singing quite acceptable. Nor did she have an easy time of it during the duet with Silvio in the first act, in which a frightened tenor was made even more scared by a shouting conductor.

Mr. Baccolini tended to overdo things, his long-drawn slackening of pace (assisted by that of the singers) stretching out the evening's entertainment beyond a Godly hour. Apparently he had no intention of permitting his orchestra men to duplicate the amorphous performance of the previous evening.

In the afternoon a smaller audience enjoyed "Hansel and Gretel," in which the two principal parts were sung by Pacell Diamond and Ina De Martino, while Frances Walsingham was the witch. Harry Ladek conducted.

Bowdoin Theater

Beginning today the Bowdoin Square offers six stage acts and feature films "Captured," with Leslie Howard, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and Margare Lindsay; and "Sing Sinner Sing."

Wheat Is Basis for Movie

The Metropolitan, beginning tomorrow features on screen "Golden Harvest," with Richard Arlen, Chester Morris and Genevieve Tobin. The photoplay deals with rural happenings and is based upon the conflict of interests of wheat-growing farmer and "the pit." It was inspired by newspaper headlines of several months back. The stage show will star Vaughn de Leath. On the same program will be the 4 Baxters, Hoover and Camp, Evelyn Smithe, The Hickory Nuts, and Jerry Franks. Fabien Sevitzky and orchestra will play, and Arthur Martel has an organ interlude.

Vaughn de Leath

Exeter Theater

Esther Ralston and Conrad Veidt in "Rome Express" and Loretta Young in "Zoo in Budapest" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week.

Stage—Screen

Gayety Theater

Olson's Revue Tops Orpheum Bill

Beauty Plus Is Movie Bait

Back to films comes Conrad Nagel. He aids the fascinating Irene Dunne in "Ann Vickers," featured on the RKO B. F. Keith screen Saturday. Above they are seen in romantic mood. The picture is hailed as one of Miss Dunne's best vehicles.

Sweet Lassie Is Also Gifted

There is a grand drama in the realities of life. When the movies get down to brasstacks of motive and action, then the cinema really sparkles.

Romance weaves into the fabric of excitement, and courage goes chasing after adventure, with beauty as the ultimate reward for the valiant hero.

Talent Knows Well Its Pose

On the silver sheet the lure of beauty tends to chase the glooms. The more charming the woman, the greater is the magnetism to draw in patronage.

Alice Brady and Franklin Pangborn have a comic interlude in "Stage Mother," new photoplay premiered at Loew's State, tomorrow. Story is by Bradford Ropes, a Boston boy whose stories have been screen successes.

Genevieve Tobin, shining like the golden harvest itself in the Metropolitan's new feature. Its title is "Golden Harvest," by the bye—a drama of the Western wheat fields.

The Keyhole on the News

Preliminary Trip

Louis Orenberg, ex-representative, makes no boast of his psychological insight, but he will admit under pressure that he has done some out-laboratory work that's at least fair.

Recently he had his young nephew, aged four, visiting him. He mentioned that there were some apples in the kitchen and told the little fellow just where to find them.

"But I'm afraid to go down in the dark" said the boy, "won't you please come with me?"

"No," said Mr. Orenberg, "but I'll tell you what to do. Go down and get an apple and give it to your sister and then she'll go down with you."

So the boy did.

Hot Melody

"Money," said Morton Downey, on his recent visit to Boston, "is still the most mysterious substance I know. Now you've got it, again you haven't. I've done some trouping in my day but it was not until recently that I attained prestige enough to work hard three days for exactly nothing. Happened in Rochester. All the box office, except for the basic expenses of the theatre, was to be divided between me and the house. A grand arrangement!

"The three days were the hottest in Rochester's history. It was torture to go into any theatre without air-cooling system and this house was a heat box. I sang and I sang and I sang, while even the characters on the screen took to wiping off their foreheads. There was no money, so I just offered it up."

Pretty Soft

Frederick H. Sullivan, now running for the school committee in Boston, was the coxswain of the winning Harvard crew in 1927, has no illusions based on his splendid athletic record. He likes to tell of the young deb who congratulated him after a race.

"I think the crew was just marvelous," said the young thing, "and they were so patient with you. You'd think, when they were so nervous and working so hard, that they'd object to you just sitting there doing nothing, except bawl them out."

Jack Shepard, head bellboy at the Beacon Chambers Hotel was behind the desk at the hotel for a moment in the absence of the clerk when a man came hurrying out of the elevator carrying his own bag.

"In a hurry" he said, "just took a room 20 minutes ago, washed up and must go, I find. How much?

"Not much" said the bell boy, "maybe a dollar."

"I feel three times better" said the man, "here's three."

Bride of 3 Months Left Allen Estate

Through a will that was made a month before she became the bride of Lewis F. Allen, 68, of Lynnfield, last June, the former Anna J. Longley, 34, of Lynn, became the heir of Allen's entire estate today.

But to retain the income of $100 a month, his spacious mansion in Lynnfield, his autos and other treasures, Mrs. Allen must not marry again. Allen, who was a bank director and head of the Dinsmore Mfg. Co., of Salem, died two weeks ago.

RIVAL SERIES PILOTS ON THE AIR

Cronin to Talk With Terry Tonight

By N. F. T.

Something of a chance to redeem a lot of monumental microphone flops is noted on the dial deck this evening (WEEI) between 8 and 9 o'clock. It's part of the Rudy Vallee hour, which is probably the proverbial cake taking network presentation tuned in among the most faithful listeners. As for the flops referred to, your loudspeaker lookout here has in mind numerous "last minute" interviews involving sport realm celebrities just before the big battle. Meaning whatever form of spirited athletic competition happens to be impending. Thus and so we come to young Messrs. Joe Cronin, pilot of those American League champions who wears Washington insignia, and Bill Terry, boss of the National League top nine out of New York. Both shall be heard in a timely tete-a-tete during said coast to coasted 60 minutes.

RADIO RECOLLECTION

Invariably these studio salutations offer little in the way of satisfaction or even added interest. Tonight, however, let us hold high hope the "Bill and Joe" broadcast will break away and reflect a rip-snorting rivalry such as should stand out when two teams await the annual play ball announcement at World Series time. Never will your baseball balmy Uncle N. F. T. forget the 1932 occasion that brought Charley (Cubs) Grimm and Joe (Yankees' McCarthy together in a glaring sound sanctum spotlight. Ben (Old Maestro) Bernie was responsible—remember? It was mostly a case of "You certainly have a great club there, Charley," to which came the reply, "We most assuredly have great respect for your fighting outfit too, Joe," or similar meaningless words to that effect. Even a little humor would have helped.

Naturally it is essential to be courteous and sportsmanlike. Just the same, two leading big league chieftains would be readily forgiven if they avoided all the sauve "Alphonse and Gaston" gestures in favor of fundamental facts as to why their respective horsehide heavers should triumph over the other outfit. No offensive boasting, but likewise no obvious backing and filling. Baseball fans have no time for pink tea talk. May "Joe and Bill" go so far as to actually get mad tonight for Rudy.

CARDS ARE OUT . . . VERY SMART ONES . . . Mr. and Mrs. John Silsbey Lawrence request the pleasure of your company at a small dance on Saturday, Oct. 14, at 10:30 . . . Essex County Club . . . Did you notice that daughter's name was not on the invitation, but of course it is in honor of debutante, Miss Isabel, who steps into the social spotlight this season . . .

The Country Club will be the setting for a tea dance on Friday, Oct. 11, from 4 until 7 . . . to greet Mary Jane Dewey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Dewey of Belmont, and Katherine Elizabeth Baker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Baker of Belmont . . .

Isabel Lawrence

The Barclay Club is really opening on Saturday night of this week . . . many improvements and new features are promised to old members and Ruby Newman himself, in person, will conduct a 12-piece orchestra . . .

We received with interest an invitation to the American House opening of a Rathskeller also on Saturday night of this week . . . Leo Hannon and his 14-piece orchestra will play for dancing from supper time through the evening and Ranny Weeks and Alice O'Leary will greet you . . . Do we remember the good old days when a rendezvous at the American House Rathskeller was the high spot in the week and a glass of sparkling Burgundy was our most exciting indiscretion . . . we whispered about it for weeks afterward? And that shy kiss in the taxi on the way home kept blushes on our check for days just to think of it . . . Oh, HUM! Youth was fun! Girls didn't NEED rouge in those gay days . . . Romance made them beautiful . . . Happy Days, Rathskeller!

Series of Symphony Luncheons Planned

THE COPLEY-PLAZA IS INAUGURATING a series of Symphony Luncheons, the sponsors of which are Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller, Mrs. Frank G. Allen, Mrs. Nelson W. Howard and Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French . . . the first one is on Friday, October 6, at noon, and everyone who attends Symphony concerts and who would like to talk over the program before hearing it are invited to the luncheon . . .

Miss Katherine de Pierrefeu, daughter of Mrs. Joseph D. Leland of Milton, is visiting her mother . . . she is returning soon to California to stay with her sisters who are among the smart young married U. S. Army set in that port . . .

* * *

One of the smartly dressed debutantes of this season is Laura "Nicky" Robbins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Robbins of Weston . . . Her mother is not a Bostonian but was a St. Louis belle . . .

The Potter Palmers, 3d, (Rose Movius) have moved Mrs. A. L. West Movius back to Boston from Squam and will motor home to Chicago after the charity dance at the Hotel Brunswick next month. . .

The Lloyd Nichols of Beverly Farms, who have been at Nonquit on the Cape this summer, will spend the winter at Yarmouthport, as will the John Simpkins . . . a new Country Day School has just been established on the Cape which will provide for the children of the "new poor"

* * *

Realtors Meet in Newport

Newport, Sept. 28—The 10th annual convention of the Massachusetts Association of Real Estate Boards will take place here.

Here is a cordial invitation to you to use the Free Rental Bureau whenever you desire complete information about any kind of rentals, furnished or unfurnished, hotel or business location.

Debut Planned at Country Club

One of the season's important debutante parties is the dance which Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Cabot and Mr. and Mrs. S. Parkman Shaw, Jr., are giving to present their daughters, Miss Nancy Graves Cabot and Miss Eleanor Stockton Shaw.

The dance will be given on October 20 at the Country Club in Brookline, with an ushers dinner preceding it at the club.

BENEFIT ON MALCOLM FORBES ESTATE

ALL SET FOR -:- -:- MORNING HUNT

MRS. I. TUCKER BURR WALTER CHANNING ANDREW MacGREGOR BRAGDON MacGREGOR

GETTING UP EARLY TO PARTICIPATE in a hunt is one of the fall recreations of smart society and this quartet were right on hand for a recent Medfield Hunt. Mrs. I. Tucker Burr, Jr., the former Miss Evelyn Thayer, of Needham, was in charge of the hunt and assisting her were Mr. Walter Channing of Dover, Mr. Andrew MacGregor and Mr. Bragdon MacGregor, the latter two being joint masters of the hounds. (Boston American Photo.)

Tennis Benefit on Forbes Estate

A TREAT FOR TENNIS enthusiasts will be the last good match of the season when Miss Sarah Palfrey, Malcolm Hill, Mrs. George Whitman and Robert Turner play an exhibition mixed doubles match this afternoon at the garden party on the estate of Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes, 280 Adams st., Milton. The match is scheduled for 3 o'clock.

The proceeds of the garden fete and tennis match, to which the admission fee is extremely modest, will benefit the Radcliffe College Scholarship fund.

Other attractions offered on the spacious grounds of Mrs. Forbes are the Strolling Puppeteers who will give several plays and dances for the children. Mrs. Weston Howland (Alice Forbes) is getting her ponies in hand for the youngsters to ride, as well as a pony cart for little tots, and cider, hot coffee, doughnuts and ice cream will be offered for sale by Miss Mary Bradley, assisted by Miss Esther and Miss Margaret Osgood and Miss Joanna Dickey.

Mrs. Stanley Cobb will have charge of a large assortment of cakes, candies, fruits and vegetables, donated by Milton friends, which may be purchased to take home.

The following recent graduates of Milton Academy who are now students at Radcliffe, have been asked to assist the committee this afternoon: The Misses Pauline cott, Eunice Crocker, Hildegarde Forbes, Polly Proctor, Lucy Pres- Hinchman and Helena Thompson.

The committee includes: Mrs. Charles F. Morse, Jr., chairman; Mrs. Stanley Cobb, Mrs. W. L. W. Field, Mrs. Roderick Stebbins, Miss Mary Bradley and Mrs. Robert M. Blackall. In case of inclement weather the fete will be postponed until tomorrow.

Mrs. Lawrence Is New Chairman

The Ladies' Committee of the New England Medical Center had it's first meeting of the year on Monday, to make plans for the Boston Floating Hospital and the Boston Dispensary for the coming year and to elect officers for 1933-34.

Mrs. Richard Lawrence was elected chairman, Mrs. Francis S. Moulton, vice president, Mrs. William Gray, treasurer, and Mrs. Henry S. Laughlin, secretery.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. FREDERICK C. FLETCHER of Brookline, who arrived in New York from England on Tuesday aboard the Olympic, were met at the pier by Charles Fletcher and W. C. Todd. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher were guests at the Biltmore in New York before returning home.

Proparvulis Club Plans Dance at Brae Burn Next Month

THE AUTUMN DANSANT of the Proparvulis Club, at the Brae Burn Country Club, West Newton, on Friday Evening, Oct. 6, will usher in a season of gayety and good fellowship. October Wedding

MR. AND MRS. JOHN J. AHERN of Crescent ave., Melrose announce the engagement of their daughter, Dorothy Katherine, to Mr. Edward J. McCarthy of Highland ave., Malden. The wedding will take place late in October.

BOSTON WAS WELL REPRESENTED on board the Europa which sailed Tuesday from New York. Mr. Charles J. O'Malley of Brookline, with his son Charles and his daughter, Miss Grace G. O'Malley, are among the guests. Miss O'Malley will enter Maison de la Harte in Switzerland, near Laucanne for a winter of study. Mr. O'Malley and his son will return early in November.

Miss Barbara Gano of Belmont has chosen a school in England for the winter and is a passenger on board. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth T. Gano.

OF BOSTON INTEREST IS the engagement of Miss Alice Denton Haynes, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Haynes of Phenix, R. I., to Mr. Robert Scott Monahan of Pawtucket, R. I.

Miss Haynes attended Simmons College in Boston, where she has many friends and was graduated with the class of 1929. Mr. Monahan is a graduate of Dartmouth College. He received his degree of master of forestry from Yale, in 1931 and has been connected with the United States Forest Service in Idaho, New Mexico and New Hampshire. He is the author of "Mt. Washington Reoccupied" which will be published next month, and was stationed at the Mt. Washington Observatory, last winter. He is at present in charge of the Civilian Conservation Corps at the foot of Mt. Washington.

Chatty Notes of Society

MR. AND MRS. JOHN S. BRIDGES, 3d, sailed yesterday from New York for a honeymoon in Bermuda. Mrs. Bridges is the former Jessie Tolman, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Henry Tolman, Jr., of Salem. She was married last Saturday at an elaborate wedding in Salem. Upon their return from Bermuda the bridal couple will make their home in Marblehead.

MISS HELEN COTTON, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley W. Cotton of Alveston st., Jamaica Plain, has left for Pennsylvania where she has entered the freshman class at Bryn Mawr College. As she will be away all winter she will probably not be formally presented but may be entertained at several parties in her honor during the Christmas holidays.

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

THERE ARE SUCH VAST and interesting differences in people and above all what we need today is tolerance. Tolerance of each other and a vast human understanding. The small groups whose tastes and habits maintain fashion are neither better nor worse than the rest of us. But what a world of discrimination there is. Without seeming snobbish, and here we pause to state (that barring nothing a snob is the greatest menace to real society) it is difficult to differentiate between the customs of distinguished people. Those who set the fashions, and the customs of the general public who wish to follow fashion, or who say that they do.

Martha Chapin

It is the more difficult since the differences between them are at once very marked and apparent socially. And yet, very trivial as far as the great issues of life are concerned. These go on no matter how we dress or don't dress, behave or fail to behave, and the importance of meeting them adequately is more considerable than the importance of just knowing how ordinary letters should be written, frocks worn and tables set.

Mrs. John R. Chapin, who with her charming family has summered at Cohasset and only lately returned to her home in Brookline, is one of the society matrons whose taste in etiquette is instinctively fine. She does a great deal of entertaining and one may always be assured that her parties will be correct in every detail.

Her daughter, Miss Martha Chapin, who made her debut so successfully last year, has her mother's ability to organize social functions with the same correctness of detail. She is an active member of the Junior League where she lunches quite frequently and also of that elite organization, the Vincent Club.

Her charming little frock of brown and white silk print is most becoming to her. She still bears the signs of a glamorous summer at the seashore in her wholesome tan. Her hair which she parts attractively on the side curls about her face and low in her neck. We feel that the Harvard-Yale dance she is assisting in arranging the evening before the game will profit greatly by her social distinction and eclat.

Blue Ensemble

ANOTHER YOUNG LADY who is always exceedingly smart and can be depended upon to attend to the social details is Mrs. Forester A. Clark who was before her marriage Miss Katherine Burrage. At the Ritz Fashion Show yesterday she appeared in gorgeous sapphire blue ensemble with grey astrician trimming and beautifully fitted in every line and detail.

Mrs. Russell Burrage, her sister-in-law wore a tailored ensemble of navy blue exceedingly smart for street wear. Mrs. Burrage also succeded in attending to those all important details.

Mrs. Richard Saltonstall of Brookline is another well informed and smart matron of society. She is looking especially trig this season in the two modish shades of brown and green which makes such a smart ensemble.

"Music in the Air," that charming light opera at the Colonial has certainly sustained its interest for the lovers of fine dramatic talent. The large and colorful audience attended Tuesday evening. Mr. and Mrs. Terry Collens were among the early arrivals. Mrs. Collens looking exceedingly chic in a black crepe frock with dainty ermine fur, and a matching evening cape tasteful, but outstandingly good looking. Mrs. Collens is that accomplished young lady who danced and sang so engagingly at a benefit cabaret under the auspices of James Cunningham Grey last spring.

Brown Tweed

PETITE AND ATTRACTIVE Mrs. Sinclair Weeks, wife of Mayor Weeks of Newton wore a brown and white silk print with a good looking brown tweed swagger coat. Mrs. Weeks is an exceedingly charming young person and in spite of her large family finds much time for her varied and important social activities. She is a charming hostess, always animated and exceedingly cordial.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Moffat seemed to greatly enjoy the charming music. Mrs. Moffat enhanced her dark, good looks with a gorgeous sapphire blue semi-formal frock, outstandingly good looking.

TIME TO CONCENTRATE ON WINTER COAT -:- ACHIEVING PERFECT SHOULDER LINE

By Victoria Gaines

IT'S TIME TO THINK of your winter coat—even if the very thought of wooly fabrics and warm furs leaves you feeling positively wilted! These are some of the style points that you should know when you go coat shopping this season:

Winter coat materials look rough but are really smooth this paradox being achieved by weaving a rough and ready pattern into a smooth-fabric. Dressy coats are all fur-trimmed at the top—to give that "chesty" look that's so smart and all collars come close up around the face.

Sleeves come in for their share of fur trimming, too in strips and inserts of fur. But below the waist these coats are absolutely plain—nothing is allowed to break the straight, slim silhouette that is the fashion's darling this season.

Important furs are—Persian lamb, caracul and mink in the flat furs—and silver fox and blue fox among the fluffy furs. Important colors are black, brown, eel gray and green.

A Word to the Wise

A word to the wise. With all the fur trimmings at the shoulders and sleeves of these new coats, there's only one way to avoid looking top-heavy, particularly if you're short and stout. That is to wear a high-crowned hat with these coats. "High hats, high in the crown and full in front help to balance the bulky appearance of the new coats, and thank Fashion all the new hats are that way this winter!"

Star Dust

Snatched a hasty bite between rehearsals at a popular theatrical [illegible] place we saw

NANCY CARROLL — having lunch with her husband, believe it or not—in a brown wool suit and an Alphonsine hat with the new turned-back brim.

COLLEEN MOORE looking like a little school girl in a round sailor hat and a plaid wool frock with a big collar tied under her chin.

LEONORE [illegible] a hot cup of coffee [illegible] a [illegible] better [illegible] escort and wearing a [illegible] suit with a [illegible] blouse of the same color and gold buttons and [illegible] leather belt setting off the costume.

Bedroom Slippers

For the first time, we've seen some bedroom slippers that were really comfortable and attractive, too. You know, you can't really be comfortable in fancy, high-heeled mules—and the flat-heeled ones always look like grandmother's Christmas present. But these new mules are of soft rabbit fur and silk—cozy, yet cute-looking. And they're perfectly flat to let you pad comfortably around the bedroom floor.

Bare-Back Gowns

Of course, we're all going nudist about the backs of our evening frocks—they're cut low in back and high in front as we told you some time ago. But what to do about it when you're [illegible] in the draft from an open doorway [illegible] bare-back gown [illegible] words of cheer and comfort today the new evening capes and jackets.

Over your backless evening gown you can wear one of those fluffy feather capes or boas of ostrich feathers that are no warmer than a breakfast jacket but which are so cute that you will probably wear them anyway and take your chances of catching cold. Or you can go in for something much more substantial [illegible] those velvet evening jackets [illegible] fitted little affair in gay colors.

These jackets with the [illegible] waists and huge [illegible] sleeves make you look like a quaint Mid-Victorian maiden—and go awfully well with some of the new Mid-Victorian formal fashions.

In Cape or Jacket

Or [illegible] can be most comfortable of [illegible] cape or jacket [illegible] wrap [illegible] Moore [illegible] capes and jackets of the same material that come with most [illegible] frocks. These serve the same purpose of covering [illegible] backless evening gown — and make a double-duty costume out of your evening gown as well.

Feathers Grow on Muffs for Evening

FEATHERS [illegible] feathers on our shoulders [illegible] feathers even on our handkerchiefs [illegible] feathers sprout on the new evening muffs? Yes, indeed, muffs with feathers will be quite the thing for the smartest debbies and their young sisters to carry to the evening frolics. And then they won't have to bother with a pocket or an evening bag for their mad money. Hidden in the feathers of this graceful little muff is a zipper arrangement with change purse and powder puff arrangement all present and accounted for . . . and done in white satin, if you please.

While dancing, the young woman carries the muff over her arm. There you are for a dash of something new.

PANDORA TELLS YOU

DEAR PANDORA.

I love my wife . . . she is kind, considerate, companionable . . . everything a man could ask. She manages to be completely well-dressed on what money I give her—which, I admit is far more than I can afford—our home is well-run, she cheerfully does all she can for my comfort. We have had a very happy married life—and neither of us would think of changing for all the money in the world.

But there is one thing that is eating my heart out, and literally getting under my skin. Last Thanksgiving Day she contracted an insidious fondness for walnuts, which has rapidly grown to an obsession. Had I realized the potential of what I so blithely considered an idle and passing whim, I should have banned walnuts from our home. She leaves a trail of shells all over the house, so that the children now follow the path of shells to locate her. She reads in bed—with a few walnuts at hand—and let me tell you that cracker-crumbs are as chaff in this situation. They're everywhere . . . all over the lot . . . I'm going nuts . . . what shall I do?

COLONEL.

DEAR COLONEL:

Do not despair . . . You love your wife and she loves you. There is even the chance that she loves you more than she does the other nuts. I heartily sympathize with you. It does seem that she is becoming a bit thoughtless, but in the cheerful give-and-take of married life there are many little things that should be borne with as much equanimity as possible. Minor idiosyncrasies of either of the parties must be tempered with a bit of compromise. That is the secret of a happy married life . . . compromise. Try and overlook the little things that somewhat jar on each other's nerves. But you should be firm. Take a stand somewhat along this line. . . . "Darling . . . nuts on the hearth I do not mind . . . shells on the lawn, yes . . . absolutely . . . even on the rugs, as long as my slippers last . . . but nowhere else!

Something like that, Colonel, I think would unquestionably do the trick. Just put the whole thing right up to her in a tactful way . . . be nice, but be firm. Come out of your shell.

Yours . . . PANDORA.

MRS. COSTELLO IN THANKS TO THE PRESS

Being an unusual young woman, as described during her recent trial and acquittal, Mrs. Jessie B. Costello of Peabody today took time to express thanks to the girls and boys of the press for the fair treatment accorded her while under fire on charge of poisoning her husband.

"I have tried several times to compose a note to you which would not make you feel that I was a person imposing on a generosity so amply indicated by you and all the boys and girls of the press each day," read her neatly engraved note to each of those who 'covered' her.

"May I say," it continued, "that your treatment of me as an individual in dire circumstances was eminently fair and I take this opportunity to thank you, and whomever assisted you in the work which, of course, you had to do.

"I am a person who faced trouble with only the assurance of your help and assistance.

"May God bless every one of you!
"Sincerely,
"JESSIE B. COSTELLO."

Warfare Now 2000 Times Greater

As a matter of statistics, modern warfare is 2000 times worse than warfare in the Middle Ages, according to figures of Prof. Pitirim Alexandrovich Sorokin of Harvard.

Working through four years of research with three prominent historians and two professors of strategy in military academies, Prof. Sorokin weighed through all the wars the size of the armies, the length of battles, the extent of the losses, the proportion of the warring population to the whole population of the countries involved and the number of countries taking part.

Wars during the Middle Ages were found to have been the least terrible, Prof. Sorokin said today, and the Number 1 was assigned to those occurring between the 11th and 15th centuries.

"Since the 15th century, the trend has been definitely upward.

"By the opening of the 17th century the index is at 10, and at the opening of the 19th century has risen gradually to 200, showing that war at that time was 200 times as intense as during the Middle Ages.

"In the past 25 years the indices are so high that it is absolutely greater than all European wars together between the 11th and 20th centuries. The index number is more than 2000 for all Europe."

EXPECT G. G. A. TO INDORSE PARKMAN

By BERNARD J. DOHERTY

The Good Government Association's decision as to whom it will endorse in the mayoral campaign may be made today. The executive committee, composed of seven members headed by Atty. George R. Nutter, is scheduled to meet in the association headquarters, 44 School st.

None of the candidates will be present, it was given out, and the strictest secrecy is being maintained by the committee.

It was the general belief that the endorsement would be held up until time for withdrawal of candidates expired, around Oct. 25, but there have been hints of a change in that plan.

CHOICE DOWN TO 3

It is fairly well known that the committee has narrowed the field of nine candidates to three, insofar as this endorsement is concerned. The three are Senator Henry Parkman Jr., Republican, and Frederick W. Mansfield and Judge Michael H. Sullivan, Democrats. Mansfield four years ago was supported by the "Goo Goos" and eight years ago, former Mayor Malcolm E. Nichols, in a field of ten candidates, was the fair-haired boy.

This year, everyone was convinced that Mansfield would repeat until Henry Parkman came into the contest. The politicians are placing their money now on Senator Parkman to win the honor. The endorsement is regarded as good in other years for from 15,000 to 25,000 votes. What it will be worth in this battle is a matter of conjecture.

When Judge Sullivan entered the lists, there was talk that he might have some promises, but that possibility is more or less discounted now about town.

FOE OF INNES

In view of the odds on Parkman to bring home the bacon, on this three-cornered selection, attention is focused for the moment on the Republican end of the non-partisan mayoral scrap.

Parkman's chief Republican opponent, former Mayor Nichols, is supported by Charles H. Innes. Eight years ago, the Back Bay, in which Innes had been a power for years, came through in great shape for Mal.

But three years later Parkman astounded everybody by challenging Innes' leadership. In that contest for delegate to the Republican National convention in the old [illegible] congressional district Parkman defeated Innes handily. The vote was: Parkman 8059, Innes [illegible]. In Ward 19, home section of Nichols, the vote was: Parkman 1156, Innes 850. The result in the two Back Bay wards is also interesting. In Ward 4, Innes beat Parkman by a margin of 487 votes, but in Parkman's own Ward 5, the result was: Parkman, 2531; Innes 577.

A significant feature of this election was the fact that Nichols at the time was the city's chief executive.

NRA AIDS JOBS, SAYS GREEN

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Big employment gains were attributed to the Roosevelt recovery program today by William Green, American Federation of Labor chieftain, but employer-labor difficulties—this time involving Henry Ford—continued to worry NRA officials.

Green said the federation's estimate that 815,000 persons returned to work in August represented greater progress in employment than in any month since depression. He counted the remaining unemployed at 11,000,000 and said relief need this winter will be greater than ever before.

Coincident with Green's comments were fresh intimations that a change in monetary policies to aid farm prices may be forthcoming soon. Dr. James H. Rogers of Yale returned from a talk with President Roosevelt to confer with ranking Federal financial officers.

What has come over him? Is he actually starting in business for himself?

At San Juan, Puerto Rico, a play was produced by Spanish actors called "Gore's Hell." At the end of the play, which packed the Municipal Theater, the audience was delighted with a genuine cockfight on the stage.

The pleasure of enjoying cockfights, publicly and legally, the Puerto Ricans owe to the governor sent to Puerto Rico by this "civilized nation," who thought legalizing cock-fights might attract tourists. If President Roosevelt were not so busy he might tell the Puerto Rico governor that the United States hoped it had passed beyond the cock-fighting, bull-baiting stage.

Riches take wings. A great industrialist who had created jobs for thousands of men and paid out millions in wages, killed himself to escape the humiliation of failure.

Another industrialist of the Midwest, a persistent builder, useful worker, sits in his great house which no longer belongs to him, a bankrupt.

Yesterday J. B. Thompson, once called "one of the world's richest men," died in poverty and actual want in Uniontown, Pa., in a great house, dilapidated, with the weeds growing around it. "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth."

Mr. F. B. Campbell, who has $250,000 worth of gold bars, tells the government about it, is arrested and proposes to test in court the government's Constitutional right to say "Give me your gold." Many will be interested in that, apart from any gold ownership. For, if, today the government can legally say "Give me your gold," tomorrow it might say: "Give me your bicycle and your Belgian hares," the day after that: "Give me your underwear."

Once government establishes the right to confiscate property without due process of law, at a price fixed by itself, regardless of old-fashioned ideas, and the Constitution, many, many things might happen. After all, the abhorred Communists only assert their right to take the property of others.

RHEUMATISM NOT A DISEASE

Agree Highest Medical Authorities

Rheumatism is a symptom complex, or, in other words, a static toxin at some place or places in the body that may be and often is causing pain or lameness in locations far removed from where the cause exists.

For instance, the infection may be in the teeth, tonsils or intestines while the pain and swelling may be in the arms or legs.

If you are suffering from rheumatism you should be thoroughly examined by a competent physician, that the cause may be located and properly treated.

But during this time, Nature will be greatly aided if the pain is relieved. Certainly constant pain retards the sufferer's prompt recovery from almost any disease.

SALICON will stop the pain harmlessly and work in harmony with your physician's treatment.

This Is Life

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Among the letters I have received which discuss from various angles my article, "Is College Worth While," in the September Forum there is one at hand with a rather unusual angle. Most of them are inclined to believe I am too captious in my estimate of candidates for college, too inclined to underestimate the general run of them. These letters would put the blame on the college instead of where I put it the human material the college has to deal with.

But here is a man writing from New York who believes that he is just as well educated as if he had been to college but who cannot get the kind of white collar job he prefers (and is fitted for) because he cannot produce a college degree. His feeling is that the college brand or mark is too much emphasized and that often such a brand is misleading in that it pretends to certify that a young man is educated and cultured when he is nothing of the sort.

There are undoubtedly many men and women in this writer's case. Now that colleges are opening and many properly qualified people will find themselves financially unable to attend, this plea for the value of self-education may be well worth considering.

It is true that the writer's circumstances are somewhat unusual. He attended a preparatory school in England for five years and he agrees heartily with the Henry Goddard Leach, the editor of The Forum, as to the lasting value of a good preparatory school. Mr. Leach believes that often they are more responsible for success in life than the college itself. Then my correspondent travelled in Europe, itself an excellent means of education. His chief interests were languages and literature, in which he has read widely by himself. These of course are subjects in which self education is more possible than, for instances, the sciences. Anyway, he believes that his reading background is probably superior to the average college trained man.

"It galls me when the official in charge wants to know about college, whether I went. It's so hard to explain why I didn't go. They haven't the time nor the inclination to stop and listen as to why I think I have had as good an education as the college graduate. It just seems like the easy way out 'What—no college? Only college men wanted here' as if culture and learning didn't come out of books just the same. To them college is just a veneer over the rough surface of intelligence. They dont bother to scratch below the surface and find out if a non-college man has the same high qualifications."

Parenthetically, I am inclined to make a non-ethical suggestion. I am afraid that I should be strongly tempted to say, simply, that I went to college in England, on the assumption that a good English preparatory school is probably at least equal to the undergraduate training of our American colleges. In the kind of jobs my correspondent wants an English education might even be considered an asset!

"I am in the same unemployment boat as my college friends. They spent an awful lot to get their education, where I stopped short, not for lack of money but because I went into business for a while. Without exaggeration, and with some feeling for modesty, if there is any knowledge that the college student knows better than I do (sic), unless it is of a purely technical nature, I'll retire to the South Seas and dive for pearls!

"And yet when it comes to my showing up in an office advertising for intelligent workers, the college grad gets in first and, like as not, sometimes disappoints his employer.

"I myself am an American, but my five years of intensive education in England have made me realize how thoroughly they do it over there, teaching education for life's sake instead of for the sake of a living. I think Americans place too much emphasis on college-made culture. That is a machine-made culture. A man can be cultured truly only when he forces it on himself more through love of it than through graduation requirements. I did this, and I think I am entitled to a hearing equally with the college graduate."

I think he is. There is no doubt that a college degree has become a kind of automatic yardstick in certain occupations, just as a high school diploma has become a sine qua non in many other fields, in many of which native intelligence, good sense, willingness to work hard and desire to get on are probably more important than book-learning. This think, is the more true since neither the college degree nor the high school diploma is any guarantee nowadays that the holder has any genuine book learning or is really disciplined by education.

Mother wit, horse sense, the wisdom of the folk, experience, and aptitude seem no longer to serve man as well as the isms and the ologies. And yet with all this indiscriminate education it is doubtful whether man is solving his problems much better than in the past. Possibly. Possibly we need to return to the old standards for measuring men.

PATRONAGE SEEKERS HAUNT UNITED STATES OFFICERS

HIRED KILLERS' BEATING BARED BY LAWYER

Finelli Says 2 Lured Him Into Attack to Avenge Contractor

Atty Joseph Finelli of Ashmont ave., Newton, today took the stand in East Cambridge court to tell how he was beaten almost to death last June after being lured into a vacant house in Watertown.

He was the first witness before Judge Collins and a jury in the trial of David R. Cornell, 27, of Watertown, formerly of Providence, who faces charges of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to murder and armed robbery.

Pasqualee Citrone, 44, of Winchester rd., Newton, a contractor, is accused of being an accessory before the fact. He is said to have hired Cornell to kill Finelli.

Dist. Atty. Paul R. Folsey said that the state would show that Finelli had been brutally clubbed by Cornell and another man at the contractor's behest after the latter had had trouble with Finelli over some property. The beating of Finelli only stopped, according to the prosecutor, when Cornell and his companion left the lawyer for dead.

Finelli, who took the stand after the jury had viewed the house in which the assault is alleged to have occurred, said that he had been named trustee in bankruptcy for Citrone's Watertown house. The latter, he said, threatened him seeral days prior to June 12 on which date the house was to have been sold at auction.

BEGGED FOR HIS LIFE

No bidders appeared at the sale, but that evening a man who gave his name as "Higgins" told Finelli that he was interested in the place and would like to see it; according to the lawyer.

No sooner had they entered the vacant house, said Finelli, than "Higgins" grabbed his arms. Cornell stepped forth at that moment and began to punch his face. They dragged him through the place and threw him into a cellar, he testified.

"He's not dead yet," he heard Cornell say when the two reached his side at the bottom of the stairs. Finelli testified that he begged them not to take his life. Instead, they clubbed him into semi-consciousness.

"Take my money and let me go," Finelli said he begged them when he managed to rouse himself.

"We don't want your money, Citrone is paying us plenty to kill you," Cornell answered, according to the lawyer.

As Finelli gave this testimony, Cornell, who has been imprisoned since last June, leaped from his chair to shout:

"You're a liar!"

He was severely reprimanded by the judge, once order was restored Finelli resumed his story to say that the pair, after jumping on his stomach, agreed he was dead. It was then that he felt them take the $30 he had in his pocket.

He said he finally managed to crawl up the back stairs of the house to a porch. He remembers nothing more until his awakening in a hospital bed.

He said he was in the hospital forfive weeks and is not yet over the results of the beating.

P. O. Legionnaires Leave Tomorrow

With the best wishes of Postmaster William E. Hurley 350 legionnaires and friends of William L. Harris, American Legion, Post, composed of employes of the Boston postal district, leave the North Station at 8 30 a. m., Friday, for the legion convention in Chicago, Oct 2 to 5.

Ten cars have been chartered for the trip and the party will be in charge of Commdr. Andrew E. Mangan and Commd elect Charles Rinnig chairman of the Chicago convention committee.

LACK OF FUNDS HALTS START OF BYRD

South Pole Leader Says Cash Needed to Start Trip

Financial difficulties face the second Antarctic expedition of Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd as preparations for the sailing of his flagship, rapidly near completion it was revealed today.

Admiral Byrd has frankly admitted that a few thousand dollars were needed in addition before he would consider allowing the remainder of the party to leave here aboard his flagship, the Jacob Ruppert.

START NEXT WEEK

He declared the additional funds were for items necessary to the safety of his men and that until he was assured of them, he would delay the sailing.

Meanwhile Capt. R. A. English, commander of the steamship Bear of Oakland, of the Byrd expedition, docked his craft at the pier of the Tidewater Oil Company in Bayonne to take aboard fuel and lubricants for the use of the airplanes of the expedition.

The Bear arrived in Bayonne after a twenty-two-hour trip from Boston. She will take on twenty tons of fuel oil, ten tons of lubricating oil, one ton of gdease, half a ton of kerosene, 1000 gallons of marine engine oil and several hundred pounds of cup grease. The Jacob Ruppert another ship of the expedition, will carry the gasoline.

The huge Curtiss Condor biplane, which Admiral Byrd will use in his flight over the South Pole, and his projected exploration of the Antarctic continent, was formally christened at East Boston airport yesterday afternoon.

A bottle of wine was broken over the propellor nose by Mrs. Mabel Horlick Sidley and the plane was christened the William Horlick, in honor of her father, one of the backers of the expedition.

PLAN PANAMA FLIGHT

The plane was later flown to Curtiss Airport, North Beach, N. Y., where pontoons will be fitted. This work is expected to take three or four days. The plane will then be taken aboard the Jacob Ruppert and reassembled on the ice at Little America.

Work of loading food and other supplies aboard the Ruppert was going on at Boston Navy Yard. Admiral Byrd plans to fly to Panama and board the Ruppert there.

Waltham Flags to Fly at Night

Waltham will have an NRA parade next Monday night and the National flag will be flown, both from the Common and City Hall staffs and in the line of march, according to a pronouncement of Mayor Patrick J. Duane.

Protests were made to Mayor Duane last night that the flag code called for the lowering of the Stars and Stripes at sundown and it would therefore be disrespectful to allow the flags to be flown at night.

Never at a loss for an answer Mayor Duane towered to his full height and sang:

"And the rockets red glare; the bombs bursting in air Gave proof through the night that our flag was still there."

Counsel Assigned in 'Torch Murder'

Atty. John F. Daley was appointed in Middlesex court to defend Mrs. Annie Wita, 42, of Harding st., Cambridge recently indicted for the "torch murder" of her husband, Anthony Wita. The government charges Mrs. Wita poured gasoline on her husband's bed and set it afire while he slept. Daly was appointed because the widow reported she had no funds for a defense. No date has been set for the trial.

Air Trail Fails -:- -:- College Prospectors

EDWARD A. GORANSON — CHARLES J. HUBBARD — C. A. W. ALLEN

The air trail in the chase for gold hidden in the deep of the Labrador forests has failed, at least, for the present Charles J. Hubbard, former Harvard football star, and his flying companions. Hubbard, Allen and Goranson landed here yesterday after a two months' prospecting trip. About all they brought back of value was a model of an Eskimo kayak which they are shown examining. They had an exciting trip. (Boston American Photo.)

QUIZ OF CRASH GIRL REFUSED

True, the prospectors carried back 130 pounds of gold ore but [illegible] proved to be of a [illegible] not more than $6 worth of gold to a ton of ore.

But the Indians, they believe, hold the secret to richer gold deposits and will never lead white men to the find unless they can be taught to forget their fears of an airplane.

Faulty maps and their inability to lure Indians into the [illegible] count[illegible] said Charles J. Hubbard, [illegible] Harvard football captain, Dr. Edward A. Goranson, Harvard geologist, and C. W. (Red) Allen of Framingham, former navy pilot.

They explained that Indians could negotiate trails themselves but white men could not hope to [illegible]

Hubbard, Dr. Goranson were members of an expedition of seven headed by W. E. Averill of Bangor, Me., a forestry engineer. Rich deposits of iron were reported by the expedition but its members said the huge transportation costs would eliminate it as a profitable venture.

LAWLER FLAYS SILVERMAN

Men like Corporation Counsel Samuel Silverman have done more to injure people of his race than all the Hitlers or Lawlers ever born, it was declared today in a statement by Asst. Corporation [illegible] Henry E. Lawler.

Lawler, replying to Silverman's statement of yesterday, accusing his assistant of supporting Hitler in his ill-treatment of Jews, challenged Silverman to produce any letter of Lawler's declaring the Hitler support such as described yesterday by the corporation counsel.

The assistant also intimated that if Silverman really declared for his candidate in the mayoralty fight, "then all the good Jewish people will be found supporting Mr. Mansfield."

SAWYER'S BEER HEARING SET

Charges made by Rep. Roland D. Sawyer of Ware of unmoral conditions in certain establishments licensed to sell beer in Boston and several other large cities of the state, are to be investigated at a public [illegible] Beverage Control Commission.

The date for the hearing has been tentatively set for next Thursday at 10 a. m. in the State House.

Sawyer based his charges upon testimony given by two men at meetings held by the legislative committee created to draft a hard liquor law of which he is a member.

Chairman William P. Hayes of the A. B. C. said today that the names of the two men who appeared before the legislative committee are known to his commission and their presence at the public hearing is assured.

STRIKERS FACE COURT IN RIOT

Off[illegible] of the striking garment workers' union today declared they would carry their fight against police, who arrested 20 pickets, 13 of them women, to the highest court if necessary.

It was stated that the union's executive board [illegible] had instructed the union counsel, Atty. George E. Roewer, to carry the fight as far as necessary.

A. N. Weinberg, of New York, international union representative in [illegible] declared the union would seek to learn whether the police [illegible] courts interpret the laws of the Commonwealth concerning peaceful picketing. The 20 persons arrested will be arraigned in Municipal Court today.

Police will appear in court seeking warrants against Meyer Karensky of Harvard st., Dorchester, for attempted intimidation and against Louis Lerner, proprietor of a Washington st., South End, garment shop, for assault with a dangerous weapon. Karensky was wounded in the foot by a shot fired by Lerner who claimed he fired in self defense after being threatened in connection with the garment strike.

World Series Broadcasting As She I Spoke ↕ The Word Painter Gets His Dates Mixed and Soooooo

By AUSTEN LAKE

Well folks, [illegible] station WHAM, with your favorite word painter, Graham Snoozing giving you the gruesome details on the first All Boston world series game in the history of baseball. Here I am, [illegible] literally perched in empty space, like a mountain gazelle [illegible] this stupendous event in this [illegible] city's [illegible].

Down [illegible] the Braves and the Red Sox are putting on the last licks before going into the cataclysmic, almost I should say titanic struggle on that little pasture of green turf which is the cynosure of the world's eyes. And now down there spraddled on the steps of the Braves' dugout, chin cupped in hand, the picture of concentrated acumen, I should say almost super cerebral effort, is the beloved, sagacious, almost Machiavelian leader of the Braves which have just snatched the National League gonfalon.

Think of it, folks! Here is the ultra-stupendous focal moment of baseball history, the Red Sox versus the Braves for the championship of this harassed terrestial sphere. The air is literally rife with electric suspense, and as I gaze about me in the press aerie I am overwhelmed by the galaxy of literary talent from all over the country, a very forte assemblage of geniuses, or should I say gen-ee-c-e, heh! heh!, who perch like buzzards on a fence wherever the big things of sport occur. Wotta superb way to keep the wolf from the door. There they are, getting paid, fabulous, ultra stupendous salaries for watching the same sights for which you, dear folks, peel off precious leaves from your bankrolls.

Now down there on the other side of the lush, I should almost say luxuriant turf which is the verdant chess board on which this super spectacle is taking place, is Marty McManus, the foxy and beloved leader of the Red Sox . . . O boy! listen to that roar. The crowd, the great, big, fair-minded Boston public, is one vast, seething, billowing wave of noise as Rabbit Maranville takes his batting list out to the umpires, a soul-rending demonstration of loyalty and affection for the beloved little Rab. It's super-ultra-stupendous.

Thunderbolt Mangum Versus Duraluminum Rhodes

Down there with his chin clamped on a box-rail—lots of bone in that chin, folks—buleeve you me—is Judge K. M. Landis, the silvery polled, supreme overlord and arbiter extraordinary, who can cause strong men to blanch with the tiniest crook of his small finger . . . Wait! No. That isn't Judge Landis, fans, that's somebody else. That chin fooled me for a moment.

It looks like Lee Mangum for the Braves, that rubber-thewed and leather-sinewed fire-ball thrower, I might say a veritable hurler of Jovian thunderbolts. And Dusty Rhodes for the Red Sox, that duraluminum steel-sheathed lad whose performance is ut most power with velvet smoothness. These two pitchers are paramount, the quintessence, the top off the bottle, triple X and very fortissimo, so today we are seeing an epic in sheer pulsating drama that will hark down the corridor of time.

And now just before the collision, I have a moment to read you a few of the tons and tons of telegrams I have been receiving a bushel at a time. Here's one from Tuscaloosa, Alabam', the Athens of America.

Dear Graham—Your broadcast is ultra-stupendous, very fortissimo. In fact you are paramount. Keep your throat open.

And that is signed Myrtle Wrist, O. K. Myrtle. Be assured folks, that these telegrams are positively unsolicited and perfectly bonefeedy. Now here's one from New York.

Mr. Snoozing, Dear sir—In view of our repeated demands and your consistent refusal to pay . . .

Well, fans, I guess we haven't time for any more right now. There is argus-eyed Bill Stewart, beloved dean of National League umpires, gesticulating to Bill Werber, Red Sox' doughty leadoff man and beloved shortstop. The game is on. Wotta supreme, ultra stupendous moment. Watta day for baseball. The shimmering Charles, beyond the center field fence, is glistening like a diamond ribbon. Remember how Washington crossed that river, fans before the Battle of Bunker Hill, and how later, the Boston Tea Party was staged on it. Now its mirrored surface is full of carefree, ebullient youth, and there go the Dartmouth varsity crews, splashing like tremendous spiders.

Mickey Cochrane of the Massachusetts Corcorans

Just a moment. Something happened. Werber seems to be on second base. Stand by, folks, and be calm. I gotta find out how Werber reached second base. O yes, he bludgeoned a terrific, space devouring Texas leaguer against the center field fence for stroke and distance, a beauty full-spoon shot. But the play was close, buleeve you me, and Billy had to make a flying tackle to reach the bag. That was dynamic, spine tingling action. I didn't see it, but it was stupendous.

And now Mangum, in a pitch of fury, is lifting his arm. He lowers it. He raises it. The referee waves him to a neutral corner. It looks like a knockout. No, he falls in a clinch. O, pardon me, I got a sheet of the Carnera-Sharkey fight mixed up in my scripts. There it is! A fast ball down the middle. Almada swings. He hits it. It's going out, and out, and out. What distance! What height . . . Aaaaaand, it falls into Berger's hands just back of second base for the final putout of the inning.

I only seem to have one putout during that inning folks. I mislaid the other two somewhere. But I'm virtually sure, yes I'll guarantee that no Red Sox runs scored. You can check in the morning papers. Now, here we are in the last of the fourth with the Red Sox leading 1 to 0 and Mickey Cochrane coming to bat for the Nationals with his loving cup ears waving in the breeze. Mickey, as you know, is the twin brother of Freddy Corcoran, the M. G. A. handicapper. Now Mickey hits the first pitch but he gets five yards for a high stick—pardon me, folks, that was Frank Hogan after all. But it certainly looked like Mickey Cochrane from this altitude. Heh! Heh!

But wait! Wait! You'll scream! Here I am looking through my date book and I find that the world series are not until next week at the Polo Grounds. This must be that Red Sox-Braves charity game. Well, is it my fault if the Boston teams can't win a pennant?

LILLIS, OTT IN STAR ROLES

After three long years of comparative obscurity two hard working but undaunted Eagles seem ready to scale the heights of making the Boston College varsity eleven.

One of these, Jiggs Lillis of Brighton, came to Chestnut Hill with the tag of a brilliant high school halfback, having run up [illegible] the gridiron for the [illegible] eleven. The other is [illegible] of the South End, who [illegible] came up University [illegible] after spending a glorious [illegible] at B. C. High.

A flash was seen now and then in the first year at the college from this pair, then followed two years of obscurity from which they now seem carded to rise.

In the freshman tilt Lillis ripped up the yearling line with an amazing rapidity which even startled [illegible] Denny McNamara. His [illegible] of speed completely fooled the frosh who hardly expected anything sudden from this old timer. Bobby Ott on the other hand has added 15 pounds to his five feet five inches of stature and with his characteristic speed and snake hips placed his name on the list for early appointments to the regular eleven.

Coach Joe McKenney was so taken by their antics in the freshman game that each of the pair carried the ball at least 10 times in succession to test their ability under fire and each time ground was gained and scores tallied.

MORASAS HEADS FIGHT CARD

[illegible] of sovereign domain the [illegible] boxing show at the Broadway [illegible] ballrooms next Monday [illegible] the magnet for fight devotees. The folding of the Burke Club Inc. leaves the South Boston organization alone in the promoting game locally.

Led by Al'an "Whisker" Morasas, the unshaved sailor fighter, six heavyweights will fight in an elimination series as the chief attraction Monday.

Classes in the 118-pound, 135-pound, and light heavyweight divisions will complete the card. Announcement of entries was to be made [illegible] today.

Loughran, Bleeding Given Decision in 15 Rounds

By JACK CONWAY

Philadelphia, Sept. 27—Tommy Loughran was declared the winner by a split decision over Jack Sharkey after 15 rounds of battling before 10,000 people at the Phillies ball park.

The referee, Spud Murphy and Judge Herman Weingrad voted for Loughran, while Judge Al Voice cast his ballot for Sharkey. The decision was booed by Loughran's home town crowd which thought that Sharkey had won. In the last round Loughran was on the verge of a knockout, Sharkey had subjected him to a terrific licking during the last three rounds of the contest.

Loughran's supporters yelled to him to run and hold as Sharkey ripped savage left and right punches to head and body.

TOMMY STARS IN 10TH.

The high spot of the bout for Loughran was in the tenth round when he caught Sharkey on the chin with a right, right on the chin. Sharkey did not take any of the count but he was visibly shaken up when he regained his feet. In the eleventh round Sharkey staged a good comeback and was able to hold Loughran even.

Loughran presented a pitiable figure as he struggled to go the distance during the last three rounds. His face was a mass of blood from wounds over both eyes. His legs barely held him up while he grabbed and held in desperate effort to go the distance.

Benny Leonard, former world's lightweight champion who was in the press row said he was surprised by the decision as he thought Sharkey had won.

"Sharkey got a guarantee of $25,000 and so could not expect to get the best of it in the decision," said Leonard. "I thought Sharkey's margin of victory was a large one."

Judge Voice, announced he gave Sharkey seven rounds and Loughran six and called two even.

BOTH SLIPPED

Loughran and Sharkey had both gone back a great deal since their battle in New York four years ago. Neither was perfect in the timing of punches while they lacked much of their former speed and ring fire.

Of the two boxers Loughran has gone back the more even though the officials decision would not make it appear as if that were true.

Sharkey was the aggressor all through the bout. In the early rounds he made the mistake of throwing too many right hand punches.

Loughran kept pulling away and as a result many of Sharkey's punches went wide of their mark.

Loughran kept running away and jabbing with his left in an effort to keep out of range of Sharkey's heavy punches.

Loughran made his big effort in the ninth and 10th rounds. He carried both of these sessions. In the ninth round he scored with a heavy body barrage while in the 10th he paved the way for the only knockdown of the fight with a series of left jabs. As Sharkey moved forward Tommy drove a sharp right hand to the jaw and the former champion went to the canvas.

LOUGHRAN SURPRISED

Loughran was astonished as much as anybody else in the ball park when he saw Sharkey on the canvas. When Jack got up without taking any part of the count, Loughran hesitated in taking up his advantage. In the 11th round Loughran was afraid to move forward and Sharkey had ample time to clear his head.

This frame was even.

Loughran carried the 12th round by a slight margin, but from then on was subjected to a terrific licking. Sharkey [illegible] Loughran down with a fierce body attack and staggered him with hard left and right to the head. In the 15th round Loughran's face was a mass of blood from wounds under both eyes, and he held and ran to enable himself to be able to be on his feet to receive the official decision.

SQUIRE CONGRATULATES

Sharkey congratulated Loughran when the latter was awarded the decision. As I looked up at Sharkey as he stood in the center of the ring I could not help but think what the Sharkey of four years ago would have done to men who only displayed as he and Loughran displayed at this ball park [illegible].

Sharkey to Fight in New York Oct. 31

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—Despite Tommy Loughran's decision over Jack Sharkey, Madison Square Garden today planned to have Sharkey fight the winner of the Perroni-McCorkindale bout scheduled for Oct. 9.

Matchmaker Jimmy Johnston today said he thought Sharkey should have had the decision over Loughran and would, therefore, put him on with either Perroni or McCorkindale Oct. 31.

5 NEW PLAYERS ON ELI LINE

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 28 (AP)—Coach Reg Root experimented with the Yale varsity lineup today and had five new men on the first team for more than an hour of scrimmage with the scrubs.

Neither the [illegible] nor the scrubs scored [illegible] though the latter were closer to getting a touchdown than the veterans.

It was the passing and [illegible] of Chick Childs who [illegible] in the scrubs backfield that gave the third team its advantage. The nearest the varsity could get to the goal line was the 15-yard mark.

Root expressed his disappointment at the showing although the line held the scrubs even though the latter had three tries to get over from the one-yard line.

Stein, Crampton and Johnson played with the second team during scrimmage, while Fuller and Curtin were given rests because of minor disabilities.

The second team strengthened by the addition of three first string men, scored on the fourth team. The touchdown was made on a 45-yard forward pass thrown by Dan Lynch to Walt Kimball at end.

M'COY KEEPS OPEN MIND

After four full weeks of practice, only two players are assured of their positions on the Northeastern varsity football team. One is Brad Johnson, giant end from Dedham, and the other is Stuart Mayberry, who has been running, passing and kicking to Coach McCoy's delight.

McCoy has expressed himself pleased with the form displayed by Gay Milbrandt at tackle after being shifted from fullback, and Ed Urban, a previously inexperienced lineman, who is coming fast at guard.

The Husky coaches have had the benefit of several scrimmage sessions recently and the results of their findings they are keeping to themselves.

From now on they will limit the squad to signal drills and lessons on assignments. They plan no more scrimmages unless absolutely necessary before the opening game with St. Anselm's on Saturday, Oct. 7.

Catholic League Gets Underway Tomorrow

Into its fifth season the growing Catholic High School Football League whirls tomorrow afternoon when the Mission high eleven of Roxbury tackles the St. Mary's team of Waltham at Bke Park in the Watch City.

GROWN STEADILY

From a small undertaking the league has grown steadily. Rev. Bernard O'Kane then of St. Mary's in Brookline was the first director of the loop. Father O'Kane, a Boston College sports [illegible] of 25 years ago, gave the [illegible] an excellent start.

He was succeeded [illegible] by Rev. George Dowd, a Boston College [illegible] of the early twenties [illegible] Father Cavanagh. Since he [illegible] were formerly [illegible] piloting the [illegible].

His Eminence Cardinal O'Connell has been [illegible] to the extent of donating valuable trophies for the football, basketball and baseball championship races.

Rev. Mon. Michael Splaine of St. Mary's of Brookline is one of the enthused followers of the league's fortunes. On Monday afternoon he took the trouble to travel from Brookline to Franklin Field to watch a scrimmage between the St. Mary's and B. C. High squads and was delighted to see his own team make an excellent showing against the heavier [illegible] team.

BENEFICIAL SPORT

"The sports program in the Catholic high schools has been very beneficial," said Monsignor Splaine, "for it has attracted many boys to seek the advantages of the school's education and has aroused fine spirit among the students. We hope to see the physical education program continue to prosper in our schools."

Monsignor Splaine [illegible] will be a spectator at the opening game for the St. Mary's eleven on Saturday against Sacred Heart High of Newton at Brookline Field.

The other games of Saturday have Immaculate Conception High of Revere tilting at Cathedral High and St. Clement's of Somerville at St. Charles of Waltham.

The complete schedule follows:

Sept. 29—Mission at St. Mary's, Waltham.

Oct. 7—Sacred Heart at Mission; St. Mary's, Waltham at Immaculate Conception.

Oct. 12—Immaculate Conception at St. Mary's, Brookline; Cathedral at St. Clement's; Mission at St. Charles.

Oct. 21—St. Clement's at Sacred Heart; Immaculate Conception at Mission; St. Mary's, Waltham, at St. Mary's, Brookline.

Oct. 28—St. Mary's, Brookline, at Cathedral; Sacred Heart at St. Charles; St. Mary's, Waltham, at St. Clement's.

Nov. 4—Cathedral at St. Mary's, Waltham; Immaculate Conception at Sacred Heart.

Nov. 11—Mission at St. Mary's, Brookline; Immaculate Conception at St. Clement's; St. Charles at Cathedral; St. Mary's, Waltham, at Sacred Heart.

Nov. 18—St. Mary's, Brookline, at St. Charles; St. Clement's at Mission; Sacred Heart at Cathedral.

Nov. 25—St. Mary's, Waltham, at St. Charles.

Nov. 30—St. Mary's, Brookline, at St. Clement's; Immaculate Conception at St. Charles; Mission at Cathedral.

SCHOOL BOARD HITS SUICIDE SCHEDULE

By BILL CONNELL

Quincy may drop high school football as a result of the 46 to 0 defeat sustained by the Quincy high varsity eleven at the hands of Leominster high last Saturday.

Or and [illegible] more [illegible] the drubbing, which so upset the boys in the game and [illegible] on most of the [illegible] of the City of Presidents [illegible] in a new and better [illegible] deal for the boys. With a [illegible] of the team to a [illegible] position among schoolboy grid leaders.

The above possibilities summarize the situation this morning as a committee composed of the dynamic Joseph Kendrick of the school committee went into action. Kendrick was appointed a committee of one to investigate the football situation by the school board on Tuesday evening.

No quitting on this year's schedule is planned. The school team will go through with the card, and next year's list will depend on subsequent developments.

The present purpose of Kendrick and he has the backing of the school committee and many of the most influential [illegible] of Quincy, is to correct what he considers a deplorable condition of competitive football in the high schools.

Or the improvement not proving feasible to drop the grid program completely before some Quincy boy meets with serious injury due to being inadequately prepared or equipped for the high pressure competition lined up for the team.

DOESN'T BLAME COACH

Kendrick made it very pointed today that no upheaval of the coaching staff of football enters into the program.

"We have no criticism to make of the coaches," he said today.

"We think they have been doing their best under difficult conditions. The aim is to arouse civic enthusiasm here, so that the team's spirit may improve, and the team's following so increase that added revenue will make it possible to improve our sports program.

"No drain on the taxpayer is desired, hence the necessity for thus aiding sports. If possible, improved playing conditions for the team will include an enclosed park, to be developed under the sponsorship of a group of public-spirited citizens."

Kendrick will call a meeting late today or tomorrow of a new board to discuss the matter and plan a campaign. This board will consist of himself as a member of the school committee, of a member of the high school faculty, an alumnus, a member of the Chamber of Commerce and one student.

The matter was brought to a head by the trouncing Leominster, one of the best teams in the state each year, incidentally, handed the Quincy boys. But a suicide schedule of 11 games had caused comment among Quincy folk even before the defeat.

CARD TOO TOUGH

For the schedule included Haverhill on September 15, Leominster, Melrose, Newton, Brookline, New Bedford, North Quincy, Fitchburg, Brockton and Danvers. Hardly a breather from start to finish excepting the intercity warfare with North Quincy, a separate city school which this year has a team of its own.

Kendrick says no blame has been attached to the billing of these teams inasmuch as the list was necessary because of the need of good attractions to aid the budget.

But for a school like Quincy which lacks the grid tradition and development of many smaller high schools, this card is just too tough according to Quincy fans.

The Quincy school committee is composed of Mayor Charles A. Ross, who acts as chairman; Mrs. Franklin S. Nichols, Dr. Daniel Reardon, Dr. N. S. Hunting, Col. Warren Sweetser, Robert Fox and Kendrick. The others gave Kendrick their approval in voting him the committee to probe the situation.

Some of the Quincy men who have endorsed the investigation and the plans formed are Roy Cashen, formerly a Dorchester athlete; George Riley and Harold Forest of Montclair; John Kapples and Francis Hickey, Quincy merchants.

Green Coach Discovers New Star

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 28—Dartmouth's most glaring backfield need in recent seasons has been a blocking back, but Coach Jack Cannell should have no reason to complain this year, for Jack Kenny, of Hartford, Ct., last year's freshman captain, has flashed in practice to date and gives promise of developing into one of the best blocking backs Dartmouth has had.

Because of the great abundance of promising backfield material and because Cannell has made no attempt to make a definite first team selection, Kenny has been working with the second and third string elevens this week, but his fine work gives indication that it won't be long before he will be given a first team rating.

Kenny, who as captain of last year's freshman eleven is said to be one of the hardest hitting line smashers to come to Dartmouth in recent years, is by far the best blocking back on Dartmouth's gridiron this fall. His work in this respect was a feature of yesterday's scrimmage.

TRIPLE THREAT

Kenny does not confine his gridiron activities to blocking alone, however, for as a ball carrier he is a hard-running, line-smashing fullback and has been a consistent gainer in scrimmage when given the ball. He is also perhaps the hardest tackling back that Cannell has and very few plays directed toward him are successful, for he constantly breaks through the interference to nail the ball carrier.

Of Connecticut Irish stock, Kenny is a husky lad weighing 185 pounds, although he is but 5 feet 9 inches tall, and every pound is 16 ounces of fight. His gridiron career began in his home city, Hartford, Ct., where he played on the high school team. Later he played at Vermont Academy before coming to Dartmouth last fall.

TEAMS WITH RAND

Although Kenny is the outstanding blocking back on the squad, George "Jocko" Stangle, also of Hartford, and little Normie Rand of Salem, Mass., have also been outstanding as blockers. Stangle, who is Sammy Fishman's understudy at right halfback, has made great progress this season and right now is giving Fishman a stiff battle for the first team position.

Normie Rand, who has been held back by minor injuries to date, has looked exceptionally good in scrimmage and seems to show no ill-effects from his two-year layoff since he piloted Bill Broderick's champion Salem high team in 1930.

Six-Day Grind at Garden Oct. 15

John Chapman and Nat Butler have been assigned to handle the Boston six-day bike race which is to be held at Boston Garden during the week of October 15 to 21.

New England fans are well acquainted with Butler, who with his brother Tom won international recognition as leading cyclists. After his competitive days were over he promoted several leading tracks at Revere and other places.

Chapman is recognized as one of the leading bike race promoters of the country. For more than a quarter century he has promoted the New York six-day race and later those at Chicago. He has a working agreement with European managers in which way he gets the pick of the world's cycle stars.

Star Changes Mind, Joins Bates Squad

Lewiston, Me., Sept. 28—Leno Lenzi, of North Plymouth, Mass., a speedy back, has joined the Bates squad. Lenzi did not expect to return to college this Fall, but has changed his mind.

Purinton and Wellman are both injured, but the latter, a former all-Maine interscholastic tackle, probably will see service in the Bates backfield against Arnold Saturday. Coach Morey's tackles, Gilman and Stone, have been playing great football.

Hagans Clash With St. Catherine's Club

The newly organized James E. Hagan Club of Somerville opens its football season against St. Catherine's at Lincoln Park Sunday afternoon. Coach Paul McInnis of the Hagans has such players as Tommy Polumbo, Russ Thomas, Al Riley, Barney Donegan, Moon McInnis, Red Mullins, Scotty Pierce, George Goldstein, John Hurnowicz and Red Roach.

Exeter's Eleven Picked for Opener

Exeter, N. H., Sept. 28—The Exeter football team is awaiting the opening Saturday against the New Hampshire freshmen. After several scrimmages a line-up was chosen, composed of Wilson, Beltzner, G. Clark and Miller in the backfield and Turner, Allen, T[illegible], Downer, Ostal, Kevorkian and Duff in the line.

Clark looks good in the backfield having made several long runs in practice. Beltzner and Miller are two fast halfbacks and Wilson, the only backfield veteran, is shifty. The line is strong from end to end and ought to make the New Hampshire Cubs ineffective.

There are four clubs in the National League that are every bit as formidable as the New Yorkers if not more so, when Hubbell isn't facing them. Each threatened repeatedly to knock the champions off the peak during the race. Always cool Carl was equal to the task of saving his mates. If he hadn't been, they would have fallen into the second division.

It rema[illegible] or no the ser[illegible] for the Gotham[illegible] Giants are in for one artistic pasting.

Fitzsimmons, Schumacher and Parmelee, Bill Terry's other hu[illegible] hopes, are [illegible] to most [illegible] liant effort [illegible] but effective as they [illegible] they [illegible] tossing for a hopeless cause unless Hubbell is setting the pace.

For the Giants have been relying on their prize southpaw too long to change their spots in a short series. They're convinced that he'll keep right on rescuing them. If he fails, they'll be beyond rescuing. Their morale will be shattered completely.

So the story of the classic [illegible] bound to be the story of Hubbell. His left arm is sure to win or lose it.

The verdict may be written in the first game. It's inconceivable that Manager Bill Terry will select anybody other than the boy from Carthage to do the Giants' flinging. If the Solons can whip him in his own back yard, it wouldn't be surprising if they won four straight games.

GIANTS FAVORITES

If, on the other hand, Hubbell triumphs, judgment must be withheld until he works in Washington, but the Giants will deserve the favorites' rating.

It would be poetic justice should Hubbell be the cause of the American League downfall. He's a National Leaguer today because Detroit could find no room on its staff for [illegible] from Oklahoma City [illegible]

He was farmed [illegible] and shipped [illegible] Beau[illegible] lowit[illegible] He w[illegible] losing [illegible] games wh[illegible] farmed [illegible] him, the Detroit management [illegible] him outright to Beaum[illegible] Texas League.

A Giant scout decided he was worth $40,000 in '28. He jumped up to New York and proved the ivory hunter correct by winning ten games and allowing less than three earned runs a game in his first season in fast company. Yesterday, in his final warmup for the series, he beat the Phils for his 23rd victory of the season and his 100th victory as a Giant.

The [illegible] of Hubbell's success in New York [illegible] failure in Detroit can be told in the same two words—screw ball.

"Forget that freak delivery. It will ruin your arm," Ty Cobb told the young man breaking in. Carl refused and lost his chance with the Tigers.

LOUGHRAN'S LEFT HAD BUSY FIFTEEN ROUNDS

SHARKEY MADE GREAT SHOWING IN LATTER ROUNDS

B[illegible] B[illegible] [illegible] from home today, the Braves in Brooklyn and the Red Sox in Philadelphia.

This odd schedule arrangement is due to the rain which washed out a doubleheader between the Tribesmen and Dodgers in Flatbush on Labor Day.

Originally, those contests would be [illegible] into the first division before the finish, so the tilts were ordered played today, originally and open date on the cards of the two clubs.

BRAVES HERE SATURDAY

The McKechniemen will dash back here Saturday to close the local season in a two-game series with the Phillies.

The Sox made their final local appearance of the campaign in the annual charity tilt with the Tribe which they lost, 2 to 1. They will play three single games in Philly, a Sunday contest in New York and then depart for their respective homes.

Among those who were not carried along when the Sox left which may or may not be significant were Dale Alexander, Bob Seeds [illegible] taken.

The Braves will break camp at the Wigwam Sunday night, but few of them need prepare to shed any tears on that occasion.

GOOD TRIBE YEAR

They've had a successful season, whether or no they land in the money. They've already won three more games than last season, with four left to play, and are sure of having the highest average of any Boston ball club in a dozen years.

The crowd was not up to expectations, being slightly less than 15,000, [illegible] be found with Wednesday's charity carnival.

NUMA, LUTZE FACE CRISIS

Leo Numa, erstwhile Black Secret who now wrestles without his mask, faces Bob "Bibber" McCoy tomorrow night in a feature bout at the Boston Garden. At the same time Nick Lutze, handsome Californian, is matched to meet Charley Strack of Oklahoma.

In the event that Numa and Lutze win their respective bouts, there is a strong likelihood of the pair battling off their recent two-hour draw affair which found both of the contenders lying helpless in the middle of the ring at the end.

However, there is no guarantee that either Numa or Lutze will win tomorrow night as they both face tough opposition.

Oberlander Puts Moyes in Backfield

Middletown, Ct., Sept. 28—The transfer of Moyes from the line to the backfield and the fine performance of Bob Johnson at quarterback were big factors as Wesleyan continued its drive for the Union game.

Moyes, who has been played at guard since the opening of the season, was transferred to fullback. It is quite likely that Coach Oberlander will start him on Saturday.

Two recruits are expected to fill the other backfield positions. Woodhead, a junior, and Burton, who played on the freshman team last season, are the halfbacks who have the edge on the other candidates.

Giants See Senators Close With Yanks

By PAT ROBINSON

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—For generations Broadway theater critics have been notorious for their cynical cold-bloodedness, but those fellows are merely soft-hearted old ladies compared with the critics the Washington Senators have to face today.

The Senators are in town for their final dress rehearsal for the [illegible] New York Giants [illegible] ting in the wings ready, not only to criticise every move, good or bad, but to turn every miscue to their own advantage.

Gus Mancuso, the Giant catcher, will sit back of the home plate with Hubbell, Fitzsimmons and Schumacher, who are expected to handle the pitching chores. Terry, Jackson, Critz and Ryan will keep an eye peeled for infield work, and Ott, Davis and Moore will park themselves in the centerfield bleachers.

WORLD SERIES SUBS

"Say," said Mancuso this morning, "when that game is over this afternoon, we'll know the Senators so well we'll be able to tell the shape of their back teeth."

"I don't like these final games," remarked Hubbell. "So many fellows have been hurt just before a World series, and nearly always the cub who took the injured man's place turned out to be a star. I don't want to see any of these fellows get hurt."

"Yeh," chimed in old Tom Clark, the coach, "I remember when Red Smith was put out and a guy named Charley Deal took his place and stole the whole show. And Johnny Evers broke a leg and in came Heinie Zimmerman. And then there was the case of Rube Oldring and Topsy Hartsel. Yep, you're dead right, Hub, it's better to have a guy you know in there than a newcomer."

There were rumors around this morning that Travis Jackson wouldn't be able to start at third for the Giants, but Stoney himself put the damper on this one.

NO MASTER MINDING

"I won't be any Frankie Frisch on the bases," admitted Stoney, "but I'll be all right at third. I got quite a kick out of reading that the Senators will bunt me right out of the game. That's a laugh.

"In the first place, did you ever watch anybody trying to bunt Hubbell's screw ball down the third base line? Well, then you know what a fat chance the Senators have trying it.

"In the second place, [illegible] to bunt, of course. I'll [illegible] for it and a baby could field bunts if he knew they were coming.

"And in the third place, we don't ask anything better than to have a hard-hitting bunch like the Senators park their wallop in the dug-out and bunt. Gee, that would be great if they only would. Imagine what a sweet break it would be for pitchers if fellows like Ruth and Gehrig, for instance, would give up doubles, triples and homers and go for bunts."

"Master-minding," opined Bill, "is and always has been the bunk. We'll just go along playing our usual game and meet every emergency as it comes up.

"Nobody ever yet outthought a mean-hopping grounder and you can't outthink a base hit. Yep, we'll just toddle along doing our best as usual, and I guess Joe Cronin will do the same."

Giants Comb Ranks to Find Third Baseman

Third base hardly offers a fair comparison of the two players who are likely to take part in the World Series.

One has played the position for a championship team all season, one was thrown into the position as an emergency move and the other has spent the last few [illegible]

The attack of appendicitis, which drove Johnny Vergez out of the New York lineup, has complicated the situation. With Vergez in the game the Giants would at least hold their own in a hitting way and the difference in fielding would have been slight. But Travis Jackson, who is slated to serve as replacement for Vergez is 1—Not a third baseman by occupation.

2—He has been out of the game most of the season.

His knees may not hold up through the series.

DRESSEN MAY START

In the event that Jackson is unable to play in the series, though he undoubtedly will start, the third base sector will be entrusted to the care of Charley Dressen, former Cincinnati infielder who recently was brought up from the Southern Association. Dressen is not a robust hitter, nor is he the third baseman that he used to be.

SENATORS SET

Meanwhile Washington is fortified with the best fielding third baseman in the American League today. Ossie Bluege is not a colorful player, nor is he a hitter of high [illegible] but in the art of fielding [illegible] the best [illegible] the [illegible] der or shooting a ball across to first base they can't come any better than this silent veteran of the Senators.

Bluege played through the World Series of 1924 and 1925 with the Senators, getting 10 hits in the 12 games. He has hit under .270 this season, being their lightest hitting regular. But he played a very prominent part in the Senator's success.

Giants Practice With A. L. Ball

New York, Sept. 28 (INS)—The New York Giants [illegible] the American League ball today, getting ready for the World Series next week. Today and tomorrow are idle dates for the National League champions. They finish the regular season with games against Brooklyn, Saturday and Sunday.

BEAU CAVALIER PAYS $27.50 IN FIRST

Rockingham Park, Sept. 28—A drab autumn day greeted the patrons for the running of the Nantasket Beach Purse, a five and one-half furlongs sprint for two-year-olds, the feature on the off-day card.

The rains of last night converted the track into a veritable quagmire and only those of three-star mud qualifications were being conceded winning chances by the faithful.

A pair of long shots fought it out for honors in the opening event, a dash at six furlongs for non-winning three-year-olds, with Nick Tromberio booting J. C. Herrick's Beau Cavalier to a length and a half victory over Wm. Phelan's Polisher, which enjoyed a like margin over Mrs. M. Colford's Buzzin Around at the finish. The talent received a terrific jolt when the well played Mass[illegible] was practically eliminated at the start and had little chance thereafter. Beau Cavalier returned $27.50 straight and $13.10 to place.

Tromberio rated Beau Cavalier back of Appelant's pace for the first half mile, drew past the leader at the top of the stretch and was drawing away at the finish. Polisher always well up, ran a smooth race to draw down the secondary honors. Buzzin Around was in the first flight but could not oerhaul the winner and second horse when put to a drie.

Conditions for the seven races to be run on Saturday will be distributed to horsemen today.

Trainer Joe Edwards' string will head for Jamaica at the windup here Monday.

SIDELINE RULE MAIN CHANGE

New York, (AP)—The most important change in the football playing code for this season easily is the new rule by which the ball is moved in 10 yards from the sideline every time it is downed closer than that to the boundary in the opinion of Bill Langford, secretary of the rules committee.

"It has been apparent for several years that the width of the playing field—160 feet—was not sufficient to permit the full strategical values which the rules contemplate," Langford said.

WILL POPULARIZE LATERALS

"Heretofore only when the ball went out of bounds over the sideline was it brought in, the distance then being 15 yards, whereas a ball which became dead near a sideline was put in play from that spot. That almost invariably meant the loss of the succeeding down. A gain was practically impossible and the team with the ball deliberately ran it out of bounds in order to gain leeway for succeeding plays."

The new rule, Langford believes, will have the effect of popularizing the lateral pass and thereby open up the offense which has been increasingly [illegible] to pierce near the goal line.

"Lateral passing has been on a constricted scale," he said. "Largely because of the fear the ball would be downed close to the sideline. Because most of our bowls are surrounded with concrete and steel stands it would have been impracticable to increase the lateral dimension of the playing field, but this change will have the effect of accomplishing the same result."

REDUCE PENALTY

The only other change of importance in the code is the broadening of the definition of 'clipping,' so that blocking by running or diving into the back of a player who is not carrying the ball now constitutes a foul.

The penalty for clipping was reduced to 15 yards from the point of the foul, in the belief that officials will be less hesitant in calling fouls than with the former heavy penalty of 25 yards.

Gene Sarazen Will Tee Off in Eastern Golf Open

[illegible] Gene Sarazen heads [illegible] for the Eastern open [illegible] championship, which is to be held at the Presidential course in Wayland on October 12, 13 and 14. Winner of the British open and the U. S. open in 1932 and the P. G. A. title this year, Sarazen will be a strong favorite for the Eastern crown.

Against him will be arrayed such stars as Jimmy Johnston, last year's winner of the Canadian open championship; Al Espinosa and Ed Dudley. The three professional members of the Turnesa family, Joe, Phil and Mike, are also entered.

HARMON PICKS B. U. STARTING LINEUP

After spending three weeks installing a new system and looking over 40 grid hopefuls, Dr. John M. Harmon is ready to make his debut and introduce his 1933 Boston University football team to the public.

A few outstanding faults will be straightened out this afternoon and tonight the official starting lineup for the opener against Middlebury Saturday will be announced. At present there seem to be seven men certain to start and four doubtful positions.

LINE SETTLED

The line is fairly well settled except for center and left end. Elmer Bussell, a rangy sophomore, apparently had the pivot berth all sewed up until yesterday when George Abodeely, a veteran, showed his old form and [illegible] so good he may get the call. The fight for left end [illegible] between Frank Hughes and Dick Van Iderstine, both sophomores. Van Iderstine is the more experienced of the two, but [illegible] favor [illegible] and may not start.

There are two backfield jobs open that probably will not be definitely settled until game time Saturday. Larry Lucey, a converted end, has fullback cinched, and Warren McNamara, the sophomore who has been running wild in scrimmage the past two weeks, will be at left halfback.

THREE FOR QUARTERBACK

The signal caller will be one of three men. George Pattison, a 140-pound sophomore is making a great bid, but his lack of weight and experience is a handicap. The second member of John Tulis, a veteran fullback who knows his football and for that reason can be given the preference. The third man is Billy Whelton who was second string quarterback last fall and was supposed to have the job easily this year. Billy, however, reported late and may not be in good enough condition to start.

The fourth backfield member will be either Roy Thompson or Herman Nickerson. Both boys are inexperienced, but look like finds. Regardless of which one gets the nod, both will see plenty of action, and the way in which they go, under pressure, will probably decide largely their chances of starting against New Hampshire a week from Saturday.

CROKE TO START

In the line, Charlie Gabelli[illegible] and Bill Croke are certain to start as guards and Captain Al Aliberti and George Rochford[illegible] will be the tackles. Charlie Harris has an end [illegible] and Larry Lucey and Warren McNamara are backfield certainties, the rest is doubtful.

This starting eleven [illegible] be one of the greenest yet most promising outfits the Terriers have ever placed on the field. It will be a team that has everybody guessing as to whether they will flop or go places.

Saturday will tell the story, and Coach Harmon will watch activities closely from the grandstand and let Capt. Al Aliberti run the team under the much debated 'player control' idea.

"Player control" will be used throughout the game and, if in the opinion of the students the team should fall down because of the [illegible] there is apt to be trouble [illegible] at the [illegible] town school.

ARMY OF ROOTERS TO CHEER ST. ANSELM DEBUT AGAINST B.C.

ENTIRE SCHOOL GIVEN DAY TO ATTEND

By WALTER KILEY

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 28.—A delegation of more than 500 [illegible] rooters headed by Bishop Peterson of Manchester, [illegible] Bertram Dolan, abbott of St. Anselm, and the entire student body of [illegible] will leave here tomorrow [illegible] or Saturday morning to cheer St. Anselm's to victory over Boston College at [illegible] Heights on Saturday afternoon.

PARTY PLANNED

[illegible] Westminster Hotel [illegible] before the game.

Bruce and [illegible] will make the Boston trek by [illegible] Saturday morning.

A touch of [illegible] interest is attached to [illegible] meeting between the two colleges since 1911 due to the fact that the rival coaches played against each other in 1927. Bruce [illegible] on the Fordham [illegible] and McKeever [illegible] back on the [illegible] team.

[illegible]

Bruce has labored hard with the St. Anselm team and the [illegible] are beginning to show. He does all the work himself [illegible] though there seems to be a possibility that [illegible] former Dartmouth back and for several seasons head coach at [illegible] High will be made backfield coach to assist Bruce.

The Manchester college will provide no set-up for the maroon and gold. Virtually every one of the players has made good on school or college [illegible] many of them from the Greater Boston area.

A line averaging close to 175 pounds and a backfield [illegible] under 170 will give Boston College a severe opening day test.

For instance there are [illegible] tackles who are to make the trip, each of them standing better than six feet.

OFFENSE STRENGTHENED

The H[illegible] offense has been greatly strengthened by the return of Joe Glodeck of Shenandoah, Pa., a back who has been out of practice sessions for weeks with a couple of broken ribs. He is the best running back on the team.

Columbus [illegible] who called the signals on Bedger Carro [illegible] Beverly High team last season will be [illegible] quarterback.

The backfield will be composed of [illegible] of Manchester [illegible] Glodeck of Dan Burke of Wakefield [illegible] and John Sp[illegible] of Wakefield [illegible]

Austin of Freeport, aunt of the bride-elect, announced. The ceremony will be at the home of Mrs. Austin. Here's hoping the future bride is well versed in cooking eels for that happens to be Lou's favorite dish. A contented ball player is an asset to any team.

Simmons and Barrows 'H' Roommate Rivals

When Eddie Casey, coach of the Harvard grid squad, announced the final cut in the team it marked just another triumph for Brad Simmons, captain of the Crimson crew and heavyweight champion over his pal and roommate, Grid Barrows.

[illegible]

But there is a queer angle to this friendship affair. From the start of their college days more than three years ago Simmons and Barrows have been [illegible] one another for top [illegible] in the field of sport. [illegible]

ALL SIMMONS SO FAR

So far it has been one victory after another for Simmons, with Barrows [illegible] on but few occasions.

They started off as an even foot [illegible] freshmen. Simmons came from Belmont school, where he was a star at football and crew. [illegible] was one of the brightest prospects from Andover, where he had played football besides being a star in track and wrestling.

Brad got the jump when he won the freshman numerals in football as a center on the [illegible] team. But Grid more than made up the distance when he proved himself the freshmen's best bet on the mat [illegible] and in addition was elected captain. Then he went out [illegible] number 3 seat in the freshman boat to add another set of numerals to his collection.

When he became eligible for [illegible] Brad [illegible] football [illegible] his attention to rowing for the first time. Though he was perhaps the [illegible] oarsman on the [illegible] squad, Coach Charlie Whiteside [illegible] appearance of his 200 pound frame and took him under his wing. He developed enough to row at number 3 on the jayvees. And of course he repeated as heavyweight champ of the boxing team.

But Barrows had a great [illegible] football and at times looked [illegible] the best tackle on the Harvard eleven. He was again heavyweight wrestler and [illegible] on the jayvees with Brad.

BATTLE FOR SEAT

Then [illegible] big [illegible] Harvard [illegible] great crew. Only [illegible] of the eight which had defeated Yale two years running had been graduated. Simmons and Barrows, as the outstanding members of the jayvees, were listed as the possible athletes to fill the vacancy. [illegible] one was at the number [illegible] the varsity, [illegible] the other. But Whiteside finally selected Simmons and Barrows remained in the second boat.

Then when Harvard won [illegible] the oarsmen were graduated, Simmons was elected to the captaincy, one of the most coveted honors of undergraduate life.

Norwich Crippled for Green Clash

Northfield, Vt., Sept. 28.—Four Norwich football players were idle with minor ailments today, but all were due to be in shape for Dartmouth Saturday.

Dick Wagner, center, has a cut over his eye; Frank Chio[illegible], guard, has stomach trouble; Fritz Metzler, end, has a charley horse and Tom Watkins, guard, had a lame back.

Raymonds, Cantabs Open Series Saturday

The final series for the Middlesex Twi League championship between the Raymond Club and North Cambridge will begin Saturday with a single game at Russell Field and a doubleheader on Sunday at the William F. Smith playground, Allston.

And finally there [illegible] a 145-pounder who [illegible] on defense, and a [illegible] blocking back.

"We'd like to have some bigger boys," says Coach O'Poole. "But the present crop is improving. They had stage fright in the first quarter of the opening game with Maynard. I hope to see them do much better against Quincy when that team comes to Melrose Saturday."

CARLYN AT CENTER

Either Bo[illegible] Carlyn or John Parkhurst will play center. Parkhurst, a senior, seems [illegible] have the edge because of his experience.

The backfield presents many problems for there are a number of men who have qualifications for the same jobs. Walter Froelich, the most likely fullback. Pat [illegible] veteran of two seasons, [illegible] best kicker on the [illegible] less will win one of the halfback places. Reegan is a [illegible] the coaches believe [illegible] M[illegible] veteran quarterback [illegible] nals at present, but it will be hard to keep Olie Bou[illegible] sophomore, out of the backfield either as a half or quarter.

Tufts meets B[illegible] football on Nov. 11. At present the rivalry lies in seeing whose field can produce the [illegible] Those at [illegible]side [illegible] but the Medf[illegible] brand is more persistent.

MAINE TEAMS TUNE FOR OPENING

By BILL GRIMES

Three of the Pine Tree State colleges will make their 1933 debuts on Saturday, all playing at home, with Bates entertaining Arnold at Lewiston, Colby crashing with Trinity at Waterville and the University of Maine acting as hosts to Frank Keaney's Rhode Island State aggregation.

With only two days remaining before their openers, Coaches Morey, Roundy and Brice are driving their charges at top speed but Charlie Bowser has another week to round his Polar Bears of Bowdoin into shape for Mass. State.

Bates and Maine suffered heavy losses through graduation. Dave Morey [illegible] of his 1932 lettermen and the Black Bears must uncover a quarterback and [illegible] side of the line. And because of the lack of veteran material Bates and Maine will experiment with various combinations until the start of the state series.

MOREYMEN WEAK

Dave Morey has only one member of his first varsity backfield available, Bill Pricher. Bates is so badly in need of backfield material that Morey has been obliged to convert linemen into backs.

The Lewiston institution may be short of experienced talent but under Dave Morey the squad will be thoroughly schooled in football fundamentals. Morey knows his football from all angles and has few peers at putting in defenses for any and all types of attack. Moreover he is an inspiring coach who is able to get the best there is out of a squad against superior opponents.

According to Morey, Arnold will offer Bates just the right variety of opposition for an opening game. He does not look upon the New Haven college as a set-up [illegible] outcome of the game is not giving him much concern other than fear [illegible] of his players might be injured and forced out of the Harvard game.

R. I. VISITS MAINE

The University of Maine has the toughest opening attraction in Rhode Island State. With a green squad and the lightest assortment of varsity players he has ever worked with at Orono, Fred Brice is prepared for trouble with Rhode Island.

Frank Keaney is a hustler and never losing any time getting his Little Rhody squad in shape. Moreover, Rhode Island has been through one game. Although the Black Bears have held the whip hand over Rhode Island for some years, the contests have been close and [illegible] for early season game.

FAVOR IS ACE

The Blue and Blue will construct its attack around Ca[illegible] Favor, but because of the [illegible] of [illegible] weighty backs will be obliged to rely almost wholly upon deception. The new linemen are for the most part sophomores, but fortunately for Maine and Coach Brice, Ken Aldrich and Phil Parsons, the veteran ends, are available. Aldrich and Parsons are six footers and weigh about 185.

Colby is rated as the strongest Maine college. Coach Roundy has a fine array of experienced players including the best halfback in the state, Capt. "Jim" Peabody. Bu[illegible] Thomas, Canton, Bill Hucke and [illegible] Alden are in the first string backfield with Capt. Peabody.

Illinois Loses Stars

Champaign, Ill., Sept. 28 (INS)—Cran Portman, leading candidate for right halfback on the University of Illinois football team, will be lost to the squad for three weeks due to an injury resulting from a game of kittenball.

"OPERATOR 13"

Girl Spy Finds Gailliard and Is Thrown Aside When She Speaks

(Republished from Cosmopolitan Magazine and soon to appear on the screen as a Cosmopolitan Production made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and starring Marion Davies.)

By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

But on Friday evening, when she arrived for supper, the latest newspapers had prepared her for the altered looks and deep gloom which reigned at the table at 123 Clinton place. For on that day, when the sun was going down, the last blow for victory had been struck by Wade Hampton's furious sabres. But George Pickett had already made his immortal charge and his red battle flags were in the dust.

Claire Quilter whispered tearfully, dabbing at her eyes with a wet handkerchief:

"Dick Garnett fell dead; Ormistead died; Kemper is gone. You were right when you spoke of Ashby, Pelham and Jackson; our paladins of the South are dying fast, dear Miss Trimble, and very soon we may all hear the melancholy horn of the Roland quavering over the death field of a nation."

"What will happen," said Andrews savagely, "is that our armies will tie up their wounds and march on Philadelphia. And, by God, we must continue busy and get ready for them when they come."

"What does Jack Gailliard say?" whispered Mrs. Dorn.

"I am quoting him, ma'am. And I agree with him that we remain unbeaten and unterrified; and that the Yankees, war-weary and choked with their own blood, will sicken of this butchery and demand peace. Half the North are of that mind already. A battalion of Stuart's cavalry could take this city. And the city will be ready to get rid of its tyrants very soon, I expect."

SHADOW OF DEATH

"Modulate your voice," added Claire. "If you go around talking about such things you'll hang Jack Gailliard and every one of us."

"Nobody could hear me."

"You don't know who may be the dark," retorted Claire ... listening outside the window in the dark," retorted Claire Quilter.

"Have you seen Capt. Gailliard?" asked Mrs. Dorn.

"I have, and everything is all right," replied the boy sullenly. "You'll see for yourself before very long."

Miss Trimble rose from the table, took leave of the boarders in her quaint, timid way, and went out like a mouse. Not far away, in the dusk, a hack awaited her; she got into it in silence, and she and the driver—Secret Service Operator Harry Simms, No. 143—waited until Mr. Andrews emerged from the house. But once more they trailed him in vain through the gaslight, for he went to Burton's.

At a gallop the hack deposited Operator 13 in St. George's Place, where she swiftly transformed herself into a swaggering lad, reeking of cheap perfume and hair oil.

Back at a gallop and into theater alley, where she slipped out of the hack and around to Burton's, and for 15 cents found herself in the Nigger's Heaven with "Pocahontas" proceeding in its hilarious course with John Brougham on the stage.

CAREFREE SONG

Sang Mr. Brougham:

"Oh, some'r right—"
Powhatan Why Smith!
Powhatan Why Smith!
And Indians: Why Smith!
"And some'r wrong—"
AND INDIANS. Why Smith!
And some get tight
POWHATAN Why Smith!
AND INDIANS: Why Smith!
And sing this song
The whole day long!"
CAPTAIN JOHN SMITH, POWHATAN, POCAHONTAS, AND INDIANS:
"Oh, right or wrong
Oh, get me tight
And sing the song,
O Summer Night
For only when I'm tight I long
To sing that sentimental song!"

And gallery and Nigger heaven were chanting with the chorus amid the subdued wave of laughter from box to pit.

TINGLING MOMENT

But Operator 13 was no longer listening or looking at the stage, for there, in a stage box, sat Andrews with Claire Quilter, and in shadow behind them stood a figure in evening dress that set every nerve and drop of blood throbbing in the youthful body of Operator 13.

How to get at her lover she had no remotest idea. It was probable that he was there for a few moments only, for he remained standing. The girl scarcely dared take her eyes from him, yet somehow she must follow him and discover where he was going.

All around her was a din of yelling and laughter as she rose and made her way out to the steep stairway and hurried down it to the gallery entrance. There was no opportunity to call in No. 143; she might miss John Gailliard by going to theater alley. Even now, the first act was over and the audience swarming out to lobby and sidewalk.

Dressed like a young tough of Cherry street, she skulked along the curb trying to catch sight of her lover in the milling crowds around the theater.

At that instant she saw him opening the door of a handsome private carriage. In desperation she shoved forward, hoping to stage a row sufficient to bring a policeman to arrest them both, and she jostled him so violently that he stumbled and nearly fell. Instantly she swore at him and showed fight.

"Who yer shovin', bully boy with the glass eye?" she demanded, with her best Five Point leer. "D'yer want yer swell hat bashed? Aw right! Come on, then! Put up yer dukes!" And she squared off and danced up to him.

DECISIVE ACTION

But there was no row. John Gailliard gave her one amazed look, then took her by the shirt collar and the seat of her fancy pants and threw her halfway across the street.

As she picked herself up, confused by the swift shock of pain [illegible] impact and the unfeeling laughter of the crowd, G[illegible] stepped into his waiting [illegible] and drove away up [illegible] was smarting and [illegible] But when she ran to a hack [illegible] off [illegible] the grinning [illegible] [illegible] begging [illegible] follow the carriage, he told her [illegible] hire a balloon.

It was a painful and mortifying episode for her, but she did not see how she could have done any better under the circumstances. And although for a day or so it hurt her to sit down, her [illegible] [illegible] hers, [illegible] pre[illegible] [illegible] of [illegible]

On the [illegible] of July Vicksburg surrendered to a young western general named Grant. Three cheers! said the newspapers. But Meade had not yet moved South after the retreating Lee.

On the eighth of July, Port Hudson surrendered. Three more cheers. But Lee had run away to live to fight another day.

On July eleventh, the draft law went into operation and the first compulsory enlistment began. The next day being Sunday, there was no draft.

War weariness was paralyzing the Peace Party of the North. The blood of its young men dead was suffocating it.

FATUOUS TOOLS

While unburied corpses still littered the meadows of Gettysburg the Peace Party was holding a huge meeting at the Academy of Music with bands and cheers and Gov. Seymour dispensing sweetness and compromise, and shuddering at the shadow of martial law. And so the Peace Democracy fatuously oblivious of the conspirators who were planning to ruin the Union, demanded the recall of the armies that were dying in the field to [illegible] [illegible] of the bloody [illegible]

If John Gailliard was at the Academy of Music that day, Operator 13 could not discover him.

On Monday morning, the thirteenth of July, Operator 13, bewitchingly gowned and hatted was driving uptown in her pretty barouche, with S. S. Operator Simms—No. 143—in smart livery on the box, still hoping to encounter John Gailliard a-horse in Central Park. They drove up Third ave., intending to cross at Fifty-ninth st.; but a marching crowd blocked them at Forty-sixth st. and Simms pulled up his horses.

The marching crowd followed a man who was beating a copper pan; they were whooping, howling, cursing; they brandished guns, pistols, hatchets, knives, crowbars, bludgeons; they were yelling "Down with the draft! Down with the police!" Just across the street at 677 Third ave. was the provost marshal's office, where the draft had begun last Saturday and where the great lottery wheels were turning out the fatal numbers for recruitment. Twelve hundred and thirty-six names had been drawn.

DESTRUCTION BEGINS

At the enrollment office there was a police sergeant and a dozen policemen, but no soldiers, and the huge crowd already had pressed them back into the provost's office, from which an angry roar arose. Already the mob outside was felling telegraph poles and hacking the wires.

Simms turned his head coolly and said to Operator 13: "This is a riot. We'd better get out of it."

But the barouche was so hemmed in that it was impossible to turn the horses.

At the moment, Capt. Porter, from the E. 59th st. station, came plowing his way to the marshal's office with sixty metropolitan policemen. The men marched into the office building; the mob, now increased to surging thousands, roared disapproval.

It was exactly half past ten in the morning when the great riot began, and it began with a pistol shot followed by a volley of cobblestones, and the next instant Capt. Porter and seventy policemen were fighting for their lives.

Hanging on to his terrified, plunging horses, Simms attempted to back out; but at that moment a company of infantry of the Invalid Corps came marching up 3rd ave.

Then the mob flew at them; the troops fired; and hell broke loose on 3rd ave.

WILD FLIGHT

Operator 13 caught a glimpse of the police clubbing their way out with the draft officials in their midst; of soldiers being stabbed and pounded to death.

Suddenly she saw Clive Andrews. He was on horseback, and was shouting "Down with the draft! Stop the war! Take the city! All the troops are at Gettysburg and you can do it! Take the government into your own hands, fellow citizens, and stop this hellish war! Drive the police out of town! Drive out the politicians who are sending you South to be murdered on the battlefield!"

A ferocious roar of acclaim answered the boy.

"March on the City Hall!" he [illegible]

Pull down the newspaper offices. Drive out Old Greeley and Mayor Opdyke. Now is your opportunity to let the nation know that you're through with this cursed war and the nigger-loving government forever!"

(Copyright, 1933.)

Can Operator 13 and her brave compatriot escape this crew of madmen? And if they do, what can they do now to prevent the general revolt toward which Gailliard and his Confederate colleagues have labored so long and diligently? Read tomorrow of desperate measures attempted.

While at a friend's house I got up during the night for a drink of water. Not wanting to disturb anyone I didn't put on the lights. Instead of going back to my bedroom I found myself in her brother's room, and was I embarrassed?

Periodic Tests Real Health Preservers

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

A RECENT editorial in the journal of the American Medical Association states that the protec[illegible] physical examination is like international disarmament. It has been "accepted in principle" but with little practical result. This is unfortunate, for no one will deny the many benefits to be derived from periodical [illegible]

On Accepting the Half Loaf

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

When partners hold not only tre[illegible] strength but fits in two suits, they are very foolish to [illegible] apparently certain penalty in preference to going on with their own best bid. This point is brought out in a story told by Mrs. Fred R. Hammond of St. Louis, Mo., of a hand played recently in Duplicate in that city. East and West had available a Grand Slam, but at the table where Mrs. Hammond held the South hand they elected instead to double five spades, which was made with two overtricks due to an Opening heart lead. The hand which produced this unusual result was:

North Dealer
East and West vulnerable

♠ K [illegible]
[illegible] Q J 1 [illegible] 4 6 5 2
♣ [illegible]

♠ [illegible] ♠ [illegible]
♥ [illegible] ♥ A K Q 7 8
♦ [illegible] ♦ K [illegible]
♣ [illegible] ♣ A K 9 [illegible]

♠ A [illegible] 4 2
♣ [illegible]

			West
[illegible]	[illegible]	Pass	2 N T
[illegible]	[illegible]	Pass	4 [illegible]
[illegible]	[illegible]	4 ♠ (1)	Pass
[illegible]	[illegible]	Pass (2)	Pass
5 ♠ (4)	Double (5)	Pass	Pass
Pass

(1) South's bid of four spades appears extremely daring and, as a matter of fact, may be severely penalized, but South figures that [illegible] have a sure game [illegible] the only way to minimize [illegible] a paying penalty.

[illegible] While on the face of it a [illegible] bid, actually it is very fine. [illegible] the [illegible] of East for [illegible] he feels that spades are backed in the West and and hence that the spade contract can also be severely penalized.

(3) The trump suit is too ragged for South to bid further. The pass, of course, strongly suggests that North should return to spades if by any means he can stand play in [illegible]

[illegible] insists partner's [illegible] defeat but hoping [illegible] in hearts may prove [illegible]

[illegible] ceived ideas as [illegible] of spades prove [illegible] makes a very bad Penalty Double. A much better course would be to bid the Slam in clubs or heart.

At another table, where North and South did not enter the bidding, the Grand Slam contract in [illegible] the following:

North	East	South	West
[illegible]	2 [illegible]	P[illegible]	2 N T
Pass	3 [illegible]	Pass	4
[illegible]	6 [illegible]	Pass	7 ♣
[illegible]	7 [illegible]	Pass	Pass

TODAY'S QUESTION

In response to East's bid of one spade, what should West bid on [illegible]

♠ Q 10 5 4 ♥ 8 6 ♦ A K J 7 ♣ A 9 5

Answer: Four spades. The hand is too weak to justify a Forcing Takeout of three diamonds. The immediate Raise to game is a mild Slam try and East will continue the bidding if he holds additional values.

Birthmarks Banished By Gamma Ray Treatment

By GOBIND BEHARI LAL
Universal Service Science Editor

Chicago, Sept. 28. Mild doses of radium's gamma rays are the most effective treatment in removal of [illegible] of various kinds.

This was maintained by Dr. William S. Newcomet of Jefferson Hospital, Philadelphia, before the American Congress of Radiology today. The argument was based upon survey of this treatment given in 506 cases of which 422 were hemangiomata or blood vessels type, 14 lymphangiomata, and 70 fibrous including the common skin moles types.

Dr. Newcomet said: "The lay people have a false notion that treatment of a nevus (birth mark) is inviting malignancy (cancer). As a matter of well established fact, however, many cases of malignancy (cancer) start from nevi (birth marks)."

The dose of radium or gamma rays should not be excessive, but the precise amount and the best method of using it has to be determined in each separate case, Dr. Newcomet emphasized.

In growing children application of radium rays is apt to check normal tissue growth.

Radium is preferable to X-ray because it can be more carefully confined to specific [illegible] Dr. Newcomet said.

Colorful---Easy to Make

By LAURA WHEELER

The Windflower quilt has come by its name honestly, the flower-like form looks as if it were gracefully blowing in the breeze. Squares of scraps are used, giving an effectively contrasting background for the flowers.

This is one of those quilts that seems to suggest endless charming color arrangements. The scraps in the background suggest a lavish use of all colors, setting off the flower pattern, done in a darker color. If preferred [illegible] patches could be made of one material, making a quaint checkerboard background.

Pattern 550 comes to you with complete, simple instructions for cutting, sewing and finishing, together with yardage chart, diagram of quilt to help arrange the blocks for single and double bed size, and a diagram of block which serves as a guide for [illegible] materials.

Send 10 cents for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft Dept., 82 Eighth Avenue, New York City.

Rapidity with which Wall and State sts can shift their views regarding national affairs is being [illegible] demonstrated on the current subject of inflation. Up to a few days ago the belief that such action was inevitable held an almost immovable grip on the speculative mind. Now the reverse is happening. A conviction seems to be gaining, undoubtedly influenced by Washington advice, that nothing of the kind will be attempted at once.

Grains Are Lower in Chicago Market

Chicago, Sept. 28 (AP). Decided downturns in grain prices early today followed news that a conference at London to fix a quota for Russian wheat exports had proved unsuccessful. State St. Watches Forlorn Bulls of August Drop Out

By HUGH F. BRADSHAW

The [illegible] fast [illegible] ters of [illegible] each [illegible] prices are [illegible] from the [illegible] groups are [illegible] and the [illegible] et for a decent [illegible] market make [illegible] stock as they [illegible] thing worth mention [illegible] on the upside.

The activities of [illegible] ers are already discernible in certain directions, though the more followed industrial leaders [illegible]. This latter is undoubtedly [illegible] to the strain placed on the [illegible] technical position [illegible] attempts to [illegible] the [illegible] amended [illegible].

UTILITY ACTION PLEASING

On the other hand the groups which were comparatively backward while the leaders noted above were doing their stuff are now among the best acting issues. This applies in particular to the utilities. One or two of these do not prove the contention but they do indicate the group generally has entered the confines of the stock market bargain basement.

To expect the utility group to put on a one-man show is ridiculous and those taking them on [illegible] know it. They also know that present prices are likely to represent average lows and any subsequent rally should return a profit. Naturally this will await more settled conditions throughout the stock list.

Notes: The head on the first section of this column Monday told you to expect increased short selling . . . Yesterday a leading financial reporting service noted there had been more on Wednesday than in some time . . . Others have since joined the parade . . . But the first indication of such operations was [illegible] here.

The chartists are of a bearish mind. They say too many important resistance levels have been violated and that an entirely new base must be sought out. For all of this one should remember that when the chartist first gets a bear signal a temporary rally at least is not far behind. In fact they count on it to do their selling.

High grade bonds are being sacked by investors. The argument is that they lose their usefulness in a recovery period. Under present conditions when a business and industrial upswing will come through force, if not naturally, they are doubly inadequate. Sellers are making arrangements to take on equities in their place.

The bearish chartists spoken of above outline their probable long range position as follows: After a technical rally of fair proportions a renewed selling drive carrying the list from five to seven points under recent lows. If the industrials then hold their July lows they will [illegible] to a long range rally base.

A [illegible] was made in the offer that there was to be no increase unless world demand justified extending the 560,000,000 bushel [illegible] export quota adopted at the recent wheat conference.

National Service Has Large Oil Contract

Announcement was made today that the National Service Companies, whose subsidiaries serve about 200 principal cities of New England and Westchester County, New York, from and including Portland, Maine to the upper [illegible] of New York city, whose principal sales are of fuel oils, beer, ice and coke, has paid all of its current bank loans so that its notes payable and purchase agreements to acquire senior securities due during the next 12 months, have been reduced to $131,826.04. During this same period of time it has increased its current assets and securities salable without affecting the control of underlying companies to over $1,275,000.

This group has just signed [illegible] contracts for the coming year for about [illegible],000 gallons of oil. This New England contract is estimated to be one of the largest signed by any distributor on the Atlantic Coast.

The success of the subsidiaries in the sale and economical distribution of beer during the past few months [illegible] the [illegible] of the [illegible] longest [illegible] with their 400,000 or more customers, officials state.

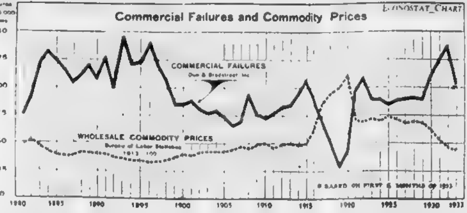
Sales of ice for beer [illegible] has increased by two or three times the purchases of many of their customers.

Air-conditioning equipment both portable and fixed is increasing the demands for ice; [illegible] one [illegible] was estimated whose purchases were under $50 during 1932, have already used a total of $1120.55 during 1933.

The subsidiaries have made substantial reductions in their bond indebtedness through sinking fund operations.

National Services Companies and subsidiaries consolidated gross revenue for 1932 was $10,324,783.92, or within 4.7 per cent of its all time high record. This record of stability, plus the increased demand for its new products, warrants the management in feeling that its gross revenue during the coming 12 months should be the largest in their history, officials say.

Commercial Failures Decline



By JOSEPH STAGG LAWRENCE,
[illegible]

[illegible] the [illegible]ing and wholesale effect of [illegible] on business [illegible] commercial [illegible] studies of the [illegible] always stressed [illegible] between commodity prices and commercial health. The [illegible] was well suited to [illegible]. It proceeded somewhat as follows:

A [illegible] in the business man [illegible] an increasing profit due [illegible] fact that he is in possession of [illegible] which he is able to make at once. Furthermore there is a lag between the purchase of goods and their sale. During this interval if prices continue to mount he is able to add the difference [illegible] merchandise with the result that his profits are increased. Since [illegible] other costs (such as taxes, rent and wages) follow the rise in commodity prices and in the interval of lag he is able to obtain greater profit. As a result business mortality declines.

On the other hand when prices move in the other direction this process is reversed. Instead of a beneficial cycle we have a vicious cycle in which the business man is confronted with slowly moving costs and rapid declining prices. He finds it impossible to make adjustments with sufficient speed and as a result his profit margin is reduced or disappears entirely. This unfavorable condition is aggravated by a decline in the volume of business and we see the result a rapid rise in business failures and the disappearance of [illegible] from corporate statement.

The accompanying chart extends wholesale commodity prices and commercial failures back to 1880 and gives us a chance to appraise the accuracy of the theory. There are two occasions when it is strikingly confirmed. The first of those is in the war and post-war period. War profit appearing in 1915 and 1916, resulting partly from rising prices, attended by a rapidly declining line of failures. In 1920, '21 and '22 the failure line mounts sharply while prices drop.

A similar experience is now being evolved. Failures rose rapidly during the last three years and are now dropping at a result of the improvement in conditions, one of which, of course, is the rise in prices.

Investment Trust Holdings Intact

Despite reports of investment trust liquidation during last week's unsettled markets, interests close to the largest institutions of this type claim their common stock holdings have been little disturbed in the last month or so. Their funds are said to be more fully invested than for some time with the larger portion in common stock and only relatively small amounts in low grade stocks and bonds. Informed sources state investment trust executives are as greatly puzzled as the average stock market trader as to what to expect in the immediate future.

Sees Big Champagne Market in America

Jean Tillier, who recently resigned as general director of the French Line in the United States and Canada to represent certain leading French wine houses in this country, states that a preliminary survey of the United States has indicated between 500,000 and 750,000 cases of champagne will be imported during 1934. This is between two and three times a normal pre-war year's supply.

Sales by Chains in Month Show Up Well

Sales of the more important chain store and mail order organizations during September have been running at a pace that will result in substantial gains over corresponding month a year ago. Sales of the two leading mail order houses—Sears, Roebuck & Co., and Montgomery Ward & Co.—during September, as usual, have shown a seasonal rise over August.

CRITICAL POINT FOUND REACHED BY STOCKS

Great Caution Is Need of Traders at This Level, Says Haney

By LEWIS HANEY
Professor of Economics, New York University

New York, Sept. 28—As this is written the stock market is dull and weak, with many stocks at levels which may be regarded as critical. Either they will be supported here, or sizeable declines are due.

This is not a very helpful observation, but under prevailing conditions of business and monetary uncertainty, what can one say?

At least it suggests great caution both in making new commitments and in protecting present trading positions.

While I do see probabilities of a further inflationary rise eventually, it seems doubtful at the moment whether the current period of readjustment has been completed. We may, therefore, well consider the so-called resistance levels on the downside.

For the Dow-Jones "industrials" one can see resistance points at about 96, 92 and 88. The first has been broken. The second is near and is not very strong. So 88 is easily possible. A break through 88 might bring a dive to 75 or 80.

Perhaps more significant are individual cases. For example, American Can has broken a resistance level around 88¼. A decline to 83 would seem fairly probable.

Similarly, we find two significant levels, one under the other, for American Tobacco B and Du Pont, as follows: Tobacco, 85-79; Du Pont, 74½-66.

Other cases which seem important are: American Smelting at 119½, Union Pacific at 113-110, Atchison at 56, Chrysler at 41, and U. S. Steel at 47.

The last case seems especially interesting. 'Big Steel' was accumulated at 46-47 last May. The outlook for the industry is none too good. Should the stock now break through it would be distinctly discouraging.

But should the market stay dull and hold at this level, it would be a favorable indication.

It is usual to have a let-down between the first rush of anticipated inflation and the final irrevocable plunge into it. We are now well along in such a let-down. No one can tell how long this will last. All one can do is to watch market action, and keep one ear to the ground for Washington developments.

Oberacker New Adams Post Leader

Ashton, first, second and third vice-commanders, respectively, J. Frank Burke, adjutant; Fred L. Mellin, finance officer; Leo H. Dunn, judge advocate; Rev. D. Harold Hickey, chaplain; Charles H. Flynn, historian; Walter Hearsey, sergeant-at-arms, and George Andrews, George H. Lincoln, John Stahl, Edward County and Phil Dexter, executive committee.

Extra Dividend on Kress Is Ordered

New York, Sept. 28 (AP)—S. H. Kress & Co. has declared an extra dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. It is payable in the company's special preferred issue at the rate of one-twentieth share of such stock for each 50 cents of the dividend. The payment date is Nov. 1 to holdings of record Oct. 10.

A. M. Byers Co. has voted a 50 cent dividend on the preferred stock, payable Nov. 1 to shares of record Oct. 16. Similar disbursements were made in the two preceding quarters.

Changes in Cotton Trading Are Narrow

New York, Sept. 28—In another dull trading session cotton futures today held within a narrow range at levels approximating last night's final prices. Late quotations were up 1 point to off 3 points, with October off 3 at 9.71; December up 1 at 10.01, March off 2 at 10.25 and July unchanged at 10.37.

Washington Has Key for Market Kept in Hiding

By WALL ST. SPECULATOR

Belief in speculative circles today is that Washington holds the key to the market's future, kept in hiding. The popular guess is that some inflation, of one sort or another, will be seen. With the President's powers great as they are, traders are prone to hope for good things, and really to expect them to transpire at no distant date.

October in the stock market, as well as in business circles, is more often than not a month of greater activities, and this fact is spreading a little hope where it comes to mind.

On recessions and in view of inflation possibilities, quite a number are buying oils, packings, metals, chemicals and domestic sugars.

UTILITY BUYING IS UNCOVERED

"Some shrewd investors are beginning to purchase the securities, including preferred shares, of utility companies that have been particularly pummelled and have either stopped or slashed dividends," Spectator learns from B. C. Forbes.

They reason that the unloading of securities of good utility companies is being overdone.

Bonds of leading railroads now selling at 50 to 60 cents on the dollar are also being quietly accumulated on the theory that they possess merit as semi-speculative investments even should there be no further inflation and that their market value would logically rise should inflation become more pronounced.

Wall Street, with its nose on the ticker tape, is getting more bearish as prices go lower. We would advise against yielding to this attitude for the market has had a pretty stiff shakeout.

World Zinc Output Shows a Reduction

World zinc production in August totaled 99,895 short tons against 95,168 in July and 65,963 in August 1932, the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reports. World zinc production in August amounted to 98,517 short tons against 103,483 in July and 103,348 in the same month last year.

Bank Clearings' Trend Is Upward

Dun & Bradstreet today reported a resumption of the upward trend in banking clearings as compared with the previous years. Total for the week ended Sept. 27 was $4,262,517,000, a rise of 9.2 per cent from 1932.

SEES UPSWING IN INSTALMENT BUYING SOON

Revival Is Likely to Be Next Notable Turn in Retail Trade

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Sept. 28—The next notable development in business may be revival of instalment buying.

Millions of families, some from choice and some from necessity, have let almost everything they own and use run down—furniture, floor covering, bed supplies, clothes, shoes, tablewear, radios, ornaments, refrigeration, musical instruments, toilet articles, everything.

B. C. Forbes

As soon as it becomes generally accepted that America is definitely headed in the right direction, many families who have frozen on to their savings, and restricted purchases to the sheerest necessaries are likely to resume rational spending, rational living.

Long-idle breadwinners who have been restored to employment, in pressing need of many things, will naturally turn to instalment buying to enable them to establish something approaching a bearable standard of living.

Whereas it had been widely predicted during the boom that a spell of depression would absolutely ruin instalment enterprise, the records have proved astonishingly satisfactory. The mortality among instalment houses, so far as is known, has been no greater than among other lines of business, as a whole.

The prospect of higher prices should also stimulate instalment orders.

Kept within sound limits, rebirth of instalment business could do much to expedite the restoration of activity and employment.

NRA, like every widespread innovation, entails in its working-out hardships upon some. This is inevitable. All that can be done—and less should not be done—is to exercise patience and magnanimity in striving to iron out obstacles.

MODERATE RISE IS REGISTERED FOR LEADERS

New York, Sept. 28—Leading shares on the New York Stock Exchange managed to hold moderate advances of fractions to a point or better over a wide list into the final hour of trading today.

Financial markets marched to slow music, stepping cautiously in paths cluttered with fiscal uncertainties and industrial recovery problems.

Stocks got back some of their rather severe losses of the previous session, but the trading activity turned extremely dull on the intermittent rallies. Public participation was at a minimum. Professional floor traders accounted for most of the fluctuations.

Grains, cotton and other commodities were hesitant and mostly somewhat lower. Here, too, buyers and sellers appeared a bit befogged by recurrent rumors of the government's attitude toward inflation and sound money. Bonds shifted about in an uneven range. The dollar was steady to firm in foreign exchange transactions.

Active shares in the first hour rose a point or two under leadership of the alcohol issues. Stocks up 2 or better included Brooklyn-Manhattan Transit, J. I. Case and Allied Chemical. American Tobacco "B" was down 2 points.

U. S. Steel sold at major fractional advances and Consolidated Gas was up almost a point. Rises of more than a point appeared for Libby-Owens, Schenley, Seaboard Oil, U. S. Smelting, American can, American Smelting, American Telephone, Louisville & Nashville and National Distillers.

Sales to 11:00 a. m. approximately 450,000 shares.

The market continued to idle through the second hour but by noon the list showed a slight tendency to ease. U. S. Industrial Alcohol cancelled its advance to sell a net fraction lower while Standard Oil of California was also a trifle reactionary. Case, Brooklyn-Manhattan and Allied Chemical were up 2 or better.

Sales to noon approximated 710,000 shares.

In the third hour the rise was resumed in spots. U. S. Smelting got up more than 4 points. Allied Chemical was up over 3. National Distillers, Case and Celanese were up over 2 points.

Point or better gains appeared for Consolidated Gas, Industrial Rayon, Libby-Owens and New York Central. American Telephone was up almost a point. Johns-Manville lifted nearly 2 points. U. S. Steel was traded at advances of a point or better.

Sales to 1 p. m. approximated 960,000 shares.

In the fourth hour prices [illegible] only a shade under the day's best. Allied Chemical and U. S. [illegible] retained 3-point gains. National Distillers and Industrial Rayon trailed them closely. J. I. Case was up over 2 points as reports of impending Russian recognition persisted.

Consolidated Gas, Chrysler, American Smlting, American Telephone, Celanese, Illinois Central, Commercial Solvents and Loew's were up a point or better. [illegible] Steel was fractionally up.

Sharp & Dohme's Dividends Ordered

Sharp & Dohme, Inc., declared a dividend of 50 cents on the Class A cumulative convertible preference stock for the current quarter and also a dividend of $1 a share covering dividend accumulations on the preference stock. The total dividend of $1.50 is payable Nov. 1 to stock of record Oct. 17.

Three months ago the company declared a dividend of 50 cents on the Class A preference stock for the current quarter and $1 on account of dividend accumulations. With payment of the $1.50 on Nov. 1 there will remain only 25 cents in accumulated dividends on the Class A preferance stock.

Closing on Paris Exchange Is Mixed

Paris, Sept. 28—Strength today in rentes and most international issues induced a general improvement, especially in rubber shares. The closing was irregular.

Selling was overshadowed in Berlin by the more favorable business reports. The Boerse opened unsettled with fractional losses but the closing was weaker.

$31.05 Gold Price Given by Treasury

Washington, Sept. 28 (AP)—Today's newly mined gold price was announced by the treasury as $31.05, 30 cents less than yesterday's quotations.

American Dollar Higher in London

Rail Loan Approved

Washington, Sept. 28 (INS)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today authorized the Texas & Gulf Railroad, and The Gulf, Colorado Santa Fe, lessee, to abandon a branch line extending between Gary and Grigsby, Tex.

Decision on Sugar Pact Thought Near

Journal of Commerce says it is predicted in authoritative quarters that fate of the basic sugar-marketing agreement, stalemated at present by failure of Sec. of Agriculture Wallace to sign it, will be decided within a week. Decision is expected to be brought about by pressure from the major domestic continental and insular interests who have signed the agreement.

Commodity Prices Index Moves Higher

Bureau of Labor Statistics wholesale commodity price index on Sept. 23 stood at 71.5, against 70.5 a week ago. This is a new high for 1933 and the first week in which all 10 of the major groups in the compilation advanced.

Copper Code by the NRA

Copper industry has placed itself in position which may result in the NRA writing a code for it. The large producers and custom smelters, finding themselves unable to agree on a means of avoiding price cutting, sent separate statements to the Recovery Administration in explanation of their failure to combine the codes already filed in a single code for the industry. Crux of dispute has been the method of custom smelters of selling copper daily in order to dispose of ore intake and avoid building up inventories of refined metal. In a declining market this has often resulted in custom smelters shading the price for prompt disposal of copper.

Virginian Railway Gains

New York, Sept. 28—The Virginian Railway's surplus after charges for eight months ended Aug. 31, 1933, of $1,733,652, is equal, after allowing for dividend requirements on the 6 per cent preferred stock, to $1.96 a share on the 312,715 shares of common stock, against $1,053,512, or $3.77 a share on 279,530 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock, in the first eight months of 1932.

Pacific Eastern Offer Taken

Wilmington, Del., Sept. 28—Stockholders of Pacific Eastern Corp. after a two-day meeting voted to approve action of directors in accepting offer of $85,000 and 100,000 shares of the corporation's stock from Goldman Sachs & Co. and an offer of $40,000 cash from Ralph Jonas, New York attorney, in settlement of all claims the corporation might have against them.

Scotch Whiskey Is Optioned

New York, Sept. 28—In anticipation of repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, an option on 100,000 cases of Scotch whiskey has been obtained by the newly-organized American Liquor Exchange, Inc., and is being resold in the form of warehouse receipts to proprietors of hotels, restaurants and clubs throughout the country.

Treasury Is After Bids

Washington, Sept. 28—The Secretary of the Treasury invites tenders on $100,000,000 91-day bills to be dated October 4, maturing January 3, 1934. Tenders will be received to 2 p. m., Monday, October 2.

Boston Wool Mart Price Trend Is Up

"Medium fleece and territory wools are offered in only limited quantities and prices show an upward tendency. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood, and 48s-50s, ¼ blood, Ohio and similar fleeces are selling at mostly around 40c in the grease, while a number of houses are asking 41-42c. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood, territory wools are strong at 76-78c, scoured basis, and 48s, 50s, ¼ blood sells readily at 70-72c. Some houses are talking higher prices on 56s territory wools as a result of limited offerings," says the Boston office of the U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Boston Men Enthuse Over Nash Models

The mystery that has surrounded the line of motor cars which the Nash Company is planning to present soon to motorists was disclosed at a recent distributors' meeting in Kenosha. Harold C. Hart and R. G. Paine, chief executives of the Nash New England Company, who attended the preshowing, report that it was without doubt one of the greatest distributors" meetings in the history of the Nash Motors Co.

The new models for 1934 were on exhibition. The sales chiefs predicted that the new 1934 Nash models would sweep the country completely.

Runaway Auto Is Halted by Officer

Quick action of Traffic Officer Michael F. O'Brien, of Station 2, whose post is at School and Washington sts. this morning ended the antics of a runaway automobile and saved plateglass windows in the Old South Building.

A sedan, owned by Harry Kaye, School st. florist, started down School st. from in front of City Hall, when Officer O'Brien hopped aboard applied the brakes and stopped it just as it hit the curbing.

A GREAT FRIEND OF---
MR. A. B. EDGERLEY

This is Scome, McDougal, a pet Scottish terrier who is one of the liveliest factors of life at the Edgerly home in Dedham. "Dougal" as he is called by those who can win any degree of familiarity with him, is at heart a bird-dog, for he is forever pursuing them—with no luck whatever. He is too short for the work; has legs which defy speed and gets mad just when he should be taking the pursuit calmly. He is the particular pet of Miss Ann Edgerley, aged 7, and despite his usual dignity he enjoys being dressed up in doll's clothing and wheeled about the house. In this regalia he growls instantly at any smiling stranger.

BIDS AND PROPOSALS

TRANSIT DEPARTMENT.

Proposals for Furnishing and Delivering Limit Switches and Push Button Stations, Traffic Tunnel.

The Transit Department of the City of Boston, 1 Beacon street, seventh floor, invites proposals from citizens of the United States and corporations or other legal associations wherein the controlling interest to the extent of at least one-half thereof is owned by a citizen or citizens of the United States, for furnishing and delivering hatchway type limit switches and push button stations for the Traffic Tunnel. A bond of an approved surety company will be required for the faithful performance of the contract in a sum of the total bid price. Proposals must be filled out and signed by the bidder on forms to be obtained at this office, inclosed in a sealed envelope, indorsed "Limit Switches and Push Button Stations, Traffic Tunnel," and delivered to the Department, or to its secretary, before 12 o'clock noon on Monday, October 9, 1933, at which time and place they will be publicly opened and read. A properly certified check in the sum of one hundred (100) dollars, payable to the city, must accompany the proposal. This check shall become the property of the city if the contract is not executed by the bidder within the time prescribed after the date of the notification by the Department of the acceptance of the proposal and the readiness of the contract for signature. Proposals must be made in duplicate. The sealed duplicate, without check, is to be deposited by the bidder with the City Auditor, Room 20, City Hall, previous to the time named for opening the proposals. Proposals, specifications and forms of contract may be obtained at this office on or after Monday, September 25, 1933. A deposit of $5, in cash or by certified check, will be required for two sets of specifications. Mutilation of them will be deemed sufficient cause for the forfeiture of said deposit. The Department reserves the right to reject any or all proposals.

By order of the City of Boston Transit Department.

EDWARD F. CONDON,
Secretary.

AUNT BELLA HURLS DEFI AT MARLENE DIETRICH!

CALLS CINEMA PANTS QUEEN "BRAZEN COPYCAT"

BY AUNT BELLA

I would like to correct an impression that has done me great harm and caused me much mental suffering. My lawyers tell me that Marlene Dietrich claims to be the first prominent beauty of this day and age to wear men's clothes. My answer is "Pictures speak louder than words." Fortunately I have proof which I hereby submit, showing that the first beautiful woman to wear men's pants was none other than Yours Truly—at the age of eleven. This is a triumph for America, as I am native born, weight 180 pounds, have a luxuriant growth of hair, and a marvelous figure for my age. Wake up America! Do not give credit to a foreign born copycat, when your own Aunt Bella submits proof that she wore men's clothes in 1891!

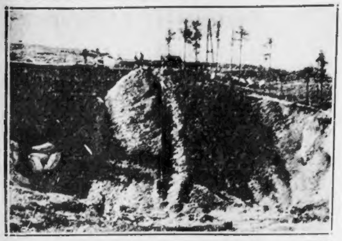
Criminal Waste

Unworthy of the Lowest Savage



DESTROYING BY FIRE THOUSANDS OF POUNDS OF HOPS IN CZECHO-SLOVAKIA, TO KEEP UP PRICES

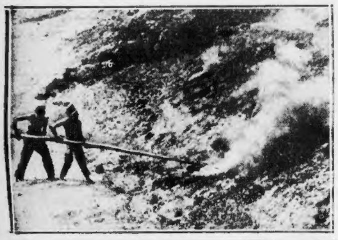
The lower picture shows part of the destruction of one thousand million pounds of coffee in Brazil, burned or made useless by mixing it with tar or throwing it overboard.

Men that write history in the centuries ahead when this world shall have become efficient, and really civilized, will find it difficult to believe that human beings possessing scientific knowledge and some slight sense of right and wrong in this twentieth century should have been compelled to destroy that which was actually needed by millions of human beings.

While Brazil destroyed the thousand million pounds of coffee there were millions in the United States and all over the world that could not afford to buy and pay for coffee that they needed.



BRAZIL BURNED OR OTHERWISE DESTROYED MORE THAN ONE THOUSAND MILLION POUNDS OF GOOD COFFEE, TO KEEP UP PRICES

The human race knows how to PRODUCE what it wants, but it does not know how to DISTRIBUTE. And the extreme cases of dreadful waste illustrated here, in the picture taken in Czecho-Slovakia, and another in Brazil, could be taken just as well in this country. In a hundred thousand orchards apples and peaches are rotting under the trees; it does not "pay" the cost of picking, packing and shipping to send the fruit to those that need it.

The owner of an orange grove will say to an automobile driver stopping at his door: "Put as many oranges as you like in the back of your car and pay me twenty-five cents. If I tried to pick and sell the fruit I would lose money."

There are millions half naked in this world that need cotton cloth, and this highly intelligent American Government, doing the best it can, is telling farmers to plough under every third row of cotton, thus cutting down by 33 1-3 per cent the crop that he could distribute. Fighting depression with organized waste is a strange kind of war.

The 'Army' Needs You

Mrs. Roosevelt Opens Campaign

Now that the oratory has been completed, let us get down to the real work of raising $150,000 for the Salvation Army in Boston.

Pyrotechnics arouse interest and enthusiasm. But it is money that makes the mare go.

The Salvation Army, as Mrs. Roosevelt so graciously and accurately said, is an institution of very noble purpose.

We have seen it lift men out of the gutter, and clothe, feed and shelter them.

We have seen it bring food to our soldiers on far-away battlefields.

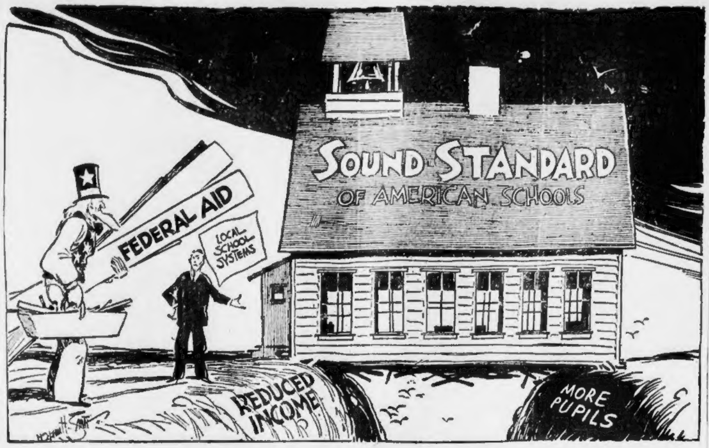
We have seen it meet the depression with brave generosity, supplying the necessaries of life to our unfortunate people to the limit of its resources.

The treasury of the Salvation Army has been sorely taxed. The officers and workers of the Army are not rich people, but humble people of very moderate means. Their fine work of charity can be carried on only through the contributions they receive from generous people interested in the philanthropic mission they perform.

The Salvation Army reaches the poor and needy. It administers to God's children who otherwise would be neglected. It reaches out the helping hand to all people without regard to race or creed.

Help this organization. Help it to help the poor and needy of Boston. Give as much as you can with the assurance that it will be wisely spent among the poor where it will do the most good to assuage the material sufferings of mankind.

On the Brink



In many hundreds of districts throughout the country school funds have been reduced far below normal, while school population has been increased far above "normal" by the cessation of child labor in numerous industries and trades.

At the same time school construction and schoolhouse repairs, both necessary to save the nation's school plant for the future, have virtually stopped.

The Federal Government has recognized one phase of the dual problem by allocating employment funds toward paying relief salaries to jobless teachers and keeping thousands of children at their classes.

Why should not public school construction in regions where it is most vitally needed be made a part of the public works program?

America can make no better investment than in measures to preserve education.

O. O. McIntyre

Touring New England

By the Roadside

ALONG THE MOHAWK TRAIL, Sept. 28—Country roads are no longer abandoned waysides. They are agog with over-night camps, Duck and Tumble Inns, coffee stands stuccoed into monoplanes, and even ice cream crags that offer 18-piece free band concerts to motorists. Main streets are not half as lively.

O. O. McIntyre

A few miles from Boston I stopped at an electric "Puppies For Sale" sign and saw a newly whelped litter of seven English bulldogs, still with sea leg wobble. I wanted one for Denise Coblentz. But such purchases are pig-in-a-poke affairs. It might turn out a mastiff.

Further on was the Paul Revere Riding Academy, and I thought of the skeptical Bostonian who told me years ago: "Revere couldn't even ride a horse!" But his protest was sketchy. The fate of heroes is "the bird." There are those who even say Lindy's flight was dumb luck.

In Concord, Mass., I saw for the first time in years the puckish comic paper type of hod carrier with a nubbin upside-down pipe. He was Johnnie Ray in real life. Too, on a bright path a file of drably uniformed, sullen men from a penal institution. They only stared at our wave.

On to Fitchburg, a gray New England manufacturing town with a wintry glitter, self contained, Main streety. At a bend a sandwich place called "Curve Inn." Somehow it suggested a grand name for a Boston "Wiggle." The town of Westminster had the most attractive outside dappled rock chimney I ever saw.

This is the droop of the year when wood smoke coils its acrid aroma in lazy drifts. Few odors are so attractive. Silly sign collectors could add this affiche on a lunch stand here: "Fill Up With Phillip." And the town of Gardner calls itself "The Chair City of the World." Looked as though the rocker got many of 'em. A job idea for old age—demonstrating chairs! An ultra modern note is that most villages boast airports.

* * *

Still another highway huckster offered: "Puppies, kittens, white mice, parrots and gold fish." Harry Silvey wanted to barge in, look around and shriek: "What, no zebras!" A swan farm held us a half hour. There stately grace in gliding away in precise formations is marvelous. Chop sueys were once unknown to small towns. Every cross roads here has one. My wife, who up to this time had said nothing, suddenly clapped hands and cried "Goody!" We were passing a tapioca factory. Silliness like that is turning this junket into sheer farce.

Someone wondered if the employers ever ate tapioca. Silvey noticed the wheels of a passing train wammered tap-i-oca, tap-i-oca. It would have probably gone on and on had we not come to "Aunt Agatha's White Hen," a prim tea room, suggesting a turkey wing duster behind the kitchen stove. We disembarked for tea. Then detoured a few miles to see Deerfield, famed for sausage.

Near Greenfield, with many signs, "Worms For Sale," really begns the picturesque wind of the Mohawk Trail, a blast of beauty through magnificent hills. At one point by spiralling three tiers, one may see on a clear day four states—Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and New York. Also partake of "Snow's Nice Cream." Dips into cool valleys reveal streams ankle deep and rock bottomed. At Charlemont, a throwback in a covered wooden bridge, dull tobacco brown and echoey. Along the trail searsroebuckish Indian tepees dotted hillsides.

The Hairpin Turn corkscrews its dizzy, abrupt twist near here. College boys hawk souvenirs at the summit. The Hoosac Tunnel is also on the way. At the celestial peak of the turn a lanky New Englander, unfolding like a carpenter's rule, arose from his shelter to come to the car. "Huntin' lodgins'?" he drawled. We explained we only wanted a view of the sunset. He grumbled off: "That's all they do. Just come and look!" Harry Silvey started him off again by asking if they had had a good tapioca season. I postcarded Irvin Cobb: "Lots of laughs. It's all Bridgeport!"

* * *

The wind-up of the Mohawk Trail plunges through a Sussex-like weald into the serene village of North Adams. I never remember seeing so many cemeteries in one community. They seemed everywhere. But how appropriate. Trail's End—Cemeteries!

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

What Prohibition Did

A DRUNKEN WOMAN is the most abominable sight on earth.

A drunken child is the most pitiful.

And yet in this country, whose proudest boast is the gallantry shown its women — the wise and tender care given its children — the health of its protected homes—

Elsie Robinson

In America today, family life is endangered as it is in no other civilized country.

In no other civilized country is womanhood being so debauched—or childhood so demoralized!

And this frightful condition is the work of one single agency—the 18th Amendment to our Constitution.

These are terrible statements. It would be outrageous to make them if the proof were not available. But the proof is available to anyone who has the honesty and courage to face it—the columns and files of every leading American newspaper and magazine—in the surveys of all social service agencies—in the original Wickersham Report as presented to ex-President Hoover—in the police records of every hamlet and city of the United States.

The prohibition law was the most vicious thing which was ever done to America by Americans—vicious, because it was based on a fundamental disregard for American laws and guarantees.

And wets and drys were equally responsible for the debacle of the last fifteen years.

As drys, we were responsible because we forced through a law which violated human rights.

As wets, we were responsible because w eraised a riot which violated human decency.

Between us, we did things to this country which made the deviltries of the pre-war rowdies, hoodlums and bad men look like kindergarten games.

And of all the wreckage which we wrought, none was more tragic than our demoralization of the American Home.

For the first time in our history, booze became entrenched in our American homes.

The old saloon was a bad place. But, save in the slums, women and children were never permitted in the old saloons. There were "family entrances," drunken women; but the saloon, itself, did not move into the family living room, and a drunken woman was a rare and terrible sight.

But when prohibition became a national controversy—

Then our homes went wet; our women went wanton; our children went wild.

Cockeyed reasoning? Of course it was. Upcivilized actions? Of course there were. But cockeyed intolerance and uncivilized tyranny started it. You can't sow thistles and reap violets. You can't sow lawlessness—even in the name of God—and reap lawfulness.

Prohibition came at a particularly bad time, when American family life had entered upon a crucial stage. Machines had taken out of the home tasks which had kept women busy and proud; had emptied women's hands. Suffrage had placed in those empty hands new and potentially dangerous freedom and opportunities.

By the end of 1919, the cocktail hour had replaced the children's hour—and nightly, in millions of "respectable homes," such orgies were staged by "nice" American women and American men as would have shamed the Bowery or barbary Coast in their most degenerate days!

While, outside, the young people went wild.

AND SO THE UTTERLY SHAMELESS, THE INCREDIBLE THING HAPPENED—WE, WHO HAD CROSSED THE OCEAN TO RESCUE WAR-TORN LITTLE CHILDREN OF OTHER LANDS, SAW OUR GIRLS COARSENED AND CHEAPENED, OUR BOYS TURNED INTO CRIMINALS, BECAUSE WE, WHO WERE OLDER AND WISER, COULD NOT SETTLE OUR DIFFERENCES AS CIVILIZED AND CONTROLLED HUMAN BEINGS SHOULD.

Nor will the terrible consequences of this outrage be removed if we repeal the 18th Amendment and reganour normal, decent American attitude toward intemperance. The blight of those fifteen years will last till death—on shamed women who cannot retrace their foolish steps; on desperate men who lost more than they ever can regain; on pitifully wronged children who were thrust into the gutter in our insane riot.

"Whosoever offendeth one of these, my little ones, it were better for him that a millsone were hanged about his neck and that he were cast into the depths of the sea!"

May he who thundered those words besides Galilee forgive us for our crime against this generation, whom we led astray!

And may He hasten the return of all of us—foolish Wet or fanatical Dry—back to a common concept of a united fight for American Decency!

Just Folks

Sharing

We who have wept together know what it means to love.
We who have suffered sorrow, strewn roses a mound above,
And knelt on the ground together to whisper a common prayer
With trembling lips and hearts aching know what it means to share.

Time was when we danced together and laughed as the days went by.
Month after month we romped through with never a tear in her eye.
We fancied we loved each other, but little of life we knew,
And I was a jesting comrade with only my work to do.

Then suddenly sorrow found us. Out there by a tiny grave
We learned what it means to be tender and just what it means to be brave.
We learned that love deepens and strengthens by hurts it is asked to bear.
And out of our common heartache we learned what it means to share.

Special Interests Menace Shipping and Air Lines

—By James T. Williams, Jr.—

Three powerful special interests will follow with eager and sympathetic interest the attempt by a special investigating committee of the United States Senate to discredit and ultimately to reverse the American policy of extending government aid to shipping and American air transport.

These special interests are American railroads, British shipping companies, and French air transport companies.

The principal owners of American railroads have long opposed the upbuilding of an American merchant marine upon the ground that it offers competition in transportation to the railroads.

Upon the same ground American railroads have recently opposed the development of American air transport.

British shipping interests have long opposed the revival of an American merchant marine, because the British marine seeks to maintain its supremacy in transportation on the Seven Seas, and objects to any real American competition in this service.

THREE SPECIAL INTERESTS

French air transport companies with the aid of the French government are striving to get control of air transport in Latin America. This would be much easier for the French to do if the American Congress could be induced to reverse the American policy of building up American air transport by the same method of government aid that Congress, after the great war, began to revive an American merchant marine.

These three special interests stand to gain tremendously if the hearings just beginning before the Senate's special investigating committee can be so conducted as to discredit the operation of the various laws enacted by Congress in the last ten years. These laws have for their common purpose the emancipation of the American people from dependence on American railroads for the carrying of mail, passengers and cargo at home, and upon foreign shipping and foreign air transport for similar services abroad.

The appointment of this committee at the last session was forced by a few senators who have long opposed existing American policies under which our merchant marine has been revived and our air transport industry is rapidly coming of age.

FORCED APPOINTMENT

Two of the senators who have led the opposition to these established policies are Senator McKellar of Tennessee and Senator Black of Alabama. The latter is the chairman of the sub-committee which is conducting the investigation during the recess of Congress.

As a result of this investigation Senator Black and Senator McKellar doubtless hope to adduce testimony during the coming week that will turn public sentiment against giving further government aid to American shipping and American air transport. If this can be done, the public may expect legislative proposals when Congress reconvenes for the repeal of the American merchant marine and American air transport policies now in force.

The sincerity and good intentions of those senators who have forced the present investigation is of course taken for granted by their colleagues.

But this fact does not blind other senators and representatives in Congress to the fact that the chief opposition outside Congress to the revival of American merchant marine and the development of American air transport comes from the owners of American railroads and the dominating factors in British shipping and French air transport.

The Roosevelt administration will take toward British and French opposition to the revival of the American merchant marine and the development of American air transport has yet to be disclosed.

Human Side of the News

—By Edwin C. Hill—

Very few women have lived in this world to assert sufficient authority — appeal — influence—call it what you will—to bring about a marked and permanent change in the physical appearance of their sex. This writer is reminded of that truth by observing in the news the quite incorrect statement that Miss Gloria Swanson, motion picture star, inaugurated the vogue of bobbed hair and slim, boyish figures.

Whatever celebrities and compliments may be extended to the charming Miss Swanson, the credit for revolutionizing the coiffure and contours, not only of American women, but of women all over the world, must go to that slim and graceful lady with the brilliant and friendly smile, Irene Castle—Mrs. Irene Castle McLaughlin she is now.

Because of her, ten million women bobbed their hair, discarded the mediaeval armor of corsets and dieted for slender, boyish figures. Because of her, dancing was reborn in America—yes, and throughout the world. In her day she was the supreme priestess of the art, as she floated over waxed floors in the arms of the young Englishman who proved that a dancing man can die a hero's death.

Irene Foote was the daughter of a doctor in New Rochelle, New York. She studied Spanish dancing in Mexico and went on the stage. In one of Lew Fields' shows, "The Girl Behind the Counter," she met a young man with quicksilver in his toes, Vernon Castle. It was a love match when they married in 1911. To Paris they went to make their fortune, and there they almost starved until they persuaded the Cafe de Paris that they had something new in American dancing.

That was their chance. A delighted Russian prince showered them with francs. Within a week Paris was mad over their grace; and back they came to America to create the vogue of the foxtrot and to make over the American girl.

For seven years, Irene was the ideal of the American flappers—yes, and of the mothers of flappers, who sighed vainly over the plumpness that pastry had wrought. Their "Castle House" in New York was the most famous temple of artistic parlor dancing in the world. Pupils thronged to it, willing to pay any price to acquire a mere suggestion of the feathery grace with which Irene and Vernon floated through the new dances. She bobbed her hair, and immediately barbershops sacred to the masculine sex were besieged by the eager ladies.

Then Vernon Castle went over to fight in the air for England, downed a German plane or two and came back to instruct our own flyers. At Fort Worth he swerved his plane to avoid colliding with a student flyer, crashed and was killed. After Vernon Castle no other dancing partner was possible for Irene. Years passed and she married Major Fred McLaughlin of Chicago. And now on her estate at Deerfield she brings up her two little girls, Barbara and Irane, and indulges her passionate love for animals, especially lost, stray dogs—plain mutts, with no pride of ancestry.

She collected 500 strays on her Deerfield place and went to court to fight angry citizens who complained about their nightly howling. And one night her Deerfield dog retreat burned to the ground and 90 of the dogs perished in the flames.

Lithe and slim as in the old days when she was queen of the flappers, she fights vivisection and hales to court every truckman she sees laying a whip to an overburdened horse.

Welcome and gratifying news that Mr. William A. Brady of the American Theater is recovering from a period of illness, as is his brilliant and charming wife, the noted actress, Grace George.

William H. Brady is one of those dynamic characters which nothing but the theater seems able to turn out. He sold newspapers on the streets of San Francisco and played Cripple Creek as a trouper before the railroads were carved through the Rockies. When Pompadour Jim Corbett left-jabbed John L. Sullivan out of the heavyweight championship in New Orleans, in the days when Mother was wearing leg o' mutton sleeves, Bill Brady was in Corbett's corner as his manager.

He started a hundred obscure young men and women on the road to fame and fortune, and refuses to get out of harness as he nears three-score and ten. Cigar cocked truculently in a corner of his mouth, smart fedora tilted on his head, he cut the cards with Arnold Rothstein for $15,000 a cut. He has made and lost 50 fortunes in his 50 years of adult experience, and the last one, and a big one, he has held onto.

He should have been a statesman and a politician. In his penthouse, in the heart of the theatrical district, high above the ceaseless roar of Broadway, you'll always find the Congressional Record. "That's literature," says Brady, who reads it from cover to cover, as he follows closely all that goes on in Washington. He'll tell you that Senator Norris is his idea of a real American, that he doesn't put much stock in Senator Borah.

And once, when Congress was trying to censor the stage, Brady turned to Senator Gore with this peppery remark: "You haven't one legitimate theater in your state, Senator. Shakespeare is a lost art in Oklahoma." An upstanding personality, Bill Brady, despising bunkum and pretense, profanely frank, and a great believer in the country which has given him such a run for his money.
